LINDY'S TRIP THRILLS BRITAIN

ROOSEVELT BIDS NATION A MERRY CHRISTMASTIDE

Speaks at Lighting of Capital's Tree.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, speaking briefly tonight in lighting Washington's community Christmas tree, wished the American people everywhere "A Merry Christmas."

Under the prancing hoofs of the bronze steed supporting the statue of Andrew Jackson in the park in front of the White House, the President addressed a large audience joyous in expectation of the great holiday. At nightfall he touched a button which threw the yellow, green, red, and blue lights of the community tree over Lafayette square.

Speaks of Christmas Spirit.

As he did so the President pointed to the universal spirit of Christmas and the part it has played in fusing the new world melting pot into a homogenous people. His message did not divert from the occasion.

"The night is falling and the spirit of other days, too, broods over the scene," Mr. Roosevelt said. "Andrew Jackson looks down upon us from his prancing steed; and the four corners of the square in which we are gathered around a gayly lit Christmas tree are guarded by the figures of intrepid leaders in the revolutionary war—Von Steuben, the German; Kosciuszko, the Pole, and Lafayette and Rochambeau from the shores of France.

"This is in keeping with the universal spirit of the festival we are celebrating, for we who stand here among the guardians out of the past and from far shores are, I suppose, as diverse in blood and origin as are the uncounted millions throughout the land to whom these words go out tonight.

Unity in Christmas.

"But around the manger of the Babe of Bethlehem 'all nations and kindreds and tongues' find unity. For the spirit of Christmas knows no race, no creed, no clime, no limitation of time or space.

"The spirit of Christmas breathes an eternal message of peace and good will to all men. We pause, therefore, on this holy night and laying down the burdens and the cares of life, and casting aside the anxieties of the common day, rejoice that nineteen hundred years ago, heralded by angels, there came into the world one whose message was of peace, who gave to all mankind a new commandment of love. In that message of love and of peace we find the true meaning of Christmas.

"And so I greet you with the greeting of the angels on that first Christmas at Bethlehem which, resounding through centuries, still rings out with its eternal message: 'Glory Be to God in the Highest, and on Earth Peace, Good Will to Men.'"

Hang Stockings in White House.

The community tree was only one of the President's many activities in observance of the day. In the evening, with four generations of his family gathered about him, he assisted at the hanging of stockings on a mantel beneath which burned a roaring fire. First of the stockings was that of Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, and second and third were those of her son, the President and of Mrs. Roosevelt.

This year's celebration was curtailed somewhat because Curtis Dall, known as "Buzzie," is ill with a slight cold in New York and couldn't come to the White House. His illness forced his sister, Eleanor, known as "Sistie"; his mother, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, and her husband, John Boettiger, to remain in New York. Also absent were Elliott Roosevelt, his wife, and their daughter, who are living in Texas.

With the President were his eldest son, James; his wife, and their daughter Sara; sons John and Franklin. Most of the family will be here for the grandchildren's Christmas party Dec. 28.

Plans for the Day.

Tomorrow morning the contents of the stockings hung at the fireplace and the packages beneath them will be flung on the spread on the bed of the east wing room. Then will President Roosevelt know what Christmas 1935 has brought for him

POOR CHILDREN MADE HAPPY ON CHRISTMAS EVE

Baskets Are Carried Into 1,609 Homes.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

THE TRIBUNE organization of Christmas Good Fellows of 1935 visited 1,173 families yesterday, carrying gifts of food and toys to 4,692 poor children.

In addition Good Fellow baskets bought by money contributed to this fund and distributed by employés of THE TRIBUNE were carried into 436 homes that otherwise would have known no Christmas cheer, bringing joy to 1,744 more children—a total of 1,609 homes and 6,436 children.

The record of the Good Fellows, founded twenty-six years ago, grows year by year. Last year there were 904 Good Fellows. Yesterday there were 926 who took care of the 1,173 families, compared with 1,075 families a year ago.

Helps Good Fellows, Too.

Less money was contributed this year, but the main object is to bring Good Fellows into direct contact with those who need them. In this way Christmas for many families is extended through the year and a permanent social lift is given. For the Good Fellows themselves it works out according to the song of the Good King Wenceslas:

Ye who now will bless the poor,
Shall yourselves find blessing.

One instance came to light yesterday that shows how this movement gathers momentum. A year ago a Good Fellow knocked at the door of a rather pretentious house on the far south side and found, amid good furniture, with oriental rugs and a grand piano, an old couple freezing and starving.

They had not applied for help, but some neighbor had sent in their name. They were given coal and food and helped in various ways, and yesterday this couple, restored to prosperity, had three families to which they carried baskets.

The Best Kind of Christmas.

The story of what happened to the 926 Good Fellows who tramped up the stairs of dreary flats and knocked at the doors of homes of poverty will never be known, of course. These are secret records touching individuals. It may be hinted at, however, in the experiences of those who went out from THE TRIBUNE to spend the money that was sent in.

Every dollar was made to go a long way. It brought immediate interest in happiness. It gilded dingy rooms with Christmas glory. It brought smiles to the weary faces of hundreds of mothers. This was the real way to sing Christmas carols, THE TRIBUNE messengers decided.

THE TRIBUNE stockroom, where 436 baskets were gathered for delivery, and the Chicago airport, where 186 baskets were assembled, were two chief centers of activity during the day.

Good Fellows Take Airport.

The airport was turned over at 11 o'clock to the Aviation Good Fellows. Every branch of service was represented, from the pilots' association to the trim rows of stewardesses. A Christmas tree had been erected in the main waiting room and while travelers were arriving and departing on the air liners the airport people gathered around the tree to sing carols and sort out their baskets for delivery.

John Casey, manager of the airport, chairman of the Good Fellows there, welcomed the guests. Capt. Benjamin B. Lipsner, general manager for the Aviation Good Fellows; Dr. Irene Behnke, chairman of transportation, and Phil Maxwell, Good Fellow editor, talked briefly, and George Lee Tenney led in the carol singing. Miss Beverly Kirk, soprano soloist, led in "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Pilots in Santa Claus Roles.

In the midst of the program the pilots from nine nearby airports flew in, carrying baskets contributed from these places. Two baskets came from as far as Duluth and Minneapolis. The pilots staggered into the waiting room under their loads, their cheeks red with the cold, straight out of the snowy air, about the most

OLE PUTS IT OVER ON THE ROBBERS, LIKEWISE ON OLE

Ole Gustafson thought of a way last night to foil bandits who might try to rob his poultry store at 7053 South Halsted street while he was busy pointing out the merits of Christmas geese. He just hid $50 between the leaves of his telephone book.

Some time later, the Red Ball Movers, Inc., 2122 North Clark street, who have been busy exchanging new telephone books for old, drove up. One of the movers rushed into the store, shouted a "Merry Christmas" to Gustafson, picked up the old telephone book and hurried out. Gustafson went on with his work for an hour. Then he stopped.

With sudden alarm he ran, holding up his apron with both hands, to see Sergt. James O'Halloran at the Englewood police station. The police ascertained that Gustafson's book, unfortunately, was one of 25,000 packed in a box car ready for shipment to a pulp plant. Sergt. O'Halloran learned also it would be impossible to examine all the books before they were sent away.

Guarding Child Heir Makes a Santa of Otto

The rotund gentleman who stood under the Christmas tree in the home of Mrs. Dorothy Eckhart Williams at 1325 Astor street yesterday afternoon and helped with the gift distribution was not Santa Claus. But everybody, including William Crawford Barry III, 18 months old, grandson of Mrs. Williams and heir to parts of two fortunes, found him as jolly and made him as welcome as if he had been Kris Kringle in person.

Actually the chubby gentleman was, and is, Deputy Sherif Otto Janousek, ordered by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg to stick close to little William and see to it that the youngster appears in court next Monday.

Christmas Spirit Clears the Way.

It might have been expected, under the circumstances, that relations between Deputy Sherif Janousek and Mrs. Williams' household would have been strained. But a little leaven of the Christmas spirit set all things right. The deputy sherif was invited in and given a room.

Little William laughed at him and pulled his ears. As for Janousek—

"This is fine," said he. "I am a bachelor and I didn't have anything particular to do on Christmas. Little Bill likes me and what better could I want?"

Father Fights for Boy.

On Monday little Bill's father, William C. Barry Jr., Hollywood film technician who is the son of a Rochester, N. Y., bank president, requested a writ of habeas corpus to gain possession of the boy.

A hearing on the matter was set for next Monday, and, because Attorney William Waugh for the father expressed the fear that perhaps the youngster would be taken out of Judge Feinberg's jurisdiction, it was arranged that he should stay in the meanwhile under the alert eye of Janousek.

The film technician was divorced in Los Angeles last Aug. 16 by Mrs. Katherine Williams Barry, daughter of Mrs. Williams and a granddaughter of the late B. A. Eckhart, millionaire Chicago miller and capitalist.

Los Angeles Action Recalled.

In his petition, filed with Judge Feinberg, Barry related that his former wife originally had been granted custody of the child, but that on Dec. 5 another hearing had been held in a Los Angeles court which resulted in Mrs. Barry being found unfit to keep him. Custody of the child, Barry said, was given to him.

It was the contention of Attorney Waugh that little William was brought to Mrs. Williams' home here to defeat the new California court order. This was denied by Attorney John Campbell, representing Mrs. Williams. Campbell said that an appeal from the new order has been taken and that consequently the change of custody is not yet in effect.

Little William Is Happy.

William Crawford Barry III. recked little of all this pother. His father visited him twice yesterday, presenting him with a stuffed dog and a stuffed monkey, and took him, along with Deputy Santa Janousek, for a ride in Lincoln park.

Mrs. Williams was aided at the Christmas party by the child's great-grandmother, Mrs. Eckhart. So it can be safely said that William not only is having a merry Christmas but also more attention than other little boys who are not the center of custody fights.

FORECASTER TO GIVE CITY SLED AND SKATE WEATHER APLENTY

It's a white Christmas and it's going to be whiter during the day, according to Forecaster A. W. Cook, who announced last night that his Yuletide present for the city and most of the Great Lakes region would be a moderate snowfall.

Santa Claus probably had a forewarning of this when he dropped sleds, ice skates, skis, toboggans, and hiking boots down Chicago chimneys last night. They will be put to good use during the holidays, predicted Mr. Cook, for another cold spell is on the way from the northwest, and is expected to arrive tomorrow.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific the northern half of the country had similar weather last night. There was snow in most of this region and temperatures fell as low as 16 degrees below zero at Devils Lake, N. D.

Home of Walter D. Scott's Son Looted in Evanston

Burglars entered the home of John M. Scott, 921 Forest avenue, Evanston, last evening and carried out jewelry and Christmas packages after ransacking the entire house. At the time of the burglary Mr. Scott was dining at the home of his father, President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university. He said the loss was at least $1,5[illegible]

It's a World of Democrats to Mr. Boyd

For nine days a conviction has been growing in the mind of George Boyd, 31 years old, 1951 Congress street, that this is a Democratic world. It is now almost a certainty.

Boyd is a Republican. He is also on relief. Until Dec. 16 he did not find these two facts in conflict. But on that day, when he went to the relief station at 739 South Winchester avenue to report the non-arrival of his dole of groceries he was told by a clerk [so Boyd said]: "You'll have to see your Democratic precinct captain.

"I did not like that," Boyd explained later, "so I went to the head clerk there, Mr. Shuley. He said: 'Why don't you do what you're told?'"

He Shoves a Mean Elbow.

This angered Boyd and he shoved a Republican elbow through a glass door, adding in a loud shout:

"You have to be a Democrat to get anything around here."

He was arrested, charged with disorderly conduct and arraigned the next day before Municipal Judge Joseph B. Hermes. In court he remarked that he was a Republican and that since the judge was a Democrat he didn't expect a fair trial.

Thereafter he related that he was a clerk and accountant out of work and declared that he had been persecuted by Democrats ever since he hung a Republican's picture in his front window and worked for him at the polls.

The Other Side Presented.

G. B. Foley, assistant Illinois attorney general, representing the relief commission, declared that Boyd was a transient from Oklahoma and a chronic trouble maker.

After hearing the evidence Judge Hermes fined Boyd $50. As the defendant was started for the Bridewell to serve out the fine he remarked that he intended to go back to the relief station and finish wrecking it. This was reported to the judge and the fine was increased to $100.

In the Bridewell, according to Boyd, he was told to keep quiet about his troubles, "because you're in a Democratic jail."

Mrs. Boyd Goes to Mayor.

A Republican periodical took up a fight for Boyd's release, alleging political discrimination against him. This was not a complete success and Mrs. Boyd appealed in person to Mayor Kelly.

Yesterday the mayor, acting on the recommendation of Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court and of Assistant Attorney General Foley, granted the prisoner a pardon. He was promptly released.

"It took a Democrat to get me out," said Boyd.

20 DIE, 80 HURT IN GERMAN YULE TRAIN SMASHUP

GROSS HERINGEN, Germany, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Twenty persons were killed and 80 injured tonight when an express train rammed a local. Thirty were seriously injured in the crash, which occurred at the station. The local was filled with a holiday crowd.

The express was en route from Berlin to Frankfort-on-Main and was speeding on a special track when it crashed into the local train, which had started to leave the station against a signal.

The bitter cold added to the hardships of rescue workers, who feared that bodies of other passengers may be found in the wreckage.

ENGLISH PLAY UP U. S. SHAME; WILL SUPPLY GUARDS

Reporters Mass for Flyer's Arrival.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 24.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, his wife, the former Anne Morrow, and their son, Jon, are expected to disembark in Liverpool on Sunday or Monday, according to announcements today. It is doubtful whether they will be more successful in escaping publicity in England than in America, if that is one purpose of their hegira.

London newspapers are giving a big play to the Lindbergh decision to come to live in England "as a more law abiding country," and preparations are being made by all news and photographic agencies to exploit fully the vast interest aroused in the flying colonel's decision to quit America.

It was announced, meanwhile, that the docks at Liverpool would be guarded by extra police units upon the arrival of the Lindbergh family. The additional guard was not expected, however, to be large.

Wire Ship for Statements.

Some newspapers are already wiring the steamer American Importer, on which the Lindberghs sailed, for statements. The Daily Telegraph announced today that its wire remained unanswered. Later a reply came through from the ship saying that no one by that name is on board.

It seems certain also that the Lindberghs will be met at Liverpool by as large a crowd of reporters as ever assailed the colonel in New York, unless he manages to get off the ship in some other special way, such as dropping into the pilot's boat as the American Importer comes up the Mersey river.

A great effort is being made to find out what Col. Lindbergh plans to do after he reaches England. Some papers reported he will not stay in England and that he is dickering for a villa on the Riviera.

Visited Sister in 1933.

Others point out that when the Lindberghs were last in England in 1933 they stayed at a hotel in Botley in Hants [Hampshire] and also visited Mrs. Lindbergh's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Neil Morgan, at their home in Cardiff, Wales.

Mrs. Morgan died a year ago and Morgan now lives at Llandaff, Glamorganshire, Wales.

All of today's papers again made much of the Lindbergh flight as an illustration of the impossible criminal conditions in America.

"Humiliation, Indignation."

"Humiliation, combined with indignation, is the dominant note in press comments in the United States about Col. Lindbergh," Reuters [British] news agency cabled from New York. Other New York press comment dubbing the Lindberghs' flight as a public disgrace to the United States is heavily stressed.

The London Times said that Lindbergh made his decision reluctantly but was convinced of the necessity of it after an incident a few days ago in which "the Lindberghs were the victims of a cruel piece of newspaper enterprise."

[This referred, it is believed, to the photographing of Lindbergh's son, Jon, when he was being driven home from school recently by his teacher. Another automobile drew alongside, forced the Lindbergh car to stop. Photographers alighted, took Jon's picture and then drove rapidly away.]

Riviera Report Discounted.

ST. JEAN CAP FERRAT, France, Dec. 24. — (AP) — Reports published abroad that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh would bring his family to the Riviera to live in a villa now belonging to Mrs. Charles Thompson were discounted today by Mrs. Thompson. She said she was unaware that the Lindberghs were coming to Europe and had heard nothing from them.

Thompson, a Cleveland auto accessories magnate, who died four years ago, was a friend of Col. Lindbergh.

U. S. DEMANDS ACTION

New York, Dec. 24.—[Special.]—With Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, his wife and their baby, Jon, observing Christmas eve on board the S. S. American Importer, their tragic flight from their homeland continued to excite caustic criticism of crime conditions in America.

From all over the country came demands that public officials take drastic steps toward permanent suppression of kidnaping and for quick punishment of writers of threatening letters, such as led the Lindberghs to decide to seek a safer haven in England.

Sympathy for the Lindberghs was almost as general as when their first born child, Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., was kidnaped on March 1, 1932. That they now considered it necessary to quit the United States to protect their second son and to spend Christmas on the high seas brought a fresh outpouring of sympathy.

Hauptmann Is Suprised.

Meanwhile, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, sentenced to die the week of Jan. 13 for the murder of the first Lindbergh child, was visited by his wife, Anna, in the death house in Trenton, N. J., and, according to Mrs. Hauptmann, he expressed surprise that the Lindberghs had sailed away.

"What is the matter with them?" she quoted him as saying. "Why does he leave the country?"

Unless the court of pardons intervenes, Hauptmann will go to the electric chair during the week of Jan. 13.

Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, whose recent activity in the Hauptmann case is credited with having been a contributory cause to the departure of Col. Lindbergh, refused comment or to reveal plans of the state pardons board to act upon Hauptmann's plea for a commutation.

In New York, Police Commissioner Valentine expressed the hope that some day the Lindberghs would return to this country. He suggested that the impending execution of Hauptmann may have hastened their leaving.

Seeks to Outreach Appeal.

"Who can blame Col. Lindbergh for placing himself beyond the reach of a possible last minute appeal and the inevitable publicity which would be his for the next few weeks?" he asked.

There was no word from the Lindberghs themselves today, but the progress of their voyage aboard the American Importer was followed closely. They are likely to have a Christmas of bleak skies, rough water and steady driving rain.

The course of their vessel was marked hour by hour by the man who aided the colonel in plotting his weather map when he flew to Paris, eight years ago.

"Storms prevail pretty much all the way," said Dr. James H. Kimball, meteorologist at the weather bureau. "The storms stretch from a point south of Newfoundland pretty well across to the Irish coast, but they are not severe. However, I do not think the Lindberghs will spend much time on deck tomorrow. It is not much like the weather in which he flew."

Ship Makes 18 Knots.

Officials of the line said that the vessel should be making about 18 knots. On that basis, daylight Christmas morning would put the ship near midocean, well to the northeast of New York, south and east of Newfoundland, plowing steadily along on a course north of east.

It was announced that the ship would not stop at Cobh, since there were no passengers for the Irish port, and that with stops eliminated it should arrive in Liverpool on Dec. 30 and at Manchester New Year's eve. Where the Lindberghs will land was not known.

All preparations were made for a Christmas celebration at sea. The line had seen to it that a tree was on board. The Lindberghs took gifts as well as ornaments to brighten the evergreen branches, and there were three big stockings to be hung before the ship's fireplace.

La Guardia Voices Sorrow.

Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, who served in congress for a time with Col. Lindbergh's father, was among those who voiced new demands that criminals be made to feel "the teeth of law enforcement."

"The annoyance and harassing to which Col. Charles Lindbergh and his wife were subjected is certainly deplorable," the mayor said.

"We are going through a strange period, where people seem to take a special delight in writing offensive and threatening letters. Some of us become callous and pay no attention to them. It also seems strange that when any irresponsible person makes an attack upon an official or any one in the public eye, though the attack may be absolutely without justification, it can always get a headline. The importance of the person attacked, rather than the responsibility of the person making it, seems to be news.

"Rather than have Col. Lindbergh voluntarily exile himself, we will chase these punks out of the city."

The New York Times, which first published the news of the departure of the Lindberghs early Sunday morning, was caustic in its comment. It cast further light upon the reasons for the flight, remarking:

"When the second child of the Lindberghs was born, his father made a respectful and proper appeal to the press to inflict no more publicity upon his home. For a while in general this appeal was complied with. Now, at the colonel's own request, a story is told which must horrify every decent citizen of our land. Certain newspapers continued to haunt these too famous Americans. Photographers, with the ruthlessness of gangsters, thrust themselves into the lives of the Lindberghs, and blackmailers, kidnapers and crackbrained threateners of every sort chose them as special marks. The constant pressure of these criminals and the haunting fear of what might happen at the hands of one or more of them finally brought about the resolve to seek a life which could be safely ordered as the Lindberghs might wish in another country."

DROPS SUIT TO HALT EMBARGO ON OIL AND IRON FOR ITALY'S WAR

New York, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Dr. Philip Giordano, formerly owner of an Italian language newspaper, today dropped his effort to enjoin the United States from placing an embargo on oil, scrap iron, cotton, and other commodities consigned to Italy.

Dr. Giorando discontinued his federal court suit after his counsel, former Judge Francis X. Mancuso, had conferred with Francis H. Horan, chief of the civil division of the United States attorney's office.

Mancuso said later that the statement of the national munitions control board saying it lacked legal authority to impose the embargo made Dr. Giorando's proceeding unnecessary.

HIJACKER HELD TO GRAND JURY.

Philip Caliendo, 18 years old, 742 South Damen avenue, arrested last Friday while trying to hijack a $10,000 truck load of shoes, was held to the grand jury in $3,000 bonds by Judge Joseph A. Graber yesterday.

SHE MADE HIM STAY AT HOME; HE ASKS DIVORCE

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Nick Nashos, 41, 721 South 36th street, assistant truck foreman with the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific road, in a divorce action today complained that his wife, Grace, 33, 1018 North Milwaukee street, never would let him attend his club or lodge meetings.

Nashos is entitled to a night out once, he argues, as he has worked steadily for the last 14 years. He married on Sept. 14, 1935. He says his wife left him a month later, after cutting him up with a bread knife, hitting him with a cream jar, and calling him "violent" names.

Mrs. Nashos alleged in a cross bill that her husband deserted her.

Gustave A. Schmidt, 1234 South 35th street, carpenter contractor, was charged with desertion in the divorce action of Mrs. Caroline Schmidt, 5108 West Beloit road. They have been married 30 years.

VIENNESE LOSES SUIT FOR $550,000 IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—L. L. Katay, who had come here from Vienna, Austria, to prosecute a $550,000 breach of contract suit against the Harley-Davidson Motor company, was denied his claim today after a two weeks' jury trial. The jury found the company had not agreed to give plaintif the exclusive sales rights for Austria for 1927, and Katay had suffered no damage because he did not get that contract. The verdict contained a nominal award of six cents as compensatory damages to the company which made a counter claim for $150,000, charging Katay wrote defamatory letters.

ETHIOPIAN RULER ASKS AMERICA TO PRAY FOR PEACE

SendsChristmasMessage Decrying Hostilities.

DESSYE, Ethiopia, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie, in a Christmas message to America, prayed that "the precious principles of peace, sanctified in the death of Christ, may again be restored to a distracted world.

"As leader of one of the oldest Christian nations of the world, I salute Christian America," the emperor said.

"I wish her people continuance of that peace, contentment and filiality with which the great figure, whose birth we celebrate tomorrow, endowed them.

Asks Peace Prayers.

"Our people, whose peaceful pastoral lives are founded upon that of the gentle peacemaker, pray that they may soon be delivered from the horrors of war.

"I pray for America and all great Christian nations to join in that prayer, that the precious principles of peace, sanctified in the death of Christ, may again be restored to a distracted world."

Unconfirmed reports today said northern Ethiopian forces captured Adi Quala, ten miles within Eritrean territory and 50 miles south of Asmara, in Italy's East African colony.

700 Reported Slain.

ROME, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The government announced today that 700 Ethiopians were killed and more than 2,000 wounded in a battle Sunday at Abbi Addi, in the Tembien region of northern Ethiopia. Only 157 Italians were killed, including seven officers, while 173 were wounded, said the communique.

It asserted more than 5,000 Ethiopians, equipped with new Belgian machine guns, were defeated by Eritrean native soldiers, helped by Italian airplanes and artillery.

[Dispatches from Asmara, Eritrea, Monday said 600 Ethiopians were killed and 1,000 wounded in this battle.]

Christmas at the Front.

ASMARA, Eritrea, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The 120,000 native and white soldiers of the Italian army on the northern front, where two Christian nations are at war, began a solemn celebration today of the Christmas holiday.

The last turkey to be seen strutting freely on the streets of Asmara disappeared days ago. Eggs are on the native market, but there is no other sign of a chicken. Even goats are tethered carefully and closely watched, but they will make many a Christmas dinner just the same.

There is nothing here to remind one of Christmas in northern climes. Evergreen is nonexistent, and there is no such thing as laurel amid the lush vegetation, the tropical heat, the pith helmets and the khaki shorts.

Everywhere with the armies in the field chaplains will celebrate masses, but there will be no great outward demonstration or general gatherings such as feature the anniversary of the Natal day in English speaking countries.

Pope and Borah Tangle Over Neutrality Legislation Seen

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Proposals for an expansion of existing neutrality legislation were sounded today on capitol hill, coupled with indications that Idaho's two senators may tangle in the certain battle over such an action.

Senator James P. Pope [Dem., Idaho], joined by Senator Bennett Champ Clark [Dem., Mo.], advocated extension of the present neutrality law, making it mandatory upon the President to shut off arms and munitions from belligerents. Pope, however, announced his intention to seek new power for the President or an administrative board. He would authorize the use of discretion in curbing shipments of war materials such as coal, oil, iron, steel, and cotton.

Borah Opposes Trade Barrier.

The certainty of a scrap over such a provision was emphasized in information that Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], former chairman of the foreign relations committee, opposed any policy that would greatly hamper normal trade between America and world nations. It was learned he felt this nation should not permit its normal trade—even with belligerent nations—to be restricted. He was represented as agreeable to restriction of trade stimulated solely by war.

That the two Idahoans did not see eye to eye in all details of the neutrality program developed with the assertion of Pope that "vague principles of freedom of the seas, in my opinion, should give way before the urgency of keeping this country out of war."

Pope Seeks Changes.

"The very thought of coöperating with the league in enforcement of sanctions," said Pope, an advocate of league adherence, "is so abhorrent to some that it is unlikely such a step could be taken. But certainly we should give the President, or an administrative board, authority to control shipments of war materials such as coal, iron, steel, and oil, so efforts of the league to enforce peace will not be nullified."

While Senator Clark did not touch on other than actual arms and munitions, he emphasized that preservation of the present mandatory arms embargo — which expires Feb. 29 — is urgent. To give the President authority to embargo shipments only to one belligerent, he said, was "not only no good but dangerous."

Hits One-Way Sanctions.

Enforcement of league sanctions against only one country, such as Italy, he said, would be "an act of war." Without mandatory prohibition of shipments of arms to both belligerents, he insisted, "the pressure on any President would be so great that we would most likely do what was done in the last war—drift into it to protect our trade investments."

Pope intends to introduce legislation to give the President or a board such as the National Munitions Control council, created in the present neutrality act, full control of whether materials of war, including oil, steel, and other items, may be shipped to warring nations.

JAPS CUT CHINA'S LAST LINK WITH SOVIET RUSSIA

Capture Trade Center of Inner Mongolia.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KALGAN, Chahar Province, China, Dec. 24.—China's last overland communication with the soviet union is broken today.

Accompanying the declaration Monday of the Inner Mongolian autonomy régime, coöperating with Manchukuo and supported by Japan, town after town has cast its lot with the Japanese.

The vital break came yesterday noon when Changpeh, 30 miles northwest of Kalgan, key city on the Kalgan-Ulan Bator [Urga] trail, capitulated. Japanese, supported by a Mongolian cavalry force, occupied the magistrate's office and the public safety bureau, but Chinese officials had fled hours before.

Changpeh is the distributing point for a vast district. Chinese and foreign merchandise is traded for hides, wool, and furs gathered in Outer Mongolia [which is under soviet influence]. Japanese firms had agents on the ground ready to take over the business.

Fear for Missionaries.

Changpeh is reported quiet, but anxiety is felt here for a number of Canadian missionaries. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hindle and their two sons, Summerland, B. C., members of the Assembly of God, Pentecostal mission. Miss Clara Siegrist, a sister of Mrs. Hindle, accompanied by the 15 year old daughter of the Hindles, who were going to Changpeh for the holidays, have been delayed at Kalgan, due to the refusal of the Chinese to grant permission to travel. THE TRIBUNE correspondent also was refused permission.

Other missionaries cut off in northern Chahar province are Miss Grace Fordham, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Payne, who are British, and several Belgian Catholic and Swedish missionaries.

The Kalgan area now is in the midst of an extreme cold wave with temperature 5 below zero combined with severe dust storms.

An Indefinite Area.

Inner Mongolia's turn to Japan after many centuries of contact with China is still in an indefinite stage, for the attitude of many princes with lands in Suiyuan, Ninghsia, and Tsinghai districts is yet unknown. However, all northern Chahar province has definitly gone to Japan.

The acquisition embraces a corridor of fertile farming and grazing land about 150 miles from south to north and 200 miles from east to west. The southern border begins about 30 miles north of Kalgan and cuts off northern Chahar with a dozen Mongol banners [tribes]. On the north an unsurveyed, indefinite border separates Inner and Outer Mongolia, but finally brings imperial Japan and the Soviet Union face to face.

Inner Mongolia nominally is under the leadership of Prince Teh Wang, with headquarters at Pailingmiao, northwest of Kweihwa, Suiyuan province. The Japanese will now impose a new Mongol leader from the tribe of Dolon nor.

Reject Chinese Banknotes.

The Japanese influence already is apparent. A prominent object in Kalgan is a tall pole bearing a Japanese flag over their military mission. The station agent at Kalgan refuses to accept Chinese government banknotes for tickets. It is reported the Japanese are shipping munitions from Peiping to Kalgan, and thence by truck across the plateau to be presented to Prince Teh Wang.

Full details are just available concerning the only resistance made to the advance of the Japanese in Inner Mongolia. The Chinese peace preservation militia at Kuyuan, northeast of Kalgan, with a force of 150 resisted a mixed force of Japanese and Manchukuans numbering 2,000. An air squadron bombed the town on Dec. 9 and returned Dec. 12. On the latter date the Japanese, using tanks, took the town. The Chinese losses were 50, some being civilians. Japanese losses were raised to 500 because some of the air bombs, deflected by high wind in a dust storm, fell within the Japanese camp.

A Desert Battleground.

The next chapter of the advance in Mongolia inescapably belongs to Japan and the soviet union. Their meeting will be on the high prairies and Gobi desert of Outer Mongolia, a setting where the Mongols slew 17,000 Chinese troops belonging to the Chinese Gen. Hau Hsi-chang, who tried to occupy the territory about a dozen years ago.

Outer Mongolia, which the Japanese seem determined to invade, became independent in 1911 when the Manchu throne collapsed at Peiping. In 1915 Outer Mongolia, China, and Russia signed a treaty, China agreeing to the autonomy.

Following the withdrawal from Siberia [in 1920] of the American expedition under Maj. Gen. William S. Graves, the soviets sent a force into Outer Mongolia and [in 1921] defeated and massacred the White Russian forces of the "mad baron" Gen. Michel Ungern-Sternberg. The Outer Mongolian republic on the soviet model was set up in 1924.

The soviets have kept forces at Ulan Bator until they were recently withdrawn. The soviet consul Dimitrieff at Kalgan told this correspondent Outer Mongolia is certain to fight desperately to protect its "independence."

[Gen. Graves, later commander of the Sixth corps area [Chicago], in a book published in 1931, accused the Japanese military of having ulterior designs on the future of eastern Siberia from Lake Baikal to the Pacific.]

Army Watches Students.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 25.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—Gen. Wu Teh-chen, mayor of greater Shanghai, established military control today over areas in which students are centering their agitation against North China autonomy in an effort to crush the movement in this vicinity.

The mayor as commander of the local Chinese defense garrison ordered his forces to eject students from the North railway station, permitting a resumption of trafic which has been delayed since Monday.

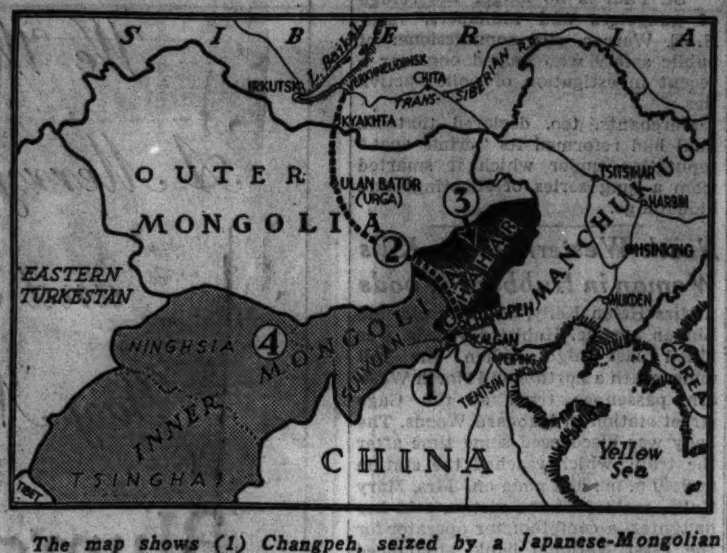
Japanese officialdom here evinced interest in the activities of the students when Japanese Consul-General Itaro Ishii informed the mayor that the "Japanese hoped the mayor would immediately suppress any anti-Japanese activities." This revelation of Japanese impatience with student activities was considered generally as the cause of the mayor's positive action.

Haul Trains to Country.

On the pretext of agreeing to haul the students to Nanking, where they want to protest against the Japanese fostered North China autonomy, the authorities sent locomotives to pull the heavily-loaded student trains out of the station. The trains were halted thirty miles east of Shanghai, where engines were uncoupled and the students were left in unheated cars.

At the station itself, where thousands of shouting and singing students forced their way past barbed wire and police cordons to reinforce colleagues who had seized the depot Monday, the situation for a time took on a menacing aspect. Police, who had struggled apparently unarmed with the students, suddenly displayed machine guns and clubs. Serious incidents were narrowly averted.

SEIZE KEY TO "OVERLAND TRAIL"



The map shows (1) Changpeh, seized by a Japanese-Mongolian force to control all overland communication between China and Soviet Russia over the (2) Kalgan-Ulan Bator (Urga) route. All of northern Chahar province (3) now is under Japanese control with the sympathies of princes of western Inner Mongolia (4) still in doubt.

CLIPPER FLIES TO HONOLULU IN RECORD TIME

HONOLULU, T. H. Dec. 24.—(AP)—The Philippine Clipper, swept along by strong tail winds, alighted at Pearl harbor at 4 p. m. [8:30 p. m. Chicago time] today from Midway Islands on its return flight from Manila to California.

The time for the 1,323 mile flight was seven hours, 27 minutes, one hour and 49 minutes faster than the previous record. The average speed of the great flying boat was 175 miles an hour but at times it swept along betwen 210 and 215 miles an hour.

The huge seaplane was a substitute Santa Claus at lonely Midway. Capt. J. H. Tilton brought gifts from Manila, Guam, and Wake to two children and a dozen adults there. Capt. Edwin C. Musick had been cast in the St. Nick rôle, but his China Clipper was forced to take its Christmas load back to Alameda after hitting a storm earlier this week.

7,000 MOTORISTS THRONG STATE'S LICENSE OFFICE

More than 7,000 motorists thronged the state license bureau at 120 South Ashland avenue yesterday, and about 5,000 visited the city hall to get their 1936 city vehicle windshield stickers. Only five "shopping" days remain in which to comply with the order that all cars must have 1936 licenses on Jan. 1. Stanley Kosinski, in charge of the state branch office, said it will be kept open evenings if increasing crowds make this necessary.

Fine 2 for Shortweighting Relief Families on Coal

Henry Peters, 1751 Monroe street, and Tony Bagnasco, 1438 Clybourn avenue, were fined $25 each by Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten yesterday for shortweighting relief clients 10 per cent on coal deliveries. Each was also fined $25 for delivering coal without a weighmaster's certificate.

KILLS HIS WIFE, TWO OF FAMILY AND SELF; 2 SHOT

Ex-Policeman Fires as Mate Trims Tree.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Entering the home of his estranged young wife as she was trimming a Christmas tree tonight, John W. Rodgers, a 55 year old former policeman, shot and killed her, then killed his mother-in-law, one of his three young children, and himself.

The other two children, wounded by bullets fired through blankets under which they were sleeping, were taken in a critical condition to a hospital.

Neighbors, engaged in Christmas eve festivities, heard three shots fired in quick succession, a brief period of silence, and then three more shots. The shooting took place in West Philadelphia, where Mrs. Eloise Rodgers, the former policeman's wife, 24 years old, was living with her mother and father.

Released from Prison.

The dead, in addition to Rodgers and his wife, were Mrs. Nellie Downs, the mother-in-law, and Jacqueline, 7. William Rodgers, 5, and Adele Rodgers, 3, were not expected to live.

Rodgers, released only two and one half months ago from the county prison, where he served a 9 months terms after vowing to kill his wife on another occasion, made good a threat which he voiced in open court at the time of his sentencing.

"When I get out," he said, "I'll kill the whole —— bunch."

Rodgers' threats had been a matter of public discussion in the neighborhood but residents did not appear to know the nature of the estrangement between him and his young wife. Only last week, two months after his release from prison, he was ordered reinstated to the police force by the civil service commission but he had not actually resumed uniform.

Wife Decorating Tree.

When he entered the living room of his wife's home tonight Mrs. Rodgers was on a stepladder finishing the task of putting glittering decorations on the tree in preparation for the children's Christmas. His mother-in-law was in the kitchen. His brother-in-law, Harry, 18, was helping Mrs. Rodgers.

At the sound of Rodgers' entrance and his sister's scream, Harry turned.

The former policeman pointed the gun at him menacingly, and with an oath ordered the youth out, warning, "or I'll kill you, too."

The lad ran out through the rear door to a store on the corner, where he telephoned police.

As Harry fled his mother fell down the back steps, shot fatally in the abdomen. A second earlier Rodgers had shot his wife from the stepladder. Rodgers was found dead in an upstairs hall way, gun in hand and a bullet through his heart.

The children had each been shot once, apparently before they awakened.

Three children's stockings, not yet filled, hung on the edge of a table near the Christmas tree. Several candy canes rested on top of the stepladder from which Mrs. Rodgers' body plunged.

Mrs. Downs, lying in the back yard, was still conscious when policemen reached the house. Hearing their footsteps she murmured:

"Yes, he got us. He got every one of us. He didn't miss a one."

Boy Kills Stepmother.

Told that "all he deserved for Christmas dinner was bread and water," Joseph McElroy, 17 years old, shot and killed his stepmother, Mrs. Lillian McElroy, 45.

The shooting took place while the youth's father, Thomas McElroy, a Fairmount park guard, was standing in a doorway exchanging greetings with passing friends.

The boy's sister, Marian, 16 an eyewitness of the shooting, said Mrs. McElroy upbraided him at the dinner table, then continued to taunt him after the meal.

Yuma, Ariz., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Claudette Colbert, glamorous screen star, and Dr. Joel E. Pressman motored here from Hollywood today and were married by Justice of the Peace Earl A. Freeman. Miss Colbert kissed the justice when he completed the ceremony.

Dr. Pressman, a Los Angeles physician, gave his age as 34 and said his native home was Philadelphia. The bride said she was 28 and signed Paris, France, opposite her name. They were accompanied by Miss Colbert's brother, Charles Wendling, of Paris. Immediately after the ceremony the three returned to Hollywood.

Miss Colbert was divorced six months ago from Norman Foster, screen actor, in Juarez, Mexico. Dr. Pressman's divorce decree from his first wife became final last week.

FIVE ARE KILLED IN HEADON CRASH NEAR FREEPORT

6th Critically Hurt; Unable to Tell of Tragedy.

Four men and a girl were fatally injured in the crash of two automobiles early yesterday near Pecatonica, twelve miles east of Freeport.

The dead are John Gee, 32 years old, and his cousin, George Gee, 28, both of Lockport township; Miss Myra Hassett, 25, who lived on Dawes avenue in Joliet; John D. Cook, 33, of Rockford, and Baxter Gott of Burlington, Ia.

Miss Lois Ludwig, 25 years old, of Orland Park, was injured in the crash and was taken to a Freeport hospital in a critical condition.

En Route on Yule Visit.

The Gee cousins and Miss Hassett and Miss Ludwig were en route to Cottonwood, Minn., to spend Christmas day with relatives of the Gees. Cook and Gott were on their way, in Cook's car, to Rockford, where Cook was to have joined his wife and their 9 year old son.

Apparently radio sets in both cars were operating when the machines met head on. Christmas gifts from both cars were scattered over the highway. Miss Ludwig, the only survivor, was in such a critical condition that she could not tell details of the crash.

Mrs. Josephine Coyle, 56 years old, 2032 West Chicago avenue, was killed and her son George, 13, seriously injured last night when, police believe, they were struck by a hit and run driver. Mrs. Coyle's body was found at Western avenue and Erie street with her injured son unconscious a few feet away. Christmas boxes were scattered near by. The mother and son were found by Joseph Pasquatta, 708 North Oakley avenue, who took them to St. Elizabeth's hospital. Police could find no witnesses to the accident.

Policeman Seriously Hurt.

Policeman Frank Owen, 58 years old, 1542 North Laramie avenue, assigned to the Cragin station, was seriously injured last night when he was hit by a taxicab driven by Russell Mattern, 37 years old, 3914 Pine Grove avenue, as he stepped off a safety island at North and Lavergne avenues . He was taken to St. Anne's hospital.

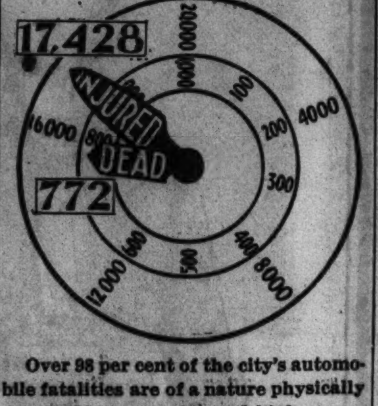
George Honsinger, 65 years old, 64 East Chestnut street, a clerk, died yesterday, in St. Luke's hospital of injuries in curred on Dec. 19 when he was struck by an automobile driven by Ralph Seeley, 2604 Eastwood avenue, Evanston, while crossing the street in front of 104 South State street.

William Gunkel, 46 years old, 520 West Oakdale avenue, real estate operator, with offices at 77 West Washington boulevard, suffered a broken right hip when he was struck by an automobile at North Clark street and Washington boulevard last night. Gunkel was standing on a safety island when he was struck by a car driven by Gordon B. Guilliams, 1886 Lyman court, Highland Park, president of a sales promotion company. The injured man was taken to Henrotin hospital. Guilliams was not held.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 992 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In the same period 772 were killed and 17,428 injured within the Chicago city limits.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

PHOTOSTAT ROOM IN COUNTY OFFICE ATTRACTS NOTICE

Numerous requests have been received from county and municipal officials in the central west for permission to inspect the new photostatic studio of the Cook county recorder's office, Recorder Edward J. Kaindl said yesterday. The first of the delegations coming to inspect the department, Mr. Kaindl said, will be officials of Milwaukee, who are to spend a day here shortly after the first of the year.

The photostatic system provides a safeguard against fraud and forgery and is considered one of the best of its kind in the country, according to Mr. Kaindl. Originally installed by the county board in 1925 at a cost of $40,000, the department recently has been renovated and enlarged simultaneously with its removal from the tenth floor to th basement of the county building. Ten photostatic machines, capable of recording 10,000 pages daily, are operated.

Former Chief of Cuban Army Hit by Street Car

DETECTIVE WORK OF WPA MEN PINS DEATH ON DRIVER

Rake Up Broken Handle and Farmer Confesses.

Ingenious detective work, in which 15 WPA workers aided, brought the arrest and confession yesterday of the hit and run motorist whose automobile struck and killed Eltge De Groot, 46 years old, a South Holland farmer, near De Groot's home on Friday evening.

The youth arrested is William Lenting, 18 years old, son of another farmer from South Holland. Confronted with evidence gathered by Chief of Police Leonard Lagestee of South Holland and Policeman William Levy of the Homewood county highway station, he admitted his guilt. He was immediately held to the grand jury in $5,000 bail on a charge of manslaughter by Justice of the Peace Jacob De Young of South Holland.

Killed Walking Beside Road.

De Groot was killed as he was walking beside the Indiana highway near 159th street. Witnesses gave a partial description of the car, which put on speed and vanished after striking the farmer.

On Monday Cornelius Van Kanegan, owner of a garage in South Holland, reported to Chief Lagestee that a car answering the description of the one sought had been brought in for repairs for dents in the side and a broken door handle.

Rake Area for Evidence.

Young Lenting and his brother, Andrew, were questioned, but denied participation in the fatal accident. At Policeman Levy's request 15 workers on a nearby Works Progress administration project were put raking the road shoulders near the accident scene.

They found a piece of broken door handle that exactly fitted the damaged one on the Lanting automobile. Told of this fact, William Lanting admitted he was the driver of the death car.

"I lost my head after the car struck the man," the youth said. "I ran away in panic and didn't tell my family what happened."

CHRISTMAS; FOR MOLLY IT MEANS A RETURN TO SHOPLIFTER'S CELL

Once Molly Gavin was regarded as the most adroit moll buzzer in America. [A moll buzzer is a woman pickpocket who specializes in picking the purses of other women.] But the years have not dealt kindly with Molly, who is 56 years old. Her hair is white, her face is seamed, and her luck is gone.

Yesterday a policeman seized her as she was trying to steal a $25 bottle of perfume in a loop store. Taken to the detective bureau, she wouldn't give her real name and nobody present had ever seen her before. She screamed and clenched her fists, smearing her finger prints each time the police tried to take them.

For two hours this went on. Then Sergt. John Noonan, a veteran pickpocket catcher, appeared. "I know you, Molly," he said. "It's been over 30 years since you started as a moll buzzer. You served prison terms in Pennsylvania and Wisconsin for picking pocketbooks. You've been arrested in a dozen towns for the same thing. Ten years ago you quit. Why are you at this game now?"

Molly Gavin moaned. "I lost all the money I had. I wanted that perfume to send to an old friend. I'd have bought it, but I haven't got a cent. It's Christmas time." So saying she put her finger prints on a pad and didn't smear them.

Three Leap from Auto as Train Wrecks It

Racine, Wis., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Fred Tuttle, 40, 838 Hayes avenue; his wife, Verna, and a daughter, Evelyn, tonight jumped out of their automobile a few seconds before it was wrecked by a passenger train on the 16th street crossing of the North Western. The Tuttles managed to save their Christmas presents. William Shovers, the gateman, was flagging trafic and he said Mr. Tuttle's car slid on the snow covered pavement onto the tracks.

HUNT FOR DEATH CAR IN LIGGETT SLAYING FAILS

Indicted Suspect Plans to Stand on Alibi.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Police and officials in charge of the Walter Liggett murder investigation today said they were still pressing their search for new clews in the case, but that efforts to find trace of the car from which the publisher was slain and the machine gun with which he was shot Dec. 9 so far have been fruitless.

Isadore [Kid Cann] Blumenfeld, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of first degree murder in the case yesterday, remained in jail today. At his arraignment a plea for "reasonable bail" was denied by Judge Frank E. Reed and Cann's attorney, Thomas McMeekin, said he would not appeal Judge Reed's ruling.

Named Killer by Two.

Cann, sales manager of a liquor firm, has been identified by two eye witnesses to the killing as the machine gunner who shot Liggett.

As McMeekin was preparing for the trial on Jan. 20 he said that Cann will stand on his alibi in the fight to clear himself.

"The defendant came to police headquarters voluntarily within a short time after the murder and gave a detailed statement of his movements," McMeekin said. "This statement will constitute his defense, with practically no modifications. There will be no effort to obtain a change of venue."

St. Paul Held Example.

Before the special session of the state legislature, Speaker of the House George W. Johnson today advised Minneapolis to take after St. Paul's "splendid example" in cleaning up crime.

"St. Paul is no longer the refuge of gangsters and kidnapers," said H. E. Warren, city commissioner of public safety who helped engineer a recent investigation of police activities.

Merchants, too, declared that St. Paul had reformed its "crime spot" reputation under which it smarted from a long series of shootings and kidnapings.

North Western Train Kills Woman in Hubbard Woods

Miss Helen Kelly, 33 years old, 918 Linden avenue, Hubbard Woods, was killed last night when she fell underneath a northbound North Western passenger train at the Gage street station in Hubbard Woods. The body was discovered some time after the train, which reached the station at 9:40 p. m., had gone on. Mrs. Mary Kelly, mother of the victim, said her daughter, a comptometer operator for the First National bank, announced she would arrive on this train. It was the opinion of the police that she slipped and fell under the wheels immediately after she had left the train.

ADD TO STRANGE CLEWS IN DEATH OF THELMA TODD

Hope for New Leads in Probe of Finances.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—The maze of strange leads in the mysterious death of Thelma Todd remained untangled tonight as the grand jury recessed until Friday its hunt for murder clews.

An intimation that little headway was being made in the case was seen in the comment of George Rochester, grand jury foreman, that there are "too many peculiar circumstances here." He declined to discuss the remark further but said the investigation probably would require another two weeks.

Rochester said a subpena had been issued for Zasu Pitts, screen star, who formerly teamed with Miss Todd. According to an unverified report Miss Todd lunched with Miss Pitts and two men the Saturday before her death. The men were said to be Miss Pitts' husband, Ed Woodall, and an unnamed escort of Miss Todd.

Tells of Wednesday Luncheon.

Woodall said there was no luncheon meeting on that Saturday but that he and his wife had lunched with Miss Todd the preceding Wednesday, after which the two women went Christmas shopping.

A. Ronald Button, former attorney for Miss Todd, appeared in the case today and told a deputy district attorney he had information "of the utmost importance" to present to the grand jury. He would not go into detail, but said it dealt in part with Miss Todd's financial affairs.

This line of attack was started after a surprising story by Mrs. Helen Ainsworth, a hat shop proprietress. Mrs. Ainsworth told the grand jury's investigators that the dead movie star had been in her shop the Wednesday before her death.

"She told me," Mrs. Ainsworth said, "you better get your money from me now, because I may be broke by the first of the year; a great many changes are going to take place in my life by Jan. 1.

Hear Business Losing Money.

It was said that she also told the investigators:

"Our business at the Sidewalk Café has been losing money, and there has been a little trouble. My motion picture contract at Hal Roach studio runs out after the New Year. I really don't know that I have anything much to live for."

Mrs. Ainsworth said that Miss Pitts was present in her shop at the time and that "I thought she overheard the whole conversation."

Attorney Button disclosed that Miss Todd did not carry life insurance but would leave an annuity of almost $25,000 to her mother. He said the mother also will receive approximately $100,000 in securities. The will is expected to be filed for probate Thursday.

Another development in the widening case was the stories of two men that they had been warned to "stay out of the Todd case." Police were guarding the homes of the men while their stories were being investigated.

Alexander Hounie, head waiter at the restaurant where Miss Todd attended a party in her honor on the night preceding her death, said he received new threats against his life. He said he received a telephone call last night saying he would be killed "unless you stay out of that Thelma Todd case."

Witness Told to "Forget."

The other man threatened was Jerry Cummings, proprietor of a Christmas tree lot in Santa Monica. He had told police he saw Miss Todd alive last Sunday, several hours after detectives believe she died of carbon monoxide fumes from her auto engine.

Cummings said a man approached him on his lot and said: "Well, you've got a good memory on the Todd case, but don't stretch it too far. There's been a lot of talking about it and if I were you I wouldn't have much more to do with it."

139 PRE-CHRISTMAS MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED; CUPID LOSING

Pre-Christmas marriage licenses numbering 139 were issued yesterday, a decline of 37 compared with the same day last year, figures compiled by Sidney Summerfield, clerk of the marriage license bureau showed. The falling off, typical for the month, indicates a return to normalcy, Summerfield declared.

"More people were marrying last year because they had just landed jobs and had the necessary three dollars," he said. "Also, the Fair last year brought many here to pad the marriage totals. This year, and particularly during the last few months, we seem to be hitting our normal stride," Summerfield said.

Among the licenses issued during the day was one to Martha Szymanskk, 39 years old, 3956 East 90th street, who will marry John Smida, 50, of 9518 Manistee avenue, father of nine children. As a preliminary to her permanent assignment, the future Mrs. Smida prepared the Christmas eve dinner for the Smida family.

TYPHOON SINKS TWO BOATS; U. S. NAVY RESCUES 37

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Thirty-seven Filipino fishermen, marooned when a typhoon capsized their two boats, were rescued today by the United States navy ship Genesee as lashing winds grounded the American steamship Golden Peak. The fishermen were stranded on a rock off the coast of Rosario, in Cavite province.

Heavy crop, highway, bridge, and property damage was reported from the provinces hit by the typhoon, although no loss of life occurred.

The Golden Peak, 7,000 ton vessel owned by the Oceanic-Oriental Line, grounded off Tandoc, province of Camarines Sur. No fear was felt for the ship or crew and the vessel was expected to be floated in a day or two.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

8 ARMY LEADERS GET PROMOTIONS FROM PRESIDENT

Westover Wins Command of Air Corps.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Christmas present promotions were given today by President Roosevelt to eight high ranking officers of the army.

He announced the appointment of three to key posts in the war department and the elevation of five others to higher grades.

Leading the list was Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, acting chief of the air corps, who was given full command of that branch with the rank of major general. He succeeds Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, who has applied for retirement. Foulois' resignation was demanded earlier this year by a congressional committee in connection with his method of aircraft purchases.

New Adjutant General.

A new adjutant general was appointed in the person of Brig. Gen. Edgar T. Conley, who had been acting in that post since the retirement of Maj. Gen. James F. McKinley.

Col. Walter L. Reed, on duty in the office of the inspector general, was named inspector general to replace Maj. Gen. John F. Preston, whose four year term recently expired.

Both Conley and Reed automatically assume the rank of major general.

The President, on recommendation of Secretary Dern, promoted Brigadier Generals Andrew Moses and William E. Cole to major generals of the line and Colonels Duncan K. Major, Walter C. Sweeney, and Edwin S. Hartshorn to be brigadier generals of the line.

Vacancies in these ranks were occasioned by retirements.

Moses has been on duty in the chief of staf's office in Washington; Cole commands the 2nd coast artillery district, New York; Major is serving on the war department general staf; Sweeney commands the 38th infantry at Fort Douglas, Utah, and Hartshorn is in the chief of staf's office.

Contract Criticism Recalled.

Gen. Westover has been assistant chief of the air corps under Foulois, and, since the latter went on leave to await retirement from the army at the end of this month, acting head.

Maj. Gen. Foulois' policy of negotiated contracts in army airplane purchases evoked a congressional investigation at which that system was criticized sharply and the house military affairs committee called on Secretary Dern to ask for Foulois' resignation.

The war secretary refused to comply but he instituted a new system of awarding contracts through competitive bidding. Maj. Gen. Foulois was absolved of any wrong doing but he was criticized for giving the house military affairs committee misleading information.

Applies for Leave.

At the height of the controversy between the committee and the war department, Foulois last August applied for and was granted an extended leave of absence pending his retirement.

No successor for Westover as assistant chief of the air corps has been announced. Also remaining to be filled are such key posts in the army high command as chief of the national guard bureau, quartermaster general, and chief of finance.

GOOD FELLOWS SPREAD JOY TO POOR CHILDREN

Needy Homes Brightened All Over Chicago.

realistic representation of Santa Claus possible.

They could not land in the chimneys straight from the north pole, but they landed on a snow covered field and took their gifts by automobile direct to the homes.

Edgar's Prayer Is Answered.

There was a story last Sunday about a boy called "I'm Edgar—12," who needed a friend badly. He had taken upon his thin shoulders the task of finding a Good Fellow for his six younger brothers and sisters. It is permissible now to tell how his prayer was answered.

"I'm Edgar—12" sat at the breakfast table yesterday without much hope in his heart, evidently, for his mother said the tears rolled down his cheeks as he contemplated the empty home and the cheerless prospect for Christmas there.

At noon, however, as father and mother and seven children were eating bread and cheese in the kitchen, a great knock came at the kitchen door and two men staggered in with heavy boxes. One box contained two toys for each of the children, wrapped in gay paper and with the children's names written there.

A Tree and Everything.

The other box was heavy with turkey and potatoes, canned goods, sugar, candy and vegetables. A Christmas tree was brought in. The front room was swept and garnished and the happy family prepared to wake up to a bright Christmas, the best they have had in years.

"I wouldn't have had anything if it hadn't been for you," said Edgar, who got a new pair of pants in addition to his other gifts.

"We will go to church at 5 o'clock in the morning," said the mother, "and thank God for this."

"This" came from money sent in to the Good Fellow fund. In addition the "relief" supplied half a ton of coal and Edgar's father had a $22 WPA pay check.

Down on the south side a mother of four, a colored woman who tries to keep her house clean and bring up her children to be "good Christian citizens," was made happy by another basket out of the Good Fellow fund. She has to support her brood by sewing and washing and there was nothing in sight for Christmas except a little gift from the church where she sings in the choir.

The taxi driver who helped carry in the basket and stood to watch the joy of the children was actually blubbering as he left the house.

"I'm pretty tough sometimes," he said, "but that sort of thing gets me."

GOOD FELLOWS' NOTEBOOK

Here are a few real pictures reported by THE TRIBUNE workers who went out to 436 families with Christmas baskets:

The face of a little girl with blue eyes, her head covered with dark ringlets, was watching from between cheap lace curtains in a north side flat over a restaurant.

"Mother, I believe that's Santa Claus down there," she cried as a taxi driver came towards her door with a huge basket.

Five children, from this 6 year old girl down to her 22 month old brother, soon found that it was indeed Santa Claus. They all got dolls and there was a teddy bear for the baby. The father, who is ill and on relief, said:

"They would have had no Christmas at all."

The Small Boys Go to It.

Another home.

A torn lace curtain at the window with a sprig of holly in it.

"Merry Christmas," called the Good Fellow visitor down the long damp corridor.

"Man, oh man, wait'll I get those," a towheaded boy of 11 was soon yelling as he tore at the wrappings on the basket. Three small brothers struggled with him and toys, oranges, celery and potatoes were soon mixed up on the floor. The mother appeared around the corner of the washing hanging up in the dining room. She soon brought order into the household.

"I don't have words to thank you," she said.

At the Egans' there were five who stood and stared, hardly able to believe that this wonderful basket was for them. The mother watched her brood in tear choked silence.

"God bless you," she said. "We'll never forget."

Nancy Is Made Happy.

There isn't a happier little girl in Chicago this Christmas than curly headed, blue eyed, 2 year old Nancy who lives on West Goethe street, two floors up. She is the baby in a family of eight. Two beds for the family and a few broken chairs and a table. But it is all made glorious by the dolls, the tea set, the blocks, blankets, and turkey dinner that went into this home yesterday.

In another flat nearby a lovely, dark haired, clear skinned young mother was found nursing her six months old baby near the kitchen stove. There are two other children and the family has only been on relief ten days. Their savings have just run out.

Their tiny dark flat, however, is immaculately kept, and they were happy yesterday over the gifts from the unknown heart that was moved to help someone. It happened to be this brave young mother.

At 25 another young mother finds herself deserted with five children, the eldest 8. The baby, 7 months old, was wrapped in a cotton shirt and a piece of old curtaining. The 2 year old was warmly kissing a baby doll on the floor.

"O," exclaimed the mother as she opened the basket, "it is too much, I can't say anything."

The family were soon saying many things, however. There was a pink baby box filled with warm things, a new toy for the baby to cut teeth on, a doll for the older girl, a train of cars, a ping-pong set. And the basket had a turkey in it.

"I haven't seen one like that since I came to Chicago from Oklahoma ten years ago," said the mother. Her eyes were full of tears. Living on $7 a week, with one quart of milk, is hard work.

Wreaths, but Little Food.

A home on West Roosevelt road had two tiny red wreaths swinging in the windows, but once inside it was found there was no furniture in the first room. There were no carpet, no lights, no stove. The dining room was empty, too, for the family has retreated to the kitchen. There were a few onions on the shelf and some bread, nothing else.

"It might have been onions for Christmas," said the Irish mother. "Now we'll eat."

"Tribune Good Fellow—we are home. You can find us in the house in the rear."

This notice was found on a Burling street door when the Good Fellow cab arrived. The wrong address had been supplied at first and the mother in this home learned that the Good Fellows were looking for her. She did not want to be missed as her five children had no prospect of even a good meal on Christmas and the coal supply was running low. There were four trains of cars in the basket for the boys and the first turkey that the family has had in three years.

Out on Grand avenue a mother of four had planned a stew for Christmas dinner. When the turkey came she could not get it in her oven. Neighbors, however, offered to let her cook it in their stove. This little family came from an Oregon farm which they lost by foreclosure and they have been on relief the last two years.

Five little Irish girls greeted the Good Fellow at a home on Hastings street. Mother had explained to them that Santa Claus could not visit them so the girls were playing with dolls cut out of newspapers. Now they all had real dolls and play dishes, puzzles, and other toys. This is the family of an ex-service man.

For the first time within the memory of the seven Vernon children, Negroes, whose ages range from 3 months to 9 years, there will be toys to play with at Christmas. This mother, too, had told the children that Santa Claus was too busy to visit them and so she was forced to explain how happily she had been mistaken.

Aviation Good Fellows Take Baskets to the Poor

Group gathered around 186 Good Fellow baskets at the Chicago airport yesterday before the Good Fellows started out to make their deliveries. Pilots, stewardesses and air line officials participated.

and his. All socks and bundles will be opened at that time.

After the exchange of gifts the President and his family will go to the east room of the White House to see the Christmas tree sheltering further gifts under its boughs. Unwrapping of these gifts is to be followed by attendance at church services in St. Thomas' Episcopal church.

Christmas began for the White House at noon today when the President received 170 members of the executive staf. Each was given an oxidized silver match box bearing the presidential seal after a hearty Yuletide greeting.

Later in the day he received the personnel staf and their families. To the children the President distributed toys and to the elders a warm seasonal greeting.

Mrs. Roosevelt Busy.

Mrs. Roosevelt also had a busy day. At 9 o'clock in the morning she aided in the distribution of gifts at a local theater. At 2:30 in the afternoon she played a similar rôle at the Salvation Army headquarters. Later she was with the President at the White House functions.

Mr. Roosevelt spent a quiet official day at the White House. There were virtually no appointments. In the executive offices he received the greetings of cabinet members and department heads.

Ambia, Ind., Couple Marks 62d Wedding Anniversary

CHRISTMAS TREE DEMAND SWAMPS CHICAGO DEALERS

City 145,000 Short; Prices Rocket.

Faced with an unexpected demand for their wares this year, dealers in Christmas trees discovered during the last three days that the Chicago market was more than 145,000 trees short. Consequently the few remaining spruce and balsam last night brought double or treble their normal prices, a survey indicated.

This situation was taken as another omen of better business conditions. Where dealers in former years found themselves loaded with a surplus and sold the last ones for 25 cents, the big retailers and wholesalers at midnight last night were disposing easily of the few remaining trees for $2 and $3.

Search Around the City.

In outlying districts householders, who forgot until the last moment, rushed to the neighborhood grocery or filling station, but found them sold out. Many of these disappointed fathers drove down to the big markets on Randolph street, South Water market, and 23d street and Racine avenue, where they found a few of the wholesalers disposing of their last greenery.

"Usually I get stuck with at least a car load," declared Joseph Navilio, 1047 West Randolph street. "But I tried to buy a car load this afternoon and there was none to be had. These last trees on hand are going for $2 and $3. Last year they would have been a quarter."

This situation was typical throughout Chicago. A week ago a small balsam would be sold for 75 cents. Two days ago the same tree was sold for $2.50.

Eager to Buy at $5.

Other prices were similar. The $1.50 trees were up to $3 and $3.50, while the more expensive trees which brought $2.50 to $3 a week or two weeks ago, in the last few days were in demand at from $4 to $5.

"Good times are here again," commented one wholesaler, "but I wish I had realized it months ago when I ordered. Because I was stuck last year, I even made my order a little less this time."

At the Wabash railroad freight depot, where most of the trees entering Chicago are cleared, it was explained by one official dealers here cut their orders from the producing states of Montana, Minnesota, Maine, Washington, and Canada by 50 car loads this year.

As a result the market was about 150 carloads short. At the last minute yesterday 10,000 trees were rushed in from Milwaukee, exhausting the supply there after prices 40 per cent better than in 1934 had prevailed.

QUINTS' BROTHERS AND SISTERS JOIN YULE FETE TODAY

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets may be the big Christmas attraction in their hospital home tomorrow, but it will be their five older brothers and sisters who will do most of the celebrating. A large parcel of candies, nuts, and other presents unsuitable for the "quints" will be put in one large box for the other Dionnes.

Olive Dionne, father of the famous babes, and Mrs. Dionne will attend the Christmas dinner at the hospital, 100 yards from their home. Rose, Teresa, Pauline, Ernest and Daniel, the other children, are anxious for their first real opportunity to play with their little sisters.

CAROLERS GIVE CHRISTMAS EVE ANCIENT CHARM

A Crisp Snow and a Clear Night Add Beauty.

Choruses of young voices echoed through many neighborhoods of Chicago last night in keeping of the tradition of Christmas eve serenading. Some were strolling groups of school children and others were bands of church singers. Their effect was heightened by the clear night and the white brightness of the evening.

Thirty girls of the glee club of Mundelein college arrived at 7:30 p. m. before the residence of Cardinal Mundelein at 1555 North State parkway, and placed two wreaths on the theshold. The door opened and the girls at the foot of the stairs began their traditional caroling for the cardinal. The prelate appeared at the head of the stairs. In greeting them he expressed special pleasure when they sang "Ihr Kinderlein Kommet" [The Children Come], his favorite Christmas song.

"I knew that before I knew 'Adeste Fidelis'," the cardinal told the girls.

The singers were taken upstairs to see the Christmas tree and the Christmas crib in his private chapel.

In front of the residence of William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, at 741 Gordon terrace, 175 students from Steinmetz High school stood in the snow and sang in six languages. "Adeste Fidelis," "Tannenbaum," and "Oh Come All Ye Faithful" were among their selections. Mr. Bogan greeted the young singers.

The final program of THE TRIBUNE'S fifth annual Christmas carols will be heard from 11 to 11:45 o'clock this morning from the tower and will also be broadcast over W-G-N. The program will be given by the Civic Choral society of Chicago and by Leonard Salvo, W-G-N organist.

Homeward bound throngs last night heard the carols sung from the tower and amplified by a loud speaker system. The program, the first fifteen minutes of which was broadcast, included Christmas and sacred music by St. Paul's Episcopal choir, the W-G-N orchestra, conducted by Henry Weber, and selections by Mr. Salvo. Attilio Baggiore, tenor of W-G-N, and Harry Woods, Ernest Hepke and Jules Line, soloists of the St. Paul's choir, sang.

The program of carols this year began Dec. 20 and was given every day until Christmas.

ROOSEVELT SENDS CHRISTMAS GREETING TO U. S. COAST GUARD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—(AP)—President Roosevelt dispatched the following holiday message today to the personnel of the United States coast guard:

"Your duties so closely connected with the welfare and progress of the nation have been faithfully and ably performed and the splendid traditions of the coast guard extending back to the early days of the republic have been carried on.

"My best wishes to all of you for a merry Christmas and a happy New Year."

CHIEF OF AUSTRIA STRESSES PEACE IN YULE MESSAGE

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Dr. Kurt von Schuschnigg, chancellor of Austria, in a Christmas message to the American people pledged his nation tonight to adhere to its "glorious tradition" toward "the attainment of world peace."

"'Promotion of peace' is the slogan which, time and again, we hear from all authoritative quarters," his message said. "But it seems more difficult to translate the spiritual ideal of peace into concrete realization than is generally realized.

"Austria, a part of the heart of Europe, a state which has inherited a glorious tradition, has directed all its domestic and foreign policies toward the attainment of world peace. Austria will adhere to this high purpose."

FLYING SANTAS DROP BUNDLES TO 28 LIGHTHOUSES

Boston, Mass., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Santa Claus rode clear skies today to brighten Christmas for lonely keepers and their families standing guard over treacherous reefs and shoals along the northern New England coast.

Wildly excited children, coatless women and grizzled veterans of the sea ran out of doors in near zero weather to wave a welcome to Capt. William H. Wincapaw, robust veteran of Boston pilots, as he swooped his big red cabin plane, dropped yuletide bundles, and roared away.

For the first time on this, his seventh Christmas flight, the flying Santa Claus had a helper.

He was his 17 year old son, William H. Wincapaw Jr., Winthrop High school senior and youngest licensed pilot in Massachusetts.

QUEER CUSTOMS MARK CHRISTMAS IN FOREIGN LANDS

Upside Down Yule Trees and Old Lady Santas.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

Strange customs in strange lands—in warmer and bleaker climates—will characterize the observance of Christmas today as Chicago and Chicago families celebrate the occasion with the traditional American accompaniment of Christmas trees, gift giving, carol singing, church attendance and family feasts.

Chicago's fitting blanket of snow would not fit into the Christmas scheme in many countries, nor would the upside down Christmas trees hung from the ceilings of peasant homes in Polish villages bear out the Christmas tradition in Chicagoland. Equally as strange to Chicagoans would seem a Santa Claus in the image of a witchlike old woman who scoots through the skies on a broom before whisking down some hopeful child's chimney. This is the legendary figure which the lore of Italy associates with Christmas and the tradition of giving presents.

The Variations Are Many.

The strange variations from American custom are many across the seas and in other latitudes. Following are some of the forms of observance which appear unusual:

In Austria, Santa Claus is accompanied by a devil. If the children haven't been good, tradition holds, the devil switches them with twigs.

In Lapland, close to the north pole, there are thousands of reindeer, but no Santa.

In Holland, Santa is supposed to be a bishop from Spain, and he is accompanied by a Moor. If the children have been "bad," Santa has the Moor punish them. If they have been very bad, the Moor puts them in a bag and threatens to carry them off to Spain.

In Germany, if the servants don't get the presents they expected they quit.

Billy goats made of straw are important decorations in Swedish homes.

Shoes Replace Stockings.

In Spain the children place their shoes on balconies or windows and there they find their gifts on the morning of the big day.

In France the hero of the day is "Pere Noël," who looks around the fireplace for the children's shoes.

In Lithuania there are Childermas celebrations, with Punch and Judy shows representing Herod passing sentence on the children of Bethlehem.

In Denmark it is customary to "blow in the Jul" at dawn from the church towers, playing four hymns, one to each point of the compass.

In the country districts of Ireland a candle burns in every window. Cups and saucers are laid on the table for wandering souls who may return from purgatory for a visit to the old home town.

In certain parts of Hungary a troupe visits every house in the village. Made up as animals, the singers attract attention as best they can. The bull rattles the chain, the cat brandishes a spit, the pig carries a satchel. Admitted to the house, they carol a rime or two as a part of their "matchmaking." One of the rimes winds up with a few magic but obscure words that are meant to cast a spell over all the young people present.

All that Noise? It's Christmas.

In some sections of China a holiday falling at Christmastime has been celebrated for 400 years as a day of friendliness. The children have their fireworks, and in the lantern hung gardens they meet their version of Santa Claus. They call him Lau Khoong Khoong, which means something like good old father.

And in Bethlehem, where it all started, pilgrims from all over the world follow a dusty trail along which Three Wise Men once made their way to a manger. The trail leads them to the Church of the Nativity, built on the spot where the Christchild is believed to have breathed his first. There a procession of priests moves slowly, with swinging censers, to the transept. At midnight the acting patriarch draws back a curtain and reveals the figure of the child. The great congregation breaks out in hallelujahs as the patriarch lifts the figure and conveys it reverently to the manger preserved in a grotto beneath the transept. Winking candles inside the grotto light up the scene. One by one the worshipers approach and kneel to kiss the manger.

So much for the relics of ancient customs. But how about this Christmas in particular?

In Russia the holiday is taboo and Santa Claus is dead. He was killed when the present régime came into power. It's just another day for the young communists.

At St. Petersburg, Fla., illuminated windows in 20,000 homes will seek to impress the visitor with the fact that Christ was born in a semi-tropical clime like Florida's.

Los Angeles will open its horse racing season.

Hollywood, capital of the world of make believe, will substitute untoasted cornflakes for snowflakes and scatter them to the wind in imitation of a blizzard.

Signal for Swedish Sports.

In Sweden the day will introduce the winter sports program. It will celebrate a vivid chapter in the country's folklore. On Christmas morning, 1520, as the folk of Mora were returning home from church they helped start the story of Gustaf Vasa; of his offer of leadership and its rejection; of his despair and his escape to the mountains, and of the message next day confirming his nation's wrongs. The fleetest ski runners of the province were sent two days later to bid him welcome and ask his return. At Salen, near the Norwegian border, they overtook him. He returned and became Sweden's liberator.

At Glasgow, Scotland, for the first time in many years, the medieval ceremony of "Mari Lwyd" will be reenacted by St. Andrews and clan societies. It dates back to the days when rich and poor held high revel together and when every great house, castle, and mansion opened its doors and beckoned to the laborers to come and eat. The revival of the custom will see youths, dressed in long black robes and crowned with horses' skulls, halting in groups before houses and singing carols, to the end that they may be invited inside and served with whatever is handy.

At midnight last night Oberndorf, a stone's throw from Salzburg, solemnly recalled the beginning of "Silent Night, Holy Night." Shepherds' carols, a torch procession, and vespers and mass were on the program. The song, now a world favorite, originated in that hamlet on Christmas eve 117 years ago.

Martial Music in Ethiopia.

In Ethiopia this year the Christmas carols are sung in the deep basso of field guns and the soprano of screaming shells, with the rattling of machine guns for accompaniment.

In Italy, which is carrying on a war with one country and doing a lot of growling at others, the holiday will fall on Meatless Wednesday. It was like that 20 years ago. Then the nation was praying for the success of its soldiers, trembling with cold as they stormed the Alps and sought to crush the armies of Austria. Today it will pray for the success of its soldiers, scorched with the sun as they trek through the African wastes and seek to subdue the armies of Ethiopia. Now, as then, there won't be much of a Christmas in Italy. The money is needed for other things.

Twenty years ago nearly all of Europe was engaged in a war to end war. Today the war babies born at that time are being pressed into service for the next war.

Thus will the world's peoples celebrate the birthday of the Man of Peace.

POLLY WALKER AND DR. F. H. MORAN.

A marriage proposal by transAtlantic telephone will be answered finally this afternoon when Polly Walker, stage and screen actress, 3141 North Major avenue, becomes the bride of Dr. Frederick Moran, London physician.

The ceremony is to take place at 3 p. m. in St. Barnabas Episcopal church, 4241 Washington boulevard. After the ceremony, the two will leave for New York on their way to Bermuda for their honeymoon. They plan to live in London where Dr. Moran practices.

Miss Walker and Dr. Moran first met a year ago. A letter of introduction from Mrs. Valerie Hoffman, Miss Walker's sister, brought the two together. When Dr. Moran visited New York on business several weeks ago he telephoned a proposal to Miss Walker, then in England. Her acceptance led to her return to America.

2 GIRL HITCH-HIKERS ASSAULT DRIVER AND TAKE CAR; ARRESTED

San Bernardino, Cal., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Two Helena, Mont., girls, Lucille James, 19, and Mildred Larson, 18, were in jail here today charged with assaulting Milton Gister of Los Angeles and stealing his car.

Gister, under a physician's care for a brain concussion, said the pair had taken the car after he had given them a lift from St. George, Utah, to Victorville, Cal. He said he did not know they were girls until they were captured by police.

In a preliminary hearing the girls pleaded not guilty and were held under $1,000 bond.

FIND FAKE BILLS POSTED IN COURT AS BAIL MONEY

Michael Potson, owner of Colosimo's, a night club at 2128 South Wabash avenue, was unable to explain yesterday how it happened there were two counterfeit $20 bills in the $525 he put up with the Municipal court as bonds for five men arrested Monday in a raid on a gambling establishment at 123 West Madison street.

"I don't know where those fake bills came from," declared Potson. "Somebody must have used them to pay their bills. I got a bum $20 bill once before. Somebody has victimized me."

Municipal Judge Eugene Holland yesterday dismissed the five men who were bailed out by the café owner on the ground that the police had no search warants when the arrests were made. While the five were in court a second raid was made on the same gaming resort on Madison street and two men were arrested as keepers. They are Anthony Casin, 37 years old, 2208 North Clark street, and Edward Torty, 28 years old, 556 South Paulina street.

NORMANDIE AND QUEEN MARY TO HAVE SAME RATES

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Dec. 24.—Informal conversations were concluded here recently between representatives of the French Line and the Cunard-White Star Line by which the Normandie and the Queen Mary will adopt the same rates during the coming season. This involves a reduction by the French Line and re-classification of the Normandie as a cabin ship. This will be proposed, it is understood, at the next meeting of the North Atlantic Steamship conference.

According to the French Line's annual report, just made public here, the Normandie in her eighteen crossings in 1935 made sufficient to pay for her operating expenses and general costs, but not enough to cover service charges on the loans for her construction. These unpaid costs will have to be assumed largely by the French government, in accordance with a bill now before parliament.

The line's annual report says the Normandie carried 18,000 passengers this year, bringing in 36,000,000 francs Operating costs were 36,000,000 francs and the balance of 14,000,000 francs covered other costs. [The franc is worth 6.59 cents now.]

Gambling Raiders Arrest Two Women as Keepers

A police squad from the Central station, led by Sergt. J. M. Connolly, raided yesterday an alleged gambling house in room 411 at 6 North Michigan avenue and arrested two women as keepers. They are Miss Frances C. Pake, 37 years old, 5406 North Lotus avenue, and Miss Annette Burandt, 18 years old, 3260 South Lincoln street. Miss Burandt asserted that she was engaged by Miss Pake as stenographer some months ago, but soon found that her real work was to take bets on horse races. The women were released in bonds of $125 each.

CHRISTMAS JOY LIFTS BURDEN OF ANXIOUS WORLD

Nations Shake Off Fears of Depression, War.

Christmas eve! Cables, radio, transoceanic phones hummed. They carried stories of two nations, shedding blood, struggling to save themselves from the conquering hosts of stronger foes. Other dispatches told of the old continent of Europe, torn by fear, hate, threats of a new world war. But these were but a small part of the night's quota of messages from foreign lands. The major part told of a world celebrating the most universal, the most joyous of all holidays. Christmas eve found the world, whether in the trenches of Ethiopia and China or the palaces of kings and dictators; whether in the mansions and homes of the rich and well fed or the hovels of the poorest peasants, striving to forget depression, economic disaster, political tyranny, war. It was Christmas eve—a time for song, prayer, festivity. Here are brief glimpses of how the world outside the borders of America observed Christmas.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 24—London and the British Isles tomorrow will go into a two day Christmas solstice during which the whole country will cease all activity after what was declared tonight to be the biggest shopping season since the depression began.

All records for Christmas trade were smashed, it was reported from department stores.

"This has been the biggest Christmas business since 1932 and last Friday was the biggest day we have had since the war," said the manager of Whiteley's, one of London's big stores. Thousands of extra employés were taken on.

The British take Christmas as the year's biggest festival. Thousands left London for the country. The hundreds of thousands who remain will be compelled to stay indoors for the most part, for all transportation services will be greatly reduced.

Christmas will extend over to the next day, which is called Boxing day here, during which the city will be without newspapers and most of its amusements, except turkey and plum pudding.

Nearly a Week's Holiday.

Drug stores do a great business on the day after Christmas, through the British addiction to plum pudding, according to statistics.

Coming this year on Wednesday and Thursday, Christmas will afford Britons almost a week's holiday, for many will take Friday off, by way of putting no obstacles in the way of the week-end.

King George of Great Britain, in accordance with his annual custom, will broadcast to the empire from Sandringham tomorrow. He will speak at 3 o'clock in the afternoon for five minutes and his words will be heard at every hour of the clock in the imperial territory, due to its extent and the change of time, it was emphasized.

Back from Europe

Col. Edward V. Rickenbacker, world war flying ace who is now general manager of Eastern Air Lines, with his wife as they returned from Europe on liner Ile de France. He said that Germany leads the world in military aviation.

[Associated Press Photo.]

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin will spend Christmas on his estate in Worcestershire. The new foreign minister, Capt. Anthony Eden, will be in Yorkshire. Most of the other ministers are also out of town.

French Forget Worries.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 24.—France put aside her depression worries and her war fears tonight and turned thoughts toward Père Noel [the French Santa Claus] and Christmas joy. Children left their shoes beside their fireplaces. Crowds flocked toward the midnight masses which in France are oftentimes quite elaborate.

Live cows, goats and donkeys are pressed into service in southern France to aid in the telling of the old, old story of the manger in Bethlehem in church pageants.

The traditional "reveillon" comes later in the night. It corresponds to the American New Year's eve with wining, dining and merry-making until the early hours.

The American colony met in various gatherings for celebrations of their own. Many will attend morning services at the American cathedral of the Holy Trinity.

"Peace Is With Us," Nazis Claim.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—"Peace is with us while the world is without peace," was the headline with which many newspapers today sought to increase German Christmas joy and make the people forget the sacrifices they are compelled to make this year in the traditional Christmas menu, because of the shortage of butterfat, eggs, and meat, and because of high prices.

To help the poor obtain Christmas dinners hunters of Germany were ordered to give one-tenth of their game bags to the poor.

Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's deputy leader, Rudolph Hess, referred to the "war between Christian people."

"Utter Calm" in Germany.

"Nations which are close to us in Europe are ready to pounce upon each other, with their natives, air forces and troops alert and ready for a fight with the last and most terrible means," he said.

He compared this with the "utter calm with which Germany is preparing to celebrate Christmas."

Hitler spent the day in Munich at a celebration of his old party comrades. In the evening he proceeded to the Bavarian mountains.

The inmates of concentration camps will not be allowed to receive Christmas presents of any kinds, much to the disappointment of many wives and mothers who had saved and scrimped to be able to send something to cheer their men.

Christmas Trees Barred in Italy.

ROME, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The words "peace on earth" and "good will to men" sounded strangely today on this wartime day before Christmas, as thoughts turned anxiously to the soldiers in Africa and the trials of the economic siege.

Italians made the Christmas season more religious than usual because Premier Mussolini has revived the "Befana" custom. Befana, the witch-like woman counterpart of Santa Claus, brings presents to children—and down chimneys—but on Jan. 6. That day is the biblical anniversary of the three wise men's visit to the Christ Child in the Bethlehem stable.

Christmas trees were discouraged and almost banned by the frown of the Fascist party because they are "a foreign custom."

Children, however, were likely to suffer only from the pinch of sanctions. They won't get presents made abroad. Mothers' purses may be thinner, too.

Rome's 400 churches were visited as on no other occasion. For a week children have been taken to see the "Presepio," or the scene of Christ's birth, elaborately represented in many churches.

A 'Goulash Christmas' in Vienna.

VIENNA, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Vienna opened Santa's bag tonight to find it full of goulash. This was the government's Christmas present to the poor and soldiers distributed 40,000 steaming platters of it. An equal amount will be given out tomorrow.

Under drab skies, thousands went to cemeteries today to carry out the new Viennese practice of placing lighted candles and artificial flowers on graves and trees.

The graves of Socialist rebels slain in 1934 were brightly illuminated and police watched indulgently, despite the fact that decorating such graves might be considered a "demonstration" under a strict interpretation of the law.

"Day of Good News" in Ethiopia.

ADDIS ABABA, Dec. 25.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—Still far from the sound of booming guns, 500 adherents of western Christianity celebrated Christmas early today at missions and churches of this Ethiopian capital. Prayers were said at three American missions for workers in distant parts of the empire.

To 700,000 Ethiopian soldiers at the war front, and to Ethiopians at home, today was "the day of good news"—the day when Mary was informed by an angel of the coming of Christ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Gayety Forced in Egypt.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 24.—Forced gayety tinged Cairo's Christmas eve celebration, the minds of many of the merrymakers being preoccupied with international tension and the chances of an Anglo-Italian war.

A few transient foreigners were scattered through the ballrooms, restaurants, and tourists' hotels, but popping champagne corks and an imitation of American dance music seemed unable to dispel the gloom.

Cairo's former huge winter tourist trafic has dropped almost to zero both on account of the chances of war and the news of anti-British street rioting. A mere handful of guests, most of whom are here on business, occupy the immense caravansaries where the servants outnumber the customers.

Roast Pig for Porto Ricans.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Porto Ricans prepared tonight to eat their favorite dish—a little roast pig, ears and all—after the Christmas eve midnight mass.

Gourmets were able to eat their pig secure in the knowledge there will be bigger and better porkers next year. Six blooded Duroc Jerseys arrived today from Wrightsville, Pa., imported by the agricultural extension service for breeding purposes.

Pig's ears, regarded as the choicest delicacies, as usual commanded a premium today.

Quincy Twin Brothers Observe 82d Birthday

Unions Denied a Part in Joint Transfer Case

The Illinois commerce commission approved yesterday the regulations to govern joint transfers at 27 points among the Chicago Motor Coach company, the Chicago Surface lines and the Chicago Rapid Transit lines. In denying to the unions of street car and elevated lines employés the right to intervene in the case, the commission removed an obstacle to the inauguration of the system on Jan. 6.

CHURCHES GREET 1935 CHRISTMAS WITH OPTIMISM

Leaders Observe Greater Interest in Religion.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago churches no less than Chicago business men are hailing the season surrounding the 1935 birthday of the Savior as one of the most notable in years. But there is a difference of emphasis.

While the business man is exultant over mounting sales, the same man, as a churchman, rejoices with his pastor because of a deepening sense of the great mystery of the season which cannot be measured but which is reflected in greater church-going and increased devotion to things religious.

The city became religiously astir last night after stockings were hung and final touches were given to sparkling Christmas trees in homes. Many did not forget to "light the way of the wandering Christ-child" with glowing tapers in windows.

Procession to the Churches.

It was then that the city's procession to the churches began. This continued from midnight eucharists in Episcopal churches to first masses at small hours in all Catholic churches and to traditional early morning festivals in Scandinavian and many German Lutheran churches. A number of noon services also will be held today.

Among notable services during the night was the 101st Christmas celebration at old St. James' Episcopal church, Wabash avenue and Huron street, which began at 11 p. m. Simultaneously the bells of St. Chrysostom's rang out over North Dearborn parkway and the gold coast, calling worshipers to crèche and eucharist.

At the Cathedral Shelter, Washington and Peoria streets, the pastor, Canon David E. Gibson, will present a class to Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese for confirmation this morning. Following the service more than 1,000 homeless men will sit down to a Christmas repast.

Church Leaders Optimistic.

Walter R. Mee, executive secretary of the Chicago Church federation, in a special Christmas announcement yesterday said that the federation is now the most active and extensive of its history. In comparison with the 800 churches represented in its coöperative work a few years ago, the federation now lists among its membership 1,049 of Chicago's total of 1,437 Protestant congregations. The Chicago federation, Mr. Mee added, is now the largest in America.

A similar statement of optimism appeared in Cardinal Mundelein's annual Christmas message to Chicago's million Catholics.

"Notwithstanding the arguments of the partisan and the clamor of the agitator," Cardinal Mundelein said, "we are better off materially, and in some respects spiritually, than any other nation on earth. . . . With us the church is free to fulfill its mission, it is not hampered by persecution from secular authorities, it is not harassed by attacks from enemies from outside or injured by indifference of its own members from within."

MASSACHUSETTS BILL WOULD BAR WHISKY DRINKING BY SANTA

Boston, Mass., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Liquor advertising depicting Santa Claus drinking whisky today resulted in the filing of a bill designed to halt the use of advertisments of pictures showing any person or character drinking liquor.

Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware filed the bill with the clerk of the Massachusetts house of representatives.

Explaining his reason, Sawyer said: "Here we have Santa Claus, the children's admired friend and idol, perhaps next to a religious character the most loved character the children know; yet the papers, state-wide, are exploiting a certain brand of whisky as the brand Santa drinks and show Santa in various poses drinking the whisky."

HIGH FOOD COST WORRIES ZOO IN BUDGET FOR 1936

The high cost of living will increase materially next year the already pressing difficulties of the Lincoln park zoo, Floyd S. Young, director, predicted yesterday in a review of the zoo's 1935 activities.

The food budget of the zoo calls for 50 tons of meat and 22 tons of fish a year. Other items in the food requirements for the birds, fish and animals in captivity are: 3,000 quarts of milk, eight tons of potatoes, 23 tons of bananas, 400 bushels of apples and 300 bushels of sweet potatoes. Decreased income has cut animal purchases for 1935, Mr. Young reported, but the zoo has filled all its fresh water fish tanks.

BELL RINGS BUT ONCE A YEAR—CHARTRES' CALL

Wooden Shoes Clatter in Midnight Air.

BY JOSEPHINE BARBER.

It is Christmas eve at Chartres. Bulky peasants scurry around us as we trudge through the narrow streets to the church on the hill. In the brittle air their wooden shoes clatter against the broken cobblestones. It is almost midnight.

Far up the hill an exultant bell peals forth, and the hurrying feet move faster. It is the Anne de Bretagne bell that rings from the clocher neuf but once a year. "Low and loud and sweetly blended, low at times and loud at times" . . .

Suddenly there looms, well defined against a clear sky, a dark vibrant silhouette. Silent and grey, patiently remote . . . Notre Dame de Chartres. Two spires of severe grace rise from the gothic roof.

A Peasant Pilgrim.

The bells clamor in our ears as we step through double doors into the transept of the quiet church. A blazing light from the altar tapers into the murky blackness of the nave. The kneeling figures in the first prie-dieu reflect the brilliance of the altar—those beyond grow indistinct beneath the feeble light of countless candles spaced along the triforium. Stained glass windows have given way to noble arches.

Groping our way into vacant chairs, we sink down beside a peasant, a pilgrim from the plains of Beauce who breaks the silence by jabbing his alpen-stock against the stone floor. His lips twitch in droning prayer.

Bells and prayers are muffled now and out of the stillness comes the sweet rich chant of a hundred choir boys. They wear surplices of red velvet and copes of white lace. Vivid vestments which bring added warmth with each measured step toward the altar light. Fragrant incense drifts upward through the darkness. The priests intone the solemn litany.

At the end of the first mass the peasant beside us refreshes himself from his canteen and no longer twirls his alpen-stock.

A second mass begins, and the reverberant music of the Sanctus Benedictus swells in the vast nave. The voluminous skirts of the women rustle as they shuffle forward for the sacrament. Our peasant gets stiffly to his feet and joins the others.

The Christmas Supper.

A third mass follows but now the triforium candles flicker low; the priests mumble indistinctly; the climax of communion is over. The pilgrim we are watching gives in to tired limbs and sleeps.

The choir glides past in the dim recessional of the Agnus Dei. The distant benediction fades and there is a stir among the worshipers. No voices break the silence, only the stifled beat of wooden shoes in motion. Our peasant rouses and adjusts his knapsack. A low bell chimes and we file out into the night.

In a crumbling passage, an unclosed window shutter pours forth a glaring light. We are dazzled and take a fleeting glance at the family within. They are seated at a table for the Revellion—the Christmas supper of meat pie. Then on into the blurry mist of a greying sky. It is Christmas morning at Chartres.

BETHLEHEM STAR BLAZES FORTH AGAIN IN JUDEA

Throng of Many Creeds Sees Climax to Rites.

BETHLEHEM, Dec. 25.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—An electric star of Bethlehem, blazing suddenly out of the darkness in the age-old Church of the Nativity, early today betokened the advent of Christmas day to thousands of pilgrims assembled in the Holy Land from many countries.

Red-capped Arabs, uniformed British officers and soldiers, numerous Americans and Europeans, native peasants in their huge white crusader coifs—a polyglot throng of many creeds but a single faith—witnessed the symbolic climax to a day and night of religious rites.

Flames Forth Above Altar.

The star, signifying the heavenly light that guided the three wise men of the east to Bethlehem nearly 2,000 years ago, flamed forth above the church altar, directly over the site where the Christ child was born in a manger.

Fervid "hallelujahs!" burst from the vast congregation. Then slowly, in groups of fifty, the pilgrims filed into the dark little grotto, illumined by flickering candlelight, to kneel and kiss the spot where Jesus of Nazareth first drew breath.

Bells pealed joyously, tumultously, overhead.

"Christ the child is born!" was the cry.

Hundreds Sing Carols.

And in the streets and on the surrounding hilltops of ancient Judea, the voices of hundreds of men and women were lifted in devotional hymns and Christmas carols.

There in the hills, bonfires flamed against the sky as sheep were roasted on spits and the hot smoking meat was eaten with Arab bread, just as in the ancient days 1,935 years ago, when humble shepherds stood there and witnessed the heavenly visitation.

Christmas day services will be observed by masses both here and in Jerusalem, and during the day the bells of Bethlehem will go out to the far corners of the earth by radio.

Scene from Park Christmas Pageant

One of the scenes from the Chicago Park district civic Christmas pageant, "The Angel Guards Over the Manger," which will be given at the Congress street plaza Friday, Saturday, Sunday, and Monday.

PEACE ON EARTH.

Again the occidental world returns to Bethlehem, conscious, may it be, that its conduct falls short of the ideals to which it particularly devotes itself this day. Philosopher and sage and the common man have been puzzled to explain to themselves why peace on earth, the cardinal blessing of the faith to which the Christian nations devote themselves with so much apparent devoutness, remains so far beyond reach.

This Christmas finds the nations of Europe going to church fearful that they also are going to war. The two most powerful influences in the lives of the people, their love of God in the Christian faith and their love of country, both ennobling, are in conflict.

It would be a shallow explanation to say that the people are hypocritical. It might be closer to the truth to say that they are imposed upon, and yet many of the men who for the time being control destiny are in their own way pious and true believers. So civilization faces the dilemma of trying to understand how people can trust their salvation to faith in the Great Giver of Peace and yet still permit their fate to contain so many disasters attributable to their own works. Reflection upon this contradiction spurs some to mightier efforts and leads others to accept a mystery beyond human solution.

If a moral explanation of the present state of Europe this Christmas morning is difficult to find, there is nevertheless a historical accounting which will show how it came about in understandable terms. When the ancient civilization of Europe went down under the rush of barbarians, the light as it reëmerged came out of the catacombs. The pagan social order, its philosophy and government, was made over along the lines of Christian teaching. The people of Europe were given a new philosophy of life and with it a new conception of government. As the people groped their way into the middle ages the spirit which prevailed in religious and political thought was unity. There was a supreme source of authority derivable from God and working throughout all the affairs of men. The Christian church was the councilor of men and administrator for them. In a common faith all men were to be under one government, spiritual and temporal. All sovereigns were deputies in this unified government and ruled as lieutenants.

People might speak different languages and have different customs, but they were to be united and not divided against each other. This was the theory of the middle ages, doomed to fail of its purpose, first, because the personal ambitions of the subordinate rulers balked at the subordination required by unity, and, second, because the diversities comprehended in the united scheme tended toward disintegration.

It is apparent that if the medieval spirit of unity had had in it the quality of permanence, if it had been irresistible in its appeal to human thought and emotion, nationality as we know it could not have developed and the Christian religion would have kept the peace, at least among the peoples who had accepted it. A unified Europe devoted to the Christian creed could not have presented the Christmas spectacle of armed camps. The church would have been the supreme state and the supreme government. As the social and political structure was fated to develop it became possible if not inevitable for two powerful conflicting emotions to take hold of mankind in the Christian world and to produce works which seemed to deny faith.

What the Christian world has lost and what it has gained by the triumph of disintegration over unity seem in part equally clear. We have contentious people and that is some of the price we pay for the greater diversity of human opinion and activity. The human being as an individual may have gained a greater self-mastery. He may feel the freedom to be himself and it is believable that his civilization has been enriched by varieties of ambition, enthusiasm, thought and action for which there would have been less incentive in a unified world.

We do not know how to balance the good against the bad on any precise scales. A Christmas in the medieval spirit of unity might see a world whose worship of the Giver of Peace was less marred by the efforts and threats against it. There is forever the hope that men's minds will never completely surrender to the counsels of pessimism and that eventually the best they believe will remove the worst they do. Even if this be a millennial thought with Europe so shaken by its own fears, so dominated by its idea of compulsion, and so afraid of its own shadows, still it is a thought that could be abandoned only with great loss.

AMERICAN CHARACTER.

Reflecting as we must upon the world scene in this year of Our Lord 1935, and especially upon our own American part of it, some passages from a book which appeared fifteen years ago seem to us worth recalling. The book is George Santayana's "Character and Opinion in the United States," one of the wisest yet written about the American people. The observations of a philosopher who was not an American, save by forty years of association and distinguished service in the intellectual life of America, they cover the period ending with Prof. Santayana's departure in 1912. Much has happened to us since then, and what this friendly sojourner could and did say of us of the period he knew is not so apparent now. Certainly on the stormy surface of our present American scene we find changes which are not comforting, but they need not shut us off, we dare believe, from the hope that they are transient or from the confident faith in the essentials which Santayana found in the American character of his day.

Perhaps there will be for many of us something of irony in the first of his judgments we shall quote. "If it were given to me," he writes, "to look into the depths of a man's heart, and I did not find good will at the bottom, I should say without any hesitation you are not an American."

That, we think, has been profoundly true of the American character, and we believe, in spite of the stress put in these days of reaction upon the exceptional, is largely true still. It is no excuse for self-righteousness. American good will was not a special dispensation. Prof. Santayana finds it a natural expression of the pioneer's optimism: "feeling assured, safe and cheery within, he looks with smiling and kindly eyes about him," and the writer adds what may be worthy of attention now that we are hearing so much scornful reference to "rugged individualism": "Individualism, roughness, and self-trust are supposed to go with selfishness and a cold heart; but I suspect that is a prejudice. It is rather dependence, insecurity, and mutual jostling that poison our placid gregarious brotherhood; and fanciful passionate demands upon people's affections, when they are disappointed, as they soon must be, breed ill will and a final meanness. The milk of human kindness is less apt to turn sour if the vessel that holds it stands steady, cool, and separate, and is not too often uncorked."

Of the limitations of American good will he says: "But as the American is an individualist, his good will is not officious. His instinct is to think well of everybody, and to wish everybody well, but in a spirit of rough comradeship, expecting every man to stand on his own legs and to be helpful in his turn. When he has given his neighbor a chance he thinks he has done enough for him; but he feels it an absolute duty to do that. It will take some hammering to drive a coddling socialism into America."

We have taken and are taking a good deal of hammering since those words were written, and socialism is swarming over the land in many forms and disguises. The pioneer virtues and characteristics have lost much of their support, perhaps a fatal loss, but there is effort to preserve them, and it would serve us well to yield them the respect they deserve rather than sneer at them or wave them a despairing farewell. "One of the peculiarities of recent speculation, especially in America"—and this even more obvious in our political thinking than in philosophy—"is that ideas are abandoned in virtue of a mere change of feeling, without any new evidence or new arguments. We do not now refute our predecessors, we pleasantly bid them good-by," and not so pleasantly.

Civilization, wrote Santayana, may be approaching one of those long winters that overtake it from time to time, but even if a "flood of barbarism from below" should level its fair works, "under the deluge, and watered by it, seeds of all sorts would survive against the time to come." As for America, this destruction and restoration, he observes, have already unintentionally occurred, but though there is much forgetfulness, much callow disrespect for what is past, "there is a fund of vigor, goodness and hope such as no nation ever possessed before. It is a fearless people, and free from malice, as you might see in their eyes and gestures, even if their conduct did not prove it. This soil is propitious to every seed, and tares must needs grow in it; but why should it not also breed clear thinking, honest judgment, and rational happiness?"

Editorial of the Day

LOST OR STRAYED.

[Rockford Register-Republican.]

Christmas time, because individual and social morale is at its peak, is a fine time to prepare good resolutions to put into effect on New Year's day. A fine resolution for any one is a vow to return to their owners promptly all borrowed property that has been neglected during the year—especially books.

One fault which a very great number of people share is the habit of failing to return borrowed books. Often a person who is very punctilious about appointments, money matters and all sorts of other obligations will permit months, even years, to drag by without returning to its owner some treasured volume which has been graciously lent by some friend who most certainly expected to receive it back into his library. As a result many choice books have been lost and many valuable or at least favored sets have been broken.

What is so pathetic, for instance, as a nicely bound set of Dickens with "David Copperfield" missing or Mark Twain with "Huckleberry Finn" straying? Unless the lender keeps a special set of accounts on his library, he may be at a loss to know just who has the missing volume, and unless the borrower is less forgetful than most he is apt to forget the identity of the owner of the book, shelve it away, and forget it entirely.

The Chinese are said to have a pleasant custom at New Year's of paying all debts contracted during the year. Some one should inaugurate in this country a custom of gathering up all borrowed property and returning it New Year's day.

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

POOR PAPA is giving a little chuckle of relief that Christmas shopping is now all over. But listen, papa; you don't know nothing yet. For the next week or two you'll be carrying the pretty presents back to the stores where they came from and trying to talk the clerk into exchanging them for something the mama wants much more than what she got.

AND NOW I KNOW the real reason why I am keeping my old gasoline buggy another year instead of buying a bright shiny new car, streamlined and all squshed down flatlike and everything. I have just discovered that the Nizam of Hyderabad, the richest man in the world and who has a coach of solid gold, rides around every day in a creaking, rattling old gas buggy of the vintage of 1927. Who am I to high hat the Nizam of Hyderabad? If a 1927 auto is good enough for the Nizam then a 1930 car is plenty good enough for me. I don't want the Nizam to think I'm trying to show him up.

IN TRUST AS WELL AS AWE.

Two thousand weary years ago
The sky was full of stars—
Some were blue like Arcturus
And some as red as Mars.

There were stars at twilight
That marked the close of day;
There were many midnight stars
That seemed so far away.

They all were beautiful enough—
As when we think of gold;
But children couldn't reach them—
They were remote and cold.

Such stars caused men to wonder
At everything they saw,
And then to huddle round the fire
In fear as well as awe.

These stars were never friendly—
They rode too far above,
And never a one was intimate—
As intimate as love.

But on the clearest evening
The world has ever known
There came a star so close to earth
That men saw it—alone.

They felt this star was friendly
And fixed on it their gaze,
Then broke the stillness of the night
In universal praise.

It was a star of a single ray
And shone on a bed of straw—
Now every man may search the sky
In trust as well as awe.

SOME OF THE SIMPLE Jefferson day dinners in honor of Thomas are going to cost ten dollars per plate and others fifty dollars a plate. And Tom Jefferson rode into Washington on the day of his inauguration as President on an old bay hoss and tied the beast to a tree behind the capitol. And after he was sworn in as chief executive of this mighty nation he went back, unhitched his hoss, and rode home. Jeffersonian simplicity at fifty dollars a plate does not seem in entire harmony with Tom. But the Democrats have changed a lot since Mr. Jefferson's day.

CHRISTMAS WISH.

I'd like to think that boys and girls
(Wherever boys and girls are found)
Join hearts and hands in endless chain
When Christmas time rolls round.

I'd like to think that every tongue
Repeats the old, old strain—
"Joy to the world,—the Lord is born!"
From every hill and plain.

I'd like to think that for one day
There'd be no creed nor race;
But happiness in every soul,
A smile on every face.

I'd like to think that every heart
Could beat in joyful rhyme,
And every child in all the world
Be gay at Christmas time!

HAPPINESS BRINGS HEALTH.

DICKENS describes Christmas as a season of hope, merriment, and open heartedness. In "The Pickwick Papers" he tells about the old year that is preparing "like an ancient philosopher to call his friends around him and amidst the sound of feasting and revelry to pass gently and calmly away."

Yes, Christmas is a season of happiness and enjoyment. Families are brought together and—for a few days at least—the restless strivings of mind and body give way to comfort, satisfaction, and good will. A few headaches and stomach aches may follow the festivities and some, no doubt, will celebrate "with joy unconfined." But in the typical American home the holiday season will exemplify—doing for others.

Indissolubly associated with the season in its religious significance is the dominant thought that a helping hand on the part of those who are strong must be extended to the weak, the sick, and the handicapped. He who can at any time, but especially at Christmas, enjoy the fruits of his labors, the comforts of home, the felicitations of friends without a thought of those who are less fortunate, is calloused indeed. Regardless of race or of creed, there is in most of us an elemental longing to be of service; an inborn kindliness that helps to make the world a better place in which to live.

The very performance of an unselfish service thrills the pulse, stimulates the circulation, and warms the heart. There is a subconscious glow of satisfaction—albeit accompanied by the sense of humility that one has been given the power to perform a kindly act.

◆

It is healthful to give; to think of others; to know sympathy. Was Dickens' "Christmas Carol" character of Scrooge healthy? Meanness of soul has always been associated with most of the ills to which flesh is heir. But what a changed Scrooge it was who slapped Bob Cratchit on the back and wished him — Merry Christmas! For the first time he experienced the reflected joy of those about him. I will wager that Scrooge gained weight and health under the glow of his renovated sensibilities.

He who builds a great business, who employs on a fair basis thousands of individuals, who thus aids a sizable proportion of the citizens of his community to live in happiness, is a public benefactor. He may not know all the joys and sorrows of those who serve him and with whom he works. His satisfaction is less personal, perhaps, than that of the physician. Nevertheless, it is just as real. The physician who, through loyalty, faithfulness, and attention to every minutia of his high calling, ushers a new life into the world preserving both mother and child; whose devotion and skill successfully battle diphtheria or scarlet fever, cannot but possess a sense of triumph when recovery crowns his efforts. There are compensations that cannot be measured in terms of money.

Physicians have responsibilities far beyond those of most men; they are dealing with human life. For this reason the personal relationship between patient and physician must be preserved, else the latter become a human slot machine for the dispensing of pills.

◆

Regardless of the barbed shafts that have been aimed at medical science, the conscientious physician will always remain an indispensable member of society. Strive as we may, disease will never wholly disappear, although the physician will continue the rôle of teacher helping his people to learn how to live In season and out he is seeking ways and means of obliterating disease. There is an old adage and a true one that "health is wealth." In the spirit of Christmas we may add that happiness brings health.

MUST BE KEPT OPEN.

D. R. writes: My mother, 85 years old, has cancer of the rectum. Her physician, who says she is too old to be operated on, comes once a week to dilate the rectum. This causes great pain and considerable bleeding, and leaves the patient very weak. The doctor claims it is necessary to keep the rectum open, for if it closes an abdominal operation will be required.

1. Should the treatments be continued?
2. She does not know she has cancer and I don't want to tell her. She is not very clean in her habits and my husband is afraid of catching the disease. I assist the doctor in his treatments. What is the danger?

REPLY.

1. The outlet of the intestines must be kept open, otherwise bowel obstruction may occur. Operation [providing an artificial opening] may be the lesser of two evils. Perhaps the use of a rectal tube will help. It would appear that your physician is handling a difficult situation in a proper manner.

2. There is no evidence that cancer can be contracted in the manner you describe.

COTTON SOCKS.

W. B. L. writes: As a preventive against chilblains a doctor I know recommended the wearing of a pair of cotton socks next to the skin and woolen socks over these. I know that practically all hunters, guides, and other woodsmen wear two pairs of socks.

REPLY.

Cotton worn next to the skin will aid the absorption of perspiration. This will prevent the softening of the skin so often observed when woolen hose are worn exclusively on perspiring feet.

DISTRIBUTING ESTATE.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—An estate in Illinois, consisting of various pieces of valuable property and several thousands in cash, was filed for probate one year and three months ago. The beneficiaries, some of whom are destitute, and knowing it is difficult to sell property at fair prices today, are anxious to share the cash on hand. The estate, including personal property and real estate, must be sold at private or public sales, the beneficiaries receiving their share in cash. Must a court order be obtained to divide the cash already on hand? The executor promised such action several weeks ago. What steps can be taken to hasten such action and bring pressure to bear upon the executor? E. F.

If the year for filing claims has expired, we see no objection to the executor's distributing the surplus cash, but ordinarily it is not done without court approval.

JOINT TENANCY PROPERTY.

In the event my sister should die would my brother-in-law be able to claim her share of the building? 2. In the event of divorce or separation could he claim it? 3. His name just appears on a card that he is my sister's husband. 4. The attorney gave us to understand, if one dies, the property automatically belongs to the two survivors and nothing can be claimed by others. 5. Mother did not understand this. People are telling her he can claim sister's share. T. L.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY.—Mexican socialism is nationalistic. It gives preference to Mexican workers and Mexican goods. It does not favor waiting until capitalistic concentration makes social upheaval imperative, but utilizes whatever power it holds to transfer production capital from the capitalists to the workers.

On the other hand, Mexican socialism, as far as it can be defined, resembles the common brands of socialism and even communism on the following points:

It is anti-religious and considers religion, especially the Catholic clergy, as the arch-enemy of the laboring classes. The constitution, which provided for laic education in public and private schools, was amended to compel socialistic education, giving a "rational explanation of the universe and which, in addition to the exclusion of every religious doctrin, will attack fanaticism and all errors."

It has a well defined tenet that the property of the means of production must pass into the hands of the workers. Former President Emilio Portes Gil recently said:

"The fighting means of the National Revolutionary [government] party are, principally, trade unionism that gives the workers the elements of defense they need for the conquest of their aims, and coöperative organizations having as their objective, first, the placing in the hands of the workers the means of production, and, second, the distribution of land to the peasants."

But the government of President Lazaro Cardenas believes that these transfers must not be made by force or expropriation without indemnity because there is too much foreign capital inserted in all kinds of business. It realizes, too, that this capital is needed to complete the country's industrial equipment. Any program based on outright confiscation would be a death blow to the country's economic life, the revolutionary leaders believe.

They say property right granted under existing laws must be respected, but they decline to insure that more radical laws will not be enacted in the future.

The trend among responsible men, apparently, is to accept whatever capital can be invested in business. However, they foster strongly the acquisition or creation of industries by groups of workers so that, side by side with capitalistic enterprises, the workers' industries will grow and prosper until they are able to eliminate the capitalists by competition.

This is already happening in the transportation field in Mexico City. The Canadian owned Mexico Tramways company, with a capital of tens of millions, has for fifteen years been meeting relentless competition from coöperatively owned "jitney" buses. The company's business has dwindled, but the "jitneys" are flourishing.

The secretariat of economy this year in drafting a new law on chambers of commerce stipulated the chambers should aid the exploitation by coöperatives of workers in every concern about to close down. Secretary of Economy Gen. Sanchez Tapia contended the transfer would be sought by agreement of the owners and workers, and that businesses would not be snatched from legitimate owners.

In practice, however, the indemnities claimed by workers when a business closes fully cover the value of the business and there is hardly any margin left for the owner. Gen. Sanchez Tapia stoutly maintains there is no intention to confiscate business, but to control its activities in order to limit its profits to a fair return.

He declares utility rates should be fixed to insure a reasonable return on capital, but not on reinvested profits. A nation-wide inspection of industry is being prepared to make an inventory of the means of production and so establish a basis to figure "fair profits."

Another trait of Mexican socialism is the practice of arming and drilling peasants and workers in military units "to defend the present distribution of land, to insure its peaceful exploitation by those to whom it was given and to realize the economic betterment of the working class."

THE SEASON'S GREETINGS.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—This morning as I was seated at the breakfast table I looked out into the yard and there to my surprise I saw a robin perched upon the fence. It being the shortest day of the year and the first day of winter it seemed a bit unusual. Is this a sign of spring or did he forget to go south?

EASILY COLLECTED TAXES.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Among the many business men who are now getting alarmed over the Townsend threat of a heavily pyramided sales tax it would be interesting to know how many have, themselves, tolerated sales and pay roll taxes, state or national, "because they are easily collected."

Poetic justice would indeed be served if those who have thus sown the 2 or 3 per cent wind should reap the 40 per cent whirlwind.

Serious economic diseases have resulted from our lazy habit of resorting to those taxes which are most easily collected; i. e., those whose victims are too busy or too poor to resist or evade. To tax the dollar which goes courageously into the market and buys goods or pays wages, and to leave untaxed the dollar which stays timidly at home and leaves a dollar's worth of unbought goods glutting the market, cannot fail to aggravate depression.

Neither Horner nor Townsend nor Roosevelt can get around the simple fact that a depression is a lack of sales of goods and labor power, and that the way to bring about a regrowth of sales volume is not to penalize it by piling taxes upon it.

When the true economic Moses appears you can tell him by his taxing plan. It will be directed at the hoarded dollar so as to jolt it into circulation.

ANSWER TO "SMALL HOME OWNER."

Chicago, Dec. 19.—The following is in answer to the question as to "What Is Plumbing," by Small Home Owner, which article appeared in your paper, Dec. 13:

The word or term "plumbing" as used in house bill No. 367 makes an exception of "minor repairs by a person upon his own premises."

Now, that should put the home owner who was wondering whether the council has been unionized and the home owner victimized, at ease.

Plumbing laws are passed and plumbers licensed to safeguard the health of the people. Therefore, a great deal of credit is due the authorities who are enforcing the laws and bringing to justice the persons who are found working at or doing plumbing work without a license.

The new plumbing ordinance was enacted Aug. 2, 1935, by the city council of Chicago entitled "Providing for a Board of Plumbing Examiners" to conduct examinations for journeyman plumbers, master plumbers to register plumbers' apprentices and to issue and revoke plumbers' licenses authorized by an act designated as the "Illinois plumbing license law" filed June 17, 1935, and subject to all other ordinances of said city relating to plumbers and the business of plumbing.

A CROSSWORD TECHNIQUE.

Huntington, Ind., Dec. 21.—Mr. Leonard Blameuser, in the Voice of the People Dec. 21, voiced my pet peeve since the creation of the crossword puzzle—the asininity of filling all spaces that prove difficult for good English words with foreign or obsolete words of no earthly value, and often, I suspect, made up by the crossword maker. The national crossword puzzle is already educational: If followed long enough no puzzle solver can avoid increasing his vocabulary by adding to his or her knowledge of synonyms.

The Tribune crossword puzzle is delightfully above the average in that the definitions are not unmistakable clews to the words wanted; giving correct but not the most commonly used meanings of the words. Some crosswords are nothing more than copying, requiring no thought whatever.

I have worked out a system for working crosswords by experts to whom the usual way has lost all charm. I stopped working them for a year because they became too easy, but brought all the pleasure back, even an added zest, by a new method of solution. Following are the rules of the game:

1. Go entirely through the diagram first for horizontal words, then for vertical words, and repeat the process round and round until the diagram is filled.
2. Insert no word unless absolutely sure of it.
3. When working words in one direction discipline the eye not to observe what the effect is on crossing words. This is important; creates fun.
4. Make no attempt to insert long words when going their way the first time; it affords a delightful kick when on the next trip around it is found that letters have fed into them from crossing words, indicating at once what the long words are.

Solving crossword puzzles my new way ought to bring back all the bored experts and make hundreds of new addicts. I formerly did one each day; I now do two or three if available.

AN ABANDONED AUTOMOBILE.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—My neighbors would appreciate it if the Hyde Park police and the state's attorney's office, both of whom have been notified, would "steal" the Packard sedan automobile, Illinois license number 1-260-125, which has been parked across from 6249 Rhodes avenue for three weeks. This car has been involved in an accident, possibly in a robbery. The damage: Hole in roof, right side dented, fenders caved in and rear left window broken.

A week ago I told a passing police squad car that this car was parked there for two weeks. Two days ago I sent a note to the state's attorney's office. The car is still there. Isn't there a law to the effect that all night street parking is illegal?

Washington Parker.

MAYBE THEY KNOW WHAT IT COSTS.

Chicago Heights, Ill., Dec. 21.—Every once in a while I read in your paper that some business men or bankers are afraid of inflation.

What I would like to know is why they are afraid of inflation. Is it because they are afraid the debtor class will be able to pay their debts? Or is it because they are afraid the 11 million unemployed will be put back to work? Or is it because they are afraid that they won't get back dollars of greater purchasing power than those they loaned in 1928 and 1929?

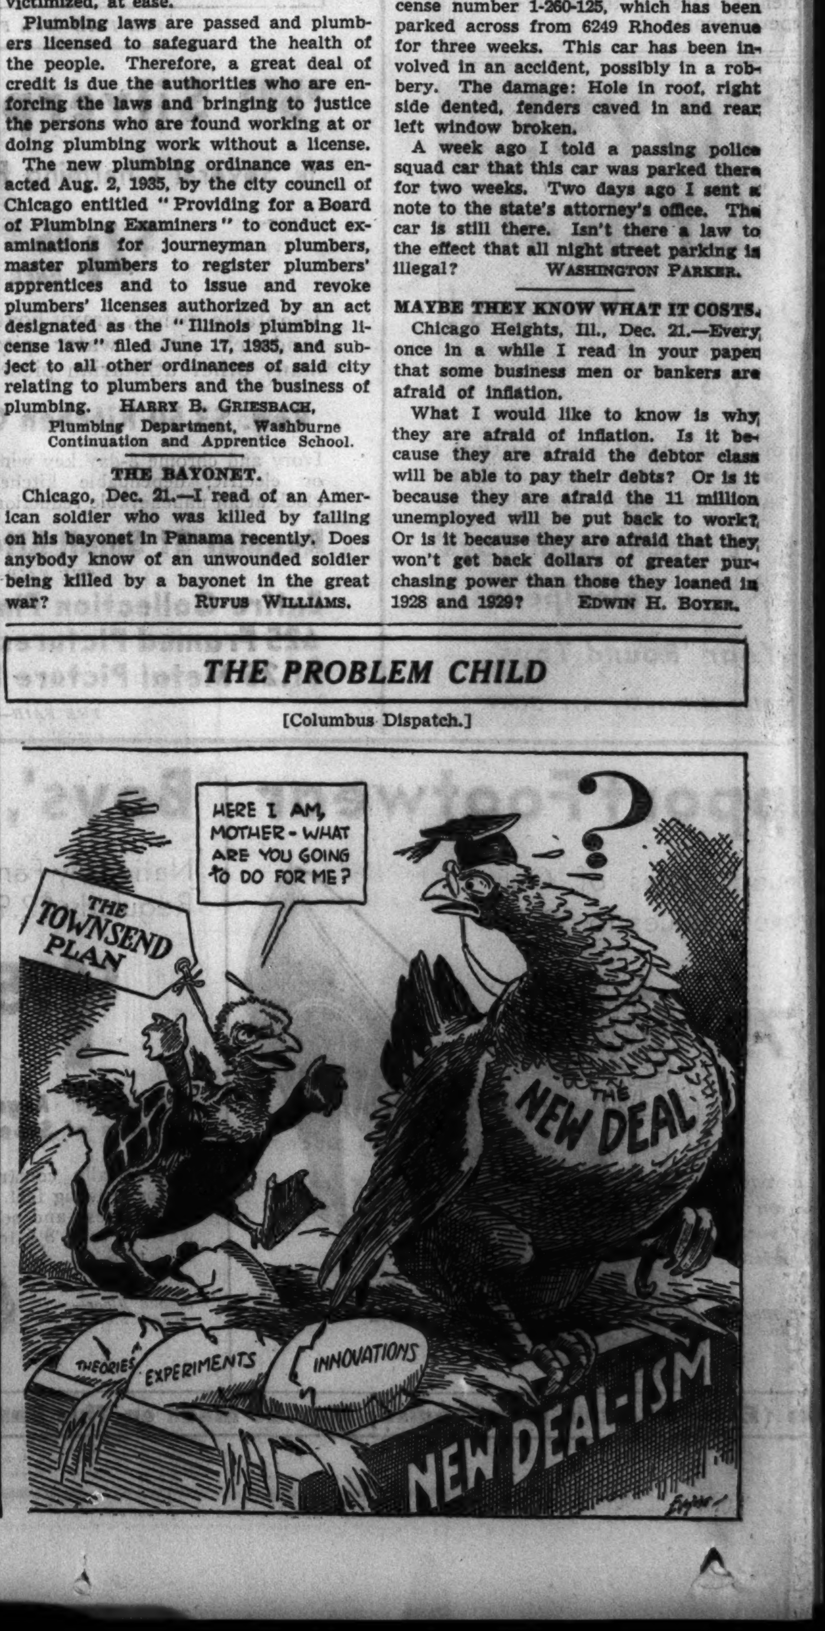
[Columbus Dispatch.]



MENACE OF WAR MOURNED BY PIUS IN YULE MESSAGE

Pained by Failure of Hope for Peace.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Pope Pius mourned the failure of peace and the menace of war today.

The pontiff, on the 56th anniversary of his ordination, told 34 cardinals who brought Christmas greetings to him that "we have not abandoned hope."

"These are days of the gravest preoccupation," he said, "holding the world in painful and tormenting suspense. We truly wish to find and to make a beneficial contribution to all these sad and complex problems.

Hope Not Fulfilled.

"Until now we had hoped to bring today, in this beautiful hour serene, a reassuring word. Our hope has not been fulfilled.

"This is not to say that we have abandoned hope. We cannot, and that is a happy situation, because for us hope is a duty and is deeply embedded in Christian life.

"We have come to Christmas in moments darkened by melancholy, menacing clouds, and human bloodshed. The way has become so bitter, difficulty, and even menacing, that one might say in mountaineering language it is full of dangerous steps.

"We have traveled this road with truly heavy and painful thoughts until finally we are preoccupied with the peace that is endangered and the menace of war. May God dissipate these visions!"

Criticizes Three Nations.

The pope, in what was taken to be a reference to Russia, Mexico, and Germany, said he regretted to hear "voices from immense regions of great peoples continuing to cry, 'without God.'"

In an unannounced encyclical on "priesthood," the pontiff said the church "has no fear of progress." The encyclical was his message to the new cardinals he elevated on Dec. 20.

The priest, the pope said, "must be as healthily modern as is the church, which is at home in all times and all places, and welcomes all; which blesses and furthers healthy initiative and has no fear of progress, even the most daring progress of science, so only that it be true science."

The encyclical said the priest is "another Christ," and not only must have thorough sacred learning but in addition "must be graced by no less knowledge and culture than is usual among the well-bred, well-educated people of his day."

Pope Pius warned against the "shallow, superficial piety which attracts, but does not nourish, which is busy, but does no solid good."

German Pastor, Foe of Nazis, Seized as Church Crowd Waits

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—Hans Kerrl, Nazi minister of church affairs, and the secret political police celebrated Christmas eve by placing under arrest in his apartment the Rev. Gerhard Jacobi, chairman of the Berlin confessional synod and brotherhood council. Dr. Jacobi had been scheduled to preach at 6 o'clock this evening in his church, Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial, one of the largest and most influential Protestant churches in the capital.

Last week Minister Kerrl's Prussian church directorate suspended Dr. Jacobi and forbade him to occupy the pulpit of his church until further notice. Dr. Jacobi announced he did not recognize the spiritual authority of the minister or the church administration and that he would continue to preach to his parishoners.

Church Is Crowded.

The Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial, a large church, was crowded to capacity tonight and hundreds were turned away. The balconies, chancel, ailes, and every other available space were filled with persons eager to hear the Christmas eve sermon of the famous opponent of Nazi control of the church. Dr. Forowish, another confessional synod pastor, was substituted for Dr. Jacobi. He announced to the congregation Dr. Jacobi's arrest.

In the vestibule of the church, meantime, the German Christian society [Nazi] had taken control. A large table near the main entrance was piled high with copies of the Swastika Christian Journal's "Positive Christianity" and "Gospel in the Third Reich." No other literature was in sight. A functionary of the German Christian organization offered copies of the papers to the congregation as it came out of the church.

Dr. Jacobi has repeatedly declared from his pulpit and in various publications that the German Christians are trying to turn the Protestant church in Germany into a hybrid of half Swastika and half Christian religious society, and has denounced them as heretics and enemies of Christ in his church.

Dr. Niemoeller Preaches.

The secret police did not interfere with Dr. Jacobi's friend, the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, also a militant opponent of Nazi church control. He preached this evening from the pulpit of his church in Dahlem, a Berlin suburb. Dr. Niemoeller has been forbidden by the secret police to preach or deliver addresses anywhere in Germany outside of Berlin, but he is allowed by special police dispensation to preach to his own parishioners.

Churches throughout Berlin were crowded tonight. In all parts of the city people were turned away because no more standing room was available.

Coast Guard Here Reports 55 Lives Saved During 1935

Capt. LeRoy Reinburg, Chicago division commander of the United States coast guard, made his annual report yesterday, disclosing that 55 persons were saved from drowning during 1935 by the guardsmen on Lakes Superior, Michigan, and Huron. A total of 805 vessels were given aid during the year, 325 being in actual danger of loss or serious damage.

CHILDREN GATHER AT YULE PARTIES FOR THE NEEDY

Thousands Get Presents; Clothing for Many.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Many poor children were ushered into meetings of adults in various sections of the city yesterday and, as they gathered around gleaming Christmas trees, were presented with toys, fruit, and candy. In many cases they were given winter clothing.

Several hundred children in families on relief were entertained at the Y. M. C. A. at 3736 South Wabash avenue in the afternoon. In the Central Y. M. C. A. lobby, 19 South La Salle street, 50 little boys and 50 little girls, selected because they otherwise would not have shared in any Christmas festivities, gathered around a 14 foot Christmas tree.

Previously they had been measured for clothing, and when they departed after a party lasting an hour, it was with new clothing which fitted well, underclothing, headgear, gloves, stockings, and other things. Substantial food, fruit, and candy accompanied the bundles of clothing.

Benefit Headquarters Busy.

A busy place yesterday was headquarters of Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit, of which Mayor Kelly was chairman, at 33 North La Salle street.

There the packing of 60,000 boxes of boys' and girls' clothing of specified sizes was completed and army trucks were loaded with bundles and taken to central points in all parts of the city. Neighborhood deliveries will be completed this morning, according to Barnet Hodes, secretary of the benefit.

Funds were raised for the clothing by "A Night of Stars" performance and a charity football game between public and parochial high schools. Thousands of toys were obtained through schools and police and fire departments, and were remodeled at the Bridewell. They are being delivered to needy children along with clothing.

Salvation Army corps No. 1, 1512 Madison street, entertained more than 900 boys and girls at a Christmas party in the afternoon. The children were given candy, fruit, nuts, and toys. This was one of 19 parties the Salvation Army gave throughout the city, at which the young guests numbered 3,000 in all. Santa Claus and a clown welcomed them.

Christmas celebrations also were in progress at the Salvation Army's home and hospital, South Side Settlement and Day Nursery, and Industrial home.

600 Baskets for Families.

Shoppers and others who dropped coins into the kettles presided over by the Salvation Army's young men and women who have been ringing bells in the loop are assured that their money will be providing a good Christmas for many today, officials said. From the proceeds 600 baskets are going to families, each sufficient for dinner for eight.

Albert J. Horan, chief bailiff of the Municipal court, sponsored a Christmas party at the Senate theater during the morning. Crippled children from the Jesse Spaulding school were among the guests. Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th] was host to children of the ward during the morning at the State theater, 5814 Madison street. Children from the Spaulding school and the Martha Washington home for crippled children were among the guests.

The Coöperators' club held a party in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman last night and raised funds to provide a turkey dinner and toys today for 23 working mothers and their 28 children who are cared for by the Coöperators at the Home club, 6625 South Racine avenue.

CHRISTMAS EVE FINDS NEW YORK IN CHEERY MOOD

New York, Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Christmas eve found New York City far more cheerful and buoyant than it has been for years.

Thousands of New Yorkers were leaving the city to spend the holiday in the country, while other thousands arriving from other cities, heard the cavernous Grand Central terminal resound to a choir of 120 voices.

The Christmas eve trafic was one indication of uplifted morale and greater cheerfulness. Outward bound planes thundered out of airports with loads of gifts dispatched at the last minute.

Huge crowds jammed the stores in a last minute rush to dispense good cheer. The spurt in sales, showing increases in trade from 50 to 100 per cent, was a surprise even to the most optimistic.

There were parties aplenty with gifts of food, clothing and toys for the poor of the city and there will be more tomorrow.

1,500 CONVICTS GIVEN FREEDOM FOR CHRISTMAS

Bridewell Ejects Several Who Wish to Remain.

Christmas eve held a special significance for 1,500 persons throughout the nation yesterday. In the spirit of "peace on earth, good will towards men," Illinois and 17 sister states freed that many deserving convicts and jail prisoners by pardons, paroles, commutations of sentence, or "man-to-man" agreements to return to prison after the holidays.

In Illinois and other snow covered regions, many of the prisoners were reluctant to leave their warm quarters. Mayor Kelly, on recommendation of Superintendent Edward J. Denemark pardoned 132 inmates of the Bridewell, who were sentenced for minor offenses. Although fed with an ample dinner and given 7 cents carfare, several said they would rather stay locked up because of the light summer clothes they were wearing. Nevertheless, they had freedom thrust upon them.

One of 73 Sticks to Joliet.

Warden Frank D. Whipp opened the doors of the state penitentiary at Joliet to 73 convicts, but he granted the request of one of them to stay. The man who tarried is Henry Lange, 55 years old, who completed 5 years of an 8 year sentence for rape in Kane county.

Lange returned the customary $10 parting gift with instructions for Warden Whipp to use it buying toys for some poor children. Asserting he had no home in which to spend Christmas, Lange was transferred to the prison honor farm, and will be released again next week.

One reason for Lange's reluctance to leave the warm prison, said the warden, is the Christmas dinner of 1,550 chickens which the 5,600 inmates will eat today. Because all guards will be given the afternoon off, the convicts will be locked in their cells after dinner, but a public address system connected with every cell, will bring them singing by fellow convicts.

500 Temporary Paroles.

In accordance with the annual Alabama custom, Gov. Bibb Graves yesterday sent 500 state prisoners to their home for holiday dinners, after receiving their promise to return and finish their sentences after the Yuletide. In the last eight years only seven convicts have violated this temporary Christmas parole.

Among the convicts freed throughout the country were 900, including several women, who had completed the atonement which society exacted.

Following are the states, in addition to Illinois and Alabama, which gave convicts Christmas freedom yesterday: Florida, 188; California, 6; Colorado, 5; Iowa, 37; Maine, 5; Maryland, 21; Massachusetts, 150; Michigan, 12; Minnesota, 20; Nebraska, 12; New York, 10; Ohio, 43; Oklahoma, 75; Pennsylvania, 56; Virginia, 50; West Virginia, 67, and Wisconsin, 35.

O'Donnell Is Freed.

Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, one time beer baron on the south side, won't have to spend his Christmas in jail eating the usual bread and bologna sausage, as appeared likely yesterday morning. O'Donnell was arrested near the city hall Monday by policemen who took literally their orders to seize him every time he appeared in the loop.

Early last evening, 29 hours after the arrest, they relented of their resolve to hold him until tomorrow. They charged him formally with disorderly conduct and released him in bail of $100.

CHRISTMAS EVE GIVES HIM HIS FIRST CENTURY

Waukesha, Wis., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—This Christmas eve fulfilled an ambition of James Cline, 123 Greenfield avenue, who was 100 years old today. For many years he had told members of his family of the wish to reach a century mark.

"I never used tobacco or intoxicating liquor," Mr. Cline said today, "and I've always voted the straight Republican ticket."

Mr. Cline recently took an airplane ride, so he could say he had ridden in a covered wagon and had flown. When a child Cline was brought to Wisconsin from Pennsylvania. He recalls the days when Chicago "was only a mud hole."

The Cline family settled on a farm in southern Wisconsin. In 1857 Cline moved to Lafayette county, Wisconson, and bought a farm. He later lived in Darlington and in Appleton. In September of this year he moved to Waukesha to spend his declining years with his daughter, Mrs. W. E. Lovell.

Santa Claus Is Barred from Moscow.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Dec. 24.—There are no signs of Christmas in Moscow and no "Christmas spirit" save amongst a handful of foreign residents. True, today was a holiday, "free day," and some Russians perhaps utilized it for quiet parties at home but there have been no Christmas trees on sale and no Christmas display in the stores. Some of the few Moscow churches that remain open will have midnight services tonight but most of them still adhere to the old style calendar whereby Christmas comes thirteen days hence.

Christianity Replaced.

Only outwardly does Moscow look like Christmas. This is the result of a blizzard which raged for twenty-four hours and left the city a foot and a half deep in snow. And the snow clad towers, domes and minarets of the Kremlin, either when seen from the bridge over the Moscow river or from the entrance to Red square, where they are completed by the fantastic Church of Saint Basil, are more like a Christmas card than any Christmas card could ever be.

The fact of the matter is Christianity is moribund in the soviet union—strangled and replaced by the newer, harsher creed of communism. Ever under czarism orthodox Christianity was corrupt and mechanical, grown remote from the people by the strangeness of its language—ancient Slavonic, less comprehensible to the average Russian than Chaucer to the average African—and by the venality, sloth and ineptitude of its priests. It appeared chiefly through habit—superstitious terror—and the sensuous charm and beauty of its churches, ritual and music.

Hated as Czarist Pillar.

The bolsheviks hated it as one of the pillars of czarist autocracy and although the stories of "persecution" of priests and believers were doubtless exaggerated, the pressure exerted against the church has been relentless and unrelaxed.

Today the soviet weapons are twofold and deadly, ridicule and education. The children, whose festival Christmas chiefly is in America, are taught from the kindergarten upward that Christianity is a fictitious, alien and obsolete superstition.

Pose as Yule Deliverymen and Rob Woman of $369

Two men appeared yesterday at the apartment of Mrs. Mildred Kramer, 2956 Flournoy street, and said they had a Christmas package for her. When she admitted them one of the men drew a revolver and ordered her to disclose the hiding place of her money. Mrs. Kramer told them the money was on a closet shelf and the men fled with $369.

Cuban President Frees Four Rebel Girl Students

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 24.—(AP)—President José Barnet signed separate decrees today freeing Echevarria y Menocal, who was "Miss University" of the University of Havana this year, and three other girl students who were serving sentences imposed by urgency courts for anti-government acts.

URGE EXCEPTIONS TO FIRE-POLICE RETIREMENT LAW

Many Past 63 Viewed as Valuable to Forces.

On the question of whether the new state law for the retirement of policemen and firemen at the age of 63 is compulsory or can be waived at the discretion of the department heads depends the fate of many of the 178 policemen and 30 firemen who have passed the age limit. The statute becomes effective on Jan. 1.

Quin O'Brien, assistant city corporation counsel, said last night that he is examining the text of the statute and will furnish his interpretation of it to police and fire department heads before the law goes into operation. Many civic organizations have pointed out that a policeman or fireman is not necessarily incapable of competent service after he reaches 63 and that men valuable to the forces might be pushed into retirement under arbitrary operation of the new law.

Pensions Equal Half of Pay.

The law provides that policemen retiring under the law shall receive pensions equal to half the amount of their regular salaries. The pensions for firemen are estimated on an actuarial basis with half the regular salary being the minimum.

Four veteran policemen voluntarily resigned yesterday. At the Summerdale station Capt. Martin J. O'Malley, Lieut. John McSween, and Sergt. John Tierney went into retirement and each of them was presented with a gold watch by the policemen assigned to the district. Capt. O'Malley, who is 73 years old, was on the force for 47 years. Lieut. McSween, 70 years old, was on the force 40 years, and Sergt. Tierney, 63 years old, is a veteran of 35 years.

Lieut. Edward Goggin tendered his resignation at the Grand Crossing station. He is 68 years old and has served 44 years in the department.

The Paul Reveres, a patriotic organization, yesterday protested to Mayor Kelly and Police Commissioner Allman against retirement of Lieut. Make Mills, veteran head of the industrial squad, under the new statute. Lieut. Mills, who is past the age limit, "has aided in the suppression of radicalism and communistic activity," the Paul Reveres said, and the mayor was urged to retain him in the department. The lieutenant's forced retirement would be a "definite impairment of the program for combating radicals and communists in Chicago," the Paul Reveres contended.

Mayor Broadcasts Greetings.

Mayor Kelly yesterday broadcast Christmas greetings to 1,500 firemen who listened in as he talked over a microphone from the central fire alarm office on the sixth floor of the city hall. One hundred and forty-five houses are connected by the fire department's broadcasting system. Alluding to his father, the late Stephen Kelly, who was a private in the fire department and later a patrolman in the police department, Mayor Kelly said:

"Because of my father's memory you fellows have always occupied an affectionate spot in my heart. On behalf of the citizens of your Chicago I want to express their earnest thanks to you for your splendid service during the last year. May God bless you and keep you safe and sound in the new year."

Last night the mayor extended Christmas greetings to the police department. In a communication sent to Police Commissioner Allman and read at roll calls in all stations, the mayor said that he regarded the Chicago force as the finest in the country and had a personal affection for every member because his father had been a policeman.

COURT ENJOINS CUTTING FIXED LIQUOR PRICES

Circuit Judge Benjamin P. Epstein issued permanent injunctions yesterday restraining two liquor retailers from selling advertised brands of whisky at prices lower than those fixed by the manufacturers. The rulings upheld the constitutionality of the state fair trade practices act passed last July by the general assembly.

The injunctions were obtained by the Joseph Triner corporation, 1333 South Ashland avenue, distributor of Schenley liquor products, against Carl W. McNeill, 3144 Irving Park boulevard, and Joseph R. Oransky, 6245 South Halsted street, retailers.

Judge Epstein pointed out that the fair trade practices law applies only to branded products on which a contract to maintain a minimum price exists between many retailers and the distributor or manufacturer. "The act does not apply to any contract or agreement between producers or between wholesalers or between retailers as to the sale or retail prices." Judge Epstein said. "Such agreements may still be unlawful."

Physician and His Wife Reconciled for Christmas

Superior Judge Joseph Sabath entered an order yesterday dismissing the divorce bill brought by Mrs. Rose A. [illegible] against Dr. Alexander [illegible], a physician with offices at 41[illegible]0 Madison street. The judge last week urged the couple to become reconciled in time for Christmas and yesterday Mrs. [illegible] consented to drop her action.

KING RUM [illegible] PARDONED.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Roy Olmstead, convicted [illegible] of the northwest's rum runners almost ten years ago, received an unconditional pardon today from President Roosevelt. It [illegible] his civil rights and remitted his $8,000 fine and costs of $[illegible]387.95.

CHRISTMAS EVE BUYING RICHEST IN FIVE YEARS

Shoppers Jam Loop in Last Minute Rush.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Chicago stores and shops, ready for a sharp slackening in holiday shopping yesterday, got a pleasant surprise when the rush of buyers continued almost unabated until the closing hour. The heaviest demand was for standby gifts, which require neither imagination nor time for selection.

Who wants a necktie? One loop store sold 2,500 yesterday. Or handkerchiefs? Or socks? Stationery sold by the ton, as did such staples as fountain pens, candy, mufflers and gloves, while the perfume department of one large loop store was thronged by swains as late as 4 p. m.

Buying Is Up 10 Pct.

In most years—with the possible exception of 1934—buying has stopped abruptly on Christmas eve. Yesterday's trade volume exceeded even that of 1934 by 10 per cent, according to the State street council.

The crowds that thronged the stores were the merriest in years. The air was brisk and tingling. Enough snow remained to make it Christmasy. One genial young shopper wore a circlet of Christmas cards protruding from his hat band. His companion merrily swung a huge red and white striped candy cane. Christmas trees were tied to tops of many cars.

The rush started at 10:30 a. m. when, in appreciation of the "best Christmas since 1930," State street merchants arranged a caroling parade through the heart of the shopping district.

Tiny Carolers Sing.

The strains of "Holy Night" sounded above the stir of elevated and street cars, opening the event. At noon "St. Nick," sung by the tiny red cloaked carolers from the Little French school, 43 East Elm street, led by Rufus Dawes Jr., closed it.

Carolers in red, carolers in green, and carolers in 17th century English costumes took part, riding down State street in six horse tally-hos and a great packer's wagon. A singing Santa Claus walked.

Marchers Sing in Units.

Singing in units, others also marched. There were the Mastersingers, professional male group; the a cappella choir of Senn High school, and the pupils of the French school, singing in clear childish treble.

For two hours they sang, while trafic policemen maneuvered trafic for their convenience. When they had gone, leaving the singing spirit of Christmas behind them, Salvation Army singers and others took it up, mingling their carols gently and sweetly with the noise of the "world's busiest corner" at State and Madison streets.

Dog Marooned on Ice Saved 2 Miles Off Shore

Pal, an Irish setter, took an involuntary cruise on Lake Michigan yesterday. The dog stepped on a loose cake of ice off shore at the northern limits of Waukegan and was borne two miles out on the lake before his plight was discovered. Then Lieut. Virgil Stewart of the Waukegan police and two of his men went to the dog's rescue in a fishing boat. He was delivered to his master, Chester A. Sankiewicz, a Waukegan druggist.

KIDNAP AND ROB MESSENGER.

George Terfler, 1850 Washburn avenue, a messenger for the Schmidt Brothers Printing company at 638 Federal street, told police yesterday that two gunmen kidnaped him in the Union station, drove him about the streets in their car for a half hour, and robbed him of $126 of the company's money.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Pig Incubators.

December 24, 1935.

HASTILY improvised incubators were used the other night to save seventy-two new born pigs at the Tribune Experimental farm near Yorkville. Three barrels furnished ample space for handling seven litters of pigs born within a period of nine and one-half hours while subzero winds whistled around the corners of the "hog hospital."

Three men stayed up all night acting as nurses. They took ordinary barrels, stood them upright near the sows, padded the bottoms with straw and heated them with lanterns. A lantern was placed inside each barrel and swung by a stick resting on the top edges of the barrel.

As soon as the pigs were born they were snugly tucked away in a deep bed of warm straw in the bottom of the barrel where they were kept for about an hour and then returned to their mothers.

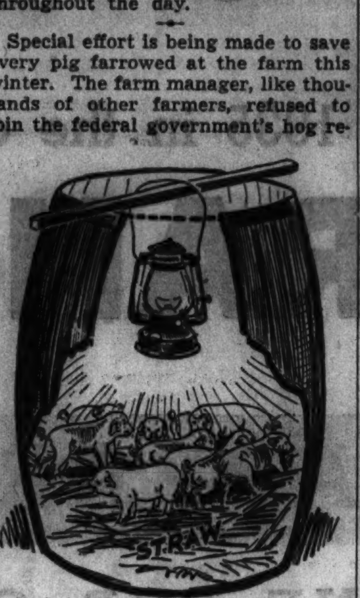
With three barrel incubators the men were able to change the straw and have the straw bed warmed and ready for the next litter. The seven sows all farrowed one night last week between the hours of 9 p. m. and 3:30 a. m. when the thermometer outside registered 3 degrees below zero. Careful nursing kept every pig alive.

The practice of warming barrels with lanterns was established several years ago on the Yorkville place. This scheme has saved many pigs that otherwise would have been killed from exposure in extremely cold weather.

The seven sows were among sixteen that farrowed at the farm last week, producing an average of nine pigs. Five other sows farrowed fifty pigs in individual houses. The houses all were banked high with manure on the outside. In this way the sows were kept comfortable and the pigs were all saved without the aid of artificial heat or the homemade pig incubator.

The four other sows, out of a total of sixteen, farrowed their pigs in daylight Saturday in a warm barn. Their pigs also were saved without the use of artificial heat, although the temperature stayed near the zero mark throughout the day.

Special effort is being made to save every pig farrowed at the farm this winter. The farm manager, like thousands of other farmers, refused to join the federal government's hog reducing plan and is producing the maximum number of pigs by having the sows produce two litters a year. In this way the farm is doing its part to help offset the pork shortage.



Artist's sketch of pig incubator.

Workers at the Yorkville place are having trouble in preventing losses among the fall farrowed pigs. Twelve sows that farrowed seventy pigs the latter part of October have only fifty left. Extra precautions have been taken during the current cold spell to prevent further losses. The house where the young porkers are kept is heated with a stove.

The farm manager said today that midwinter farrowing of pigs is always a big risk.

"If I can save 60 per cent of our fall and winter farrowed pigs it is about all I can expect," he commented.

Fourteen Chester White barrows were selected the other day from the Yorkville farm herd of hogs for butchering at the Wheaton farm. These barrows will be fed for about another month before they are transferred to the Wheaton farm for immediate slaughter.

CHRISTMAS EVE ROBBERS RAID JEWEL CONCERN

While last minute Christmas shoppers thronged the intersection of State and Madison streets last evening two gunmen forced their way into the Goldstein Brothers jewelry manufacturing concern on the 19th floor of the Stevens building at 17 North State street and looted the safe of gems valued at $5,000 to $15,000.

Thrusting a pistol through a grilled window, the robbers, one of whom wore dark glasses, compelled Jack Goldstein, 32 years old, 4211 West 14th street, a brother of Samuel and Harry Goldstein, the two owners, to open the door. They slugged Goldstein, bound his arms with wire, and taped his mouth.

As the robbers searched the open safe, Sigmund Stern, 2201 North Halsted street, a repair man, walked in. He was also bound and gagged. A few minutes after the gunmen fled, Jack Goldstein's wife entered, freed her husband and Stern, and notified the police. Samuel and Harry Goldstein, who arrived later, said their loss was insured.

In a similar robbery in 1927 when their office was on the 14th floor of the building the Goldsteins were reported to have lost $100,000.

CHRISTMAS MAIL NEARS ALL-TIME 24 HOUR RECORD

A sudden large increase in Christmas mail passing through the Chicago postoffice, reflecting improving business conditions, was reported yesterday by Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen.

In a 24-hour period ending yesterday morning, 12,328,517 pieces of first class mail were handled, Mr. Kruetgen said, as compared with 5,053,950 pieces handled in a similar period last year. The deluge closely approached the record of 12,945,160 pieces handled in 1931.

In the same 24 hour period ending yesterday the postal employés cleared 53,167 sacks of parcel post, more than double the 24,544 sacks handled in the corresponding period last year. The volume of first class mail from Dec. 10 to 23 was 21.5 per cent greater this year than last, and of parcel post 13.2 per cent larger.

Hotel Blaze Interrupts Trafic on Sheridan Road

Trafic was interrupted for an hour yesterday afternoon by a basement fire in the Stanleigh apartment hotel, 6800 Sheridan road, which routed about 100 guests and attracted a crowd of spectators. Smoke poured from windows on the first and second floor until firemen fought their way though it and located the blaze in a storeroom. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

MORE MUSICAL BOONDOGGLING STARTED BY WPA

Tuners and Accompanyists Get In on It.

Piano tuners, accompanists, musical instrument repairmen, and even music arrangers now are being hired for a Works Progress administration project which is to supplement other WPA projects, it was learned yesterday. No date had yet been set, however, for the first public appearances of a 75 piece symphony orchestra and two 45 piece bands which have been rehersing for some time.

"We will have a couple of piano tuners to look after the pianos at all public park fieldhouses and other places where the music units perform," said Albert Iver Coleman, director of music projects in Chicago. "We will also have a couple of repairmen to take care of other instruments.

Will Write Complete Scores.

"There will be ten accompanists to serve vocal solosists, and five arrangers. The latter will be theater men who can take a piano number and write out a complete orchestral score from it. All in all, we expect this project to help us a great deal with our regular projects."

Mr. Coleman said he is waiting for assignments of other musicians from relief rolls to form an instrumental ensemble of 35 pieces, composed mainly of violins, guitars, wood winds, and harps. A choral ensemble of 30 pieces will also be formed, he said.

The only music projects now before the public are the two orchestra units accompanying WPA vaudeville troupes.

"We don't want to present any of our groups until we are sure they will satisfy the audiences," Mr. Coleman said. "It hasn't yet been decided whether to charge admission to concerts."

Musicians receive either $85 or $94 a month, according to the rating they are given by an "audition committee" made up of non-WPA leaders in the profession.

Will "Survey" Finances.

The WPA headquarters here was notified yesterday of the approval by Washington officials of a project to survey local government finances, with special reference to the operation of the property tax and relative tax burdens on urban and rural real estate. Federal funds of $114,551 have been earmarked for the work, which is sponsored by the state tax commission.

The last of 85,000 pay checks to be distributed in four days were given to WPA workers yesterday. This established a speed record for the WPA pay roll and paymaster's divisions, and was in accord with orders from Washington.

Mayor A. Henry Arp of Moline played Santa Claus to 343 WPA workers employed on the construction of an airport at Moline, when he had an airplane pick up $10,300 in pay checks for the men. The checks were ready at Chicago yesterday morning, but were still a long way from Moline and the men would not have received them had not the mayor chartered the plane.

GOV. HORNER RETURNS FROM RELIEF PARLEY WITH ROOSEVELT; ILL

Returned from his conference with President Roosevelt, Gov. Horner paused briefly in Chicago yesterday before proceeding to Springfield to spend Christmas day in bed on the orders of his physician. He said he was suffering from a severe cold and had been warned that influenza might develop unless precautions are taken.

The governor said he had not heard anything as to the fate of his plea to President Roosevelt for an unscheduled grant of federal relief funds for use after Jan. 1. President Roosevelt took the matter under consideration Monday after being closeted with Horner for nearly an hour.

While awaiting a definite reply from the President, Gov. Horner will not turn to other possible sources, he said, to supply 10 million dollars needed in the next four months in addition to regular state relief funds of about 2 million dollars a month, consitsting of one-third of the 3 per cent sales tax revenue. The Illinois emergency relief commission is now spending its December grant of federal funds, and has been told no more will be given. Relief officials were not hopeful that Horner's plea would meet with success.

Owner of Poisoned Dog Wins a $200 Judgment

Justice of the Peace James G. Barber of Evanston entered a $200 judgment yesterday against George W. Kost, 77 years old, 507 West Belmont avenue, Arlington Heights, after hearing evidence in a suit for $400 brought by Ernest A. Thiel, 34 years old, of Arlington Heights, for the loss of his collie dog which was poisoned on Oct. 15. Albert Rector, a druggist, testified he sold poison to Kost, who said he intended to use it on dogs. Kost denied the charge and said he would appeal.

WORK ON OUTER LINK WILL START WITHIN 10 DAYS

Contract for Foundations Let; Cost $928,505.

Work on construction of the south approach foundations of the Outer drive bridge project will start within ten days, George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the Chicago park district stated yesterday following award of the contract for the work to the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company.

Park commissioners at their regular meeting yesterday formally awarded the contract for $928,505. Final notice that the Public Works administration had granted $1,972,000 to finance in part the construction of the bridge was presented to the board. Approximately $6,500,000 will be spent to complete the project, the balance being furnished by the park district.

North Side Almost Complete.

The outer bridge link, begun in 1931, will connect the north and south outer drives, speed up through trafic and relieve congestion on Michigan avenue. Most of the work done four years ago was on the north approach which is practically completed.

Although the full amount of funds for construction of the bridge was raised through the sale of bonds several years ago, these funds were used to maintain the credit of the Lincoln and South park districts by diverting the money to service of the bonded debt of the districts.

Restore Bridge Fund.

The bridge fund will be restored under the $111,000,000 bond refinancing program which the consolidated park district will undertake shortly.

Three shifts of workers are to be employed in the building of foundations so that work on the superstructure can be started as soon as possible. Park district engineers estimate that the average daily employment on the bridge project will be more than 3,000 men. It is planned to have the bridge ready for use in 17 months.

NO DEMOCRATS RUNNING NATION, SAYS JAS. A. REED

Kansas City, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The issue confronting the people of the United States, former Senator James A. Reed asserted today, is whether they are "to control themselves in their lives and fortunes or be controled by the arbitrary will of the individual who happens at this time to be chief executive."

Reed, in an interview, declared there was no Democratic party in office now.

"We elected men on the Democratic ticket," the Missourian said, referring to the Roosevelt administration, "but they have been voting for Socialism, bolshevism, and every other kind of 'ism' except Americanism.

"I do not mean by that the rank and file of the Democratic party, who have been betrayed, are for this."

The former senator declared he would not vote for President Roosevelt if he was renominated.

Politician Mistakes Poison for Medicine; Gravely Ill

Logansport, Ind., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Fred Carson, 70, prominent politician, is in critical condition after taking poison he had mistaken for a medicine.

ROBBED ON WAY FROM WORK OF $21 AND CLOTHES

Returning home from work last evening, William Quain, 33 years old, 6210 South Fairfield avenue, a foundry worker, stepped from a street car at 63d street and Washtenaw avenue, where two men forced him at pistol point into an automobile. They thrust Quain out into the snow at 67th street and South Keeler avenue, after taking $21 and all his clothing except his underwear and socks. A motorist took Quain to the Chicago Lawn police station, Sergt. Joseph Leonard gave the shivering victim a police overcoat and a pair of shoes, and then drove him home.

THREE GUNMEN ROB TAVERN.

As John Ruby, bartender, was about to close the tavern at 4518 63d street early yesterday, three gunmen menaced him and three patrons and robbed the till of $10.

BIG TELESCOPE'S VISION OF MARS CREATES PUZZLE

200 Inch "Eye" Is Taken from Mold.

Corning, N. Y., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The astronomical puzzle of what the 200 inch telescope mirror will see on Mars was revived here today with announcement that the big "eye" is being successfully freed from the huge mold in which it was cast.

Reports persist that the great telescope will show a house, if there is one, on the moon, and anything as large as a city, if one exists, on Mars. Astronomers say no.

Laymen are Baffled.

The baffling thing for laymen is the fact that the 17 foot wide mirror will bring down to earth, in the intense light concentrated from its surface, things as small as these, but that at present science knows of no method to "resolve," or see, objects of that size in the mirror.

The mirror does not magnify what it sees. It bring in vastly more light, and the astronomers can magnify the images limned in that light, as much as they wish, with microscopes. The upper limit of magnifying these images is not in the microscopes, but in the earth's atmosphere.

Gathers More Light.

A six inch mirror compared with the 200 inch will illustrate. Two stars seen in either mirror would be pin points of light. There would be no differences in their diameters. They would be about the same distance apart at each mirror's focus.

But when a microscope was placed on them the stars in the 6 inch mirror would become fuzzy. Those in the giant mirror would still remain brilliant points of light. The difference is due to the giant mirror gathering so much more light.

The difference is similar to enlarging photographs. The enlargements contain no more detail than the small originals.

Theoretically large enough mirrors would bring in enough light to see details, but the earth's atmosphere interferes. The air always is boiling, so that the light on the mirror is trembling.

Twinkling is Modified.

Enlargement under a microscope, while it increases the size of the object seen, also magnifies the twinkling. With very small objects, such as a city on Mars, this causes blurring. The blurring is so great that astronomers do not expect to be able to see details that small, no matter how much larger telescopes become.

There may be indirect methods of getting past this blur. One method, devised by Dr. Joel Stebbins of Yerkes observatory, used a photoelectric cell in a vacuum to scan the light from the mirror.

Dr. Stebbins' cell does not apply at present to problems of seeing Mars "canals" or cities. It might point the way, if Martians have a Christmas, to methods of detecting that season when science pushes farther into the photo-electric "eye" field.

IOWA GAMBLING TRIAL RECESSES FOR CHRISTMAS

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The trial of Attorney General Edward L. O'Connor on charges of gambling conspiracy recessed late today until Thursday morning with T. E. Diamond, defense counsel, still presenting arguments to the jury.

Diamond devoted most of his afternoon argument to testimony of the defense which he said impeached the state's witnesses regarding whether O'Connor was in Sioux City on dates charged by the state. The defense admitted that O'Connor was in Sioux City on Oct. 20, but claimed that Jake Harkaway, state's witness, had said that he was in Sioux City just a few days before election at the time he claimed O'Connor had gone into the beer parlor of J. Ed. [Red] Brannan, in company with several slot machine operators.

The state contends that Harkaway was not so detailed in his dates and that he had said it might have been in October and it points to undisputed fact that O'Connor was in Sioux City Oct. 20 and gave a radio political speech upon that date.

COTTON RAISERS HIT NEW DEAL 'SLOTH SUBSIDY'

Crop Reduction Held Blow to World Trade.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—One stock criticism of the Bankhead control of Old King Cotton heard in the south concerns the migration of cotton field labor from the country to villages and cities to establish easier contact with government doles. Experts estimate that 30 per cent or more of the field hands and cotton choppers were thrown out of work by the reduction of acreage.

The cities appear brisk, especially with Christmas activities. The "priming the pump" money and the federal rent checks for not growing cotton on cotton acres are being circulated by those who have it.

"Subsidized Idleness" Hit.

But on back streets one runs into sections that resemble "Tobacco Road." Townsfolks say that though doles have mitigated suffering and hunger, one deleterious effect has been to "subsidize shiftlessness" by lessening the desire to work on the part of much floating labor, both white and colored.

So far as King Cotton is concerned, many planters and business men express the view that the New Deal enforced scarcity and handing money to foreigners by taking away much of the world market of the south. Lands across the sea which produce cotton, have gone in stronger than ever as America's rivals for world trade in cotton.

Other Lines Hit.

At the same time, the curtailment of output has affected many other lines of employment, especially in transportation and ginning.

Normally between 13 and 15 million bales of cotton are produced each year in the south. About 6 million bales are consumed by domestic mills. Between 7 and 9 million bales require an export market.

Under the AAA, the allotment in 1934 was 10,460,000 bales and in 1935, 10,983,000 bales. Yield this year is figured at 10,734,000. One strong line of criticism, especially in the cities, is that the reduction has meant loss of freight to railroads, ships, port terminals, and of business to gins, compresses, warehouses, bankers, merchants. Naturally it means loss of employment for workers.

Farmers' Income Cut.

It is estimated that it costs about $12 a bale to gin, compress, handle, buy, sell, and transport cotton from the field to the foreign market. On top of this loss is the cost of relief of field workers thrown out of employment and of "abandoned farmers," and the reduction in income of the tenant farmers and share croppers who remain on the land. Average cash income of a 2 horse cropper is estimated at not more than $120 a year.

Under the share cropper system which come into vogue after the civil war a system grew up under which merchants and bankers advanced credit and supplies, taking a mortgage on the crop before it even was in the ground. Under the system the cotton worker got into the habit of eating his crop before he made it.

Bills Often Unpaid.

One common complaint was that unscrupulous landlords and merchants in some sections were able to keep labor almost in a state of peonage. Honest landlords, on the other hand, found the system eating up their plantations. Interest charges have voracious appetites. In a bad year the plantation owner had to keep giving supplies or credit to his tenants, who often walked out leaving the bills unpaid. Much of the labor was notoriously shiftless and in a chronic state of "migrating around."

Under the AAA and the doles many landlords have unloaded their old troubles on the government. These are not only getting rent checks for not growing cotton on their land, but many of their croppers have gone "on the government" and the taxpayer now carries a burden which often kept many a landlord in the red. Such is the line of criticism one finds prevalent among the small farmers and the croppers who still are cropping.

Cites Foreign Increases.

In New Orleans yesterday Walter Parker, a recognized cotton trade economist, summarized the effect of the New Deal's cotton control policy.

"While cotton production in the United States," he said, "is being restrained, some 50 other countries are encouraging greater and still greater production.

"The last free market for United States cotton was in 1928-'29 when the world consumed 15,256,000 bales of United States cotton and 10,626,000 bales of foreign grown cotton, a total of 25,882,000 bales for the world.

"Then came the federal farm board with its price pegging and market manipulations, and then the AAA came into the picture.

"After five years of nostrums, market manipulation by government, crop control and above-value loans by the old farm board and the AAA, here is the record in 1934-'35:

"The world consumed 11,314,000 bales of United States cotton and 14,150,000 bales of foreign cotton, a total of 25,464,000 bales.

"In other words, as a result of economic experiment by the United States the world, in a single year, consumed 3,900,000 fewer United States bales and 3,500,000 more foreign bales than in 1928-'29.

"The world has continued to consume cotton, but because of the economic policies inaugurated by the United States it is using foreign cotton, not United States produced cotton."

Mississippi is as strong a Democratic state as Georgia or Alabama, and despite the criticism of the New Deal it is taken for granted here the state will be for Roosevelt. What interest is displayed in Republican candidates appears to center upon Senator William E. Borah.

Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas has some friends, but in these parts the balancing of the Kansas state budget does not appear so much of a phenomenon because Mississippi has done likewise.

Gov. Sennett Conner, in a statement today giving an account of his administration, said he had balanced the state budget, turning a deficit of 12 million dollars four years ago into an anticipated cash surplus of 2 million dollars by New Year's.

FIND EVANSTON WOMAN DEAD IN HER AUTOMOBILE

The body of Miss Marjorie Coe, 46 years old, 1223 Elmwood avenue, Evanston, was found last night in her automobile in the garage behind her home. Dr. David Hedberg, police physician, said Miss Coe had died of a heart attack. The motor of the car was not running and there were no fumes in the garage. The body was discovered by Miss Coe's sister, Ethel, when she returned from a shopping trip. Miss Coe was a sister-in-law of Joseph L. McNabb, former corporation counsel of Evanston.

TOWNSEND SEES PENSION FIGHT WON IN A YEAR

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Dr. E. F. Townsend expects his fight for $200 a month old age pensions will be won in a year, he told a rally of about 2,000 followers today.

"I assure you that one year from today the job is going to be done," the Long Beach physician said. "Then we must dig in and see that the politicians do not shove us out in the cold again."

After his talk Dr. Townsend was asked if he meant there would be a Townsend plan third party ticket in the next presidential campaign.

"There is always an indication of that," he said. "We will have an announcement concerning that matter in due time."

QUEZON GROOMS ARMY FOR WAR WITH AGUINALDO

Seen Planning to Create Philippine Dictatorship.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 20.—[By Mail.]—In his sumptuous home near Cavite, on Manila bay, Emilio Aguinaldo proudly exhibits a hole in his wall, torn by a shell from Dewey's flagship Olympia, and talks of peace for his country. Thirty miles away, at historic Malacañan palace, President Manuel Quezon proudly boasts of raising a Philippine army of 19,000 officers and men that will make it uncomfortable for any invader.

The irony in the statements of these two men is that Quezon is not so naive as to believe his 19,000 chocolate soldiers could repel a Japanese invasion, even though trained by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, former chief of staff of the United States army. He wants that army to protect himself and his new commonwealth government from Aguinaldo and his National Socialist followers.

Informed observers in the Philippines believe that the future of the islands, particularly their ability to maintain order and a stable government, will depend largely upon the veteran leader of the Filipino revolt against Spain and the insurrection against the United States.

Impregnable to Any Fleet.

The island of Corregidor, guarding the entrance to Manila bay, is said by military experts to be impregnable, with its present fortifications, to any fleet on earth, but Manila could be taken by land or demolished by bombing planes six flying hours away in Japanese Formosa. President Quezon, therefore, wants to build an army, using the Filipino constabulary of 6,000 men as a nucleus, to preserve internal order.

For several days prior to the inauguration of Quezon and his government, great tension prevailed around Manila, and extraordinary precautions were taken lest an assassination be attempted. There was a reason for this, as it transpired later, for Gen. Aguinaldo frankly informed Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy that he intended to descend upon Manila with 60,000 men and prevent the inauguration of his political enemy.

Only after the governor general had persuaded him that he would injure not only his country but his own cause did Aguinaldo consent to pass a quiet day at home on inaugural day.

Strong Enough for Revolt.

Although Aguinaldo received fewer than 200,000 votes, against more than 700,000 for Quezon, he nevertheless has a potential rebellion in his following and his avowed hostility toward Quezon makes the politicos and military authorities look to the future with apprehension.

Hollywood Bound

Mrs. Marion Mill Preminger, wife of French producer, as she arrived in New York on her way to Hollywood to appear in American movies.

Aguinaldo contends that he was robbed in the election and there are few who doubt that many thousands of votes were stolen from him. The Filipinos know more about that sort of thing than American politicians ever dreamed, and the Quezon faction was in power, which means they had the money and the police. Yet it is generally conceded that Quezon would have won overwhelmingly, even in an honest election. The popular sentiment is with him, and the question now is whether he can hold it, particularly if he pursues his palpable ambition to be a dictator.

Strips Speaker of Powers.

The first evidence of this dressy little Spanish mestizo's dictatorship ambitions was the unicameral legislature provided by the new constitution. Possibly he took a lesson from the fact that Preident Roosevelt never had any trouble with the house but sometimes did with the senate.

Next Quezon informed Quenton Paredes, former speaker of the house and leading candidate for the speakership of the national assembly, that he wanted him to be resident commissioner to the United States. Realizing that Quezon wanted to get him out of the way, because of his popularity, Paredes refused, only to be told then that the powers of speaker were to be stripped to those of a presiding officer. With that Paredes withdrew from the speakership contest.

The islands are replete with conjectures and predictions that the coalition government, to which Quezon and Vice President Sergio Osmena, leaders of opposing factions, were elected on the same tickets, will be short lived. There are stories that Osmena, the shrewder man, preferred the vice presidency on the theory that he would be president when Quezon met with some accident.

May Stick Together.

There are stories that Osmena is too popular with the people to permit the realization of Quezon's ambitions and still others that the former foes will stick together long enough to get what they want and put it away safely in Dutch guilders.

Meanwhile Aguinaldo lives quietly and luxuriously in Kawit, biding his time, his plans "depending upon the circumstances." Affable of manner, erect and soldierly looking with his iron gray roached hair, the general at 65 impresses his interviewer as a sincere patriot with the naiveté of a child.

He has devoted his life to the cause of "independencia," and manifestly has no conception of its implications. He shrugs his shoulders and says that Japan would never dare attack the Philippines, implying a belief that the United States would protect them, however free they might be. He expressed confidence that a multilateral treaty could be arranged, under which the neutrality of the Philippines would be guaranteed, like that of Switzerland.

Exhibits Stained Glass Panels.

After the interview Aguinaldo exhibits his famous stained glass panels, showing his mountain headquarters where he nogotiated a truce with Spain in 1897 and left for voluntary exile in Hongkong; the Olympia, Dewey's flagship, on which he agreed to aid the American forces against Spain; the scene of his inauguration as president of the Philippine republic, which he proclaimed, and the legislature ratifying his declaration of independence.

Dewey's flagship occupies a place of honor in the main living room, where it tells the story of the famous interview. A curious mental quirk of Aguinaldo, however, is that he has another picture of the Olympia on a wall out in a corridor, just above the hole torn by a ricocheted shell.

RUSSIAN FLEET MUCH BIGGER, REDS WARN JAPAN AND GERMANY

MOSCOW, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Soviet Russia, looking both to the Pacific and the Baltic, bluntly let Japan and Germany know today that she has quadrupled her submarine and destroyer fleets in the last four years.

Announcements in government newspapers said the coast guard fleet has been increased by 1,100 per cent since 1931; submarines have been increased 435 per cent, and destroyers 370 per cent. The paper Izvestia said:

"The enemy who dares attack the Soviet Union from the Baltic or the Pacific will feel the force of our submarine and surface fleets as well as their quick mobility. It will quickly be seen that no Rozdesventsky [who commanded the Russian fleet destroyed in the Russo-Japanese war at the battle of Tsusima] is now in command."

Significantly, the statement came after a conference here between officials of the Outer Mongolia republic, who claim they are threatened with a Japanese-Manchukuan invasion, and soviet leaders.

VARIETY OF YULE PROGRAMS WILL FILL AIR TODAY

Lionel Barrymore to Play Scrooge Again.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Christmas on the air:

An outstanding feature today is to be Lionel Barrymore's second annual presentation of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol." Barrymore will play Scrooge and Buster Phelps, child screen actor, Tiny Tim. Barrymore has been engaged by his sponsor for four more Christmas days to come. On WBBM-CBS at 4 o'clock.

Another high light of the day will be the "Great Family" broadcast at 8:25 this morning when a small girl in New Zealand will introduce King George, who will extend greetings to his dominions while the world listens in. After the king speaks from Sandringham, his country home, the globe circling broadcast will move in swift succession to Canada, South Africa, England, India, Ireland, Australia, Scotland, and New Zealand with Christmas described from all these lands. All major networks will carry this feature in America, W-G-N, WMAQ, WCFL, and WBBM being the local outlets.

At 3 p. m. WBBM-CBS will present "The First Christmas," a dramatization of the story of the three wise men by Calvert Haws, with special music by a thirty-five piece orchestra and twenty-five voice choir from the Chicago City Opera company directed by Billy Mills.

World Peaceways will launch a new series at 9 tonight over WBBM-CBS with Morton Downey as the featured singer and music by Lyn Murray's choir and Lud Gluskin's orchestra. There also will be a play titled "Truce."

Marie Mayer, who played Mary Magdalene in the "Passion Play of Oberammergau," is to give a special talk on the nativity at 2:30 over W-G-N.

The boy, Jose Lozano, was killed instantly while at dinner. The woman, Natividad Casimiro, died en route to a first aid station.

Officials of the airline said the plane, the San Felipe, was undergoing a test flight after it had been overhauled and repaired. They attributed the crash to a dense fog which made it impossible for the pilot to orient himself.

That he saw the impossibility of avoiding the crash was evidenced in the fact that the plane's three motors had been shut off. MacMickle was a veteran pilot, and Petch, who worked for airlines in the United States, was in charge of the company's maintenance and repair departments.

TWO SLAIN, ONE WOUNDED IN TWO MARRIAGE RIFTS

Husbands' Pistols Used to End Discord.

Russell De Franco, 24 years old, 1639 South California avenue, was shot and killed in the back yard of his home early today by Gus Wesley, 22 years old, 2735 West 15th place, an automobile salesman. Looking on at the tragedy was Mrs. Gertrude Wesley, 22 years old, estranged wife of the salesman.

In a second shooting, which occured on the old Plainfield road a half mile east of the Cook-Du Page county line, Mrs. Alice Hanson, 35 years old, 42 West Harris avenue, La Grange, was perhaps fatally wounded by her husband, Charles, 40 years old, 523 Catherine street, La Grange Park. Hanson then pointed his pistol at his own head and fired, killing himself.

Gives Self Up to Police.

Wesley, after shooting down De Franco, got into an automobile and drove to the Marquette police station, where he laid a pistol before Sergt. Harry Rulo and confessed the killing.

"My wife and I have been estranged for months," he said. "She has been living with her mother at 1535 South California avenue. I learned that she has been running around with De Franco. Tonight he took Gertrude to his home and I followed them there. When they came out I killed him."

Mrs. Wesley, a pronounced blonde, declared that there was nothing reprehensible in her relationship with De Franco.

"He came to see me tonight and insisted that I go with him to visit his mother," she said. "That's why I went. We stayed a while and when we went out Gus met us and shot Russell down without saying a word."

Wesley, in an amplified statement to the police, declared that he killed De Franco because the latter had broken up his home.

Tragedy in Automobile.

The story of the Hanson shooting was told to investigators by Lawrence Barden of Hinsdale, a brother of Mrs. Hanson.

"Charles and Alice had been separated for about a week," he said. "Tonight they tried to get together and patch up their troubles. I took them out for a ride in my car. They sat on the back seat and Charley didn't have a word to say.

"We were on our way back to Alice's home when she suddenly cried out from the back seat that Charley had a gun. I looked back and he was pointing the pistol at my sister. I stopped the car and jumped out. He shot her and then fired on himself."

Barden ran to a telephone and called the Hinsdale police. They took the wounded Mrs. Hanson to the Hinsdale sanitarium and the body of Hanson to an undertaking establishment. The investigation, since the shooting took place in Cook county, was then transferred to the county highway police at Willow Springs.

Hanson was a mechanic. He and his wife had two children.

TEACHER KILLS WIFE'S FORMER EMPLOYER AND TAKES OWN LIFE

Las Cruces, N. M., Dec. 24.—(AP)—A burst of gunfire today ended in death a smoldering dispute between a state officer and a member of a state college faculty.

F. E. Oakes, 40, director of the state department of feed and fertilizer, was shot to death in his automobile on the New Mexico State college campus. A coroner's jury said his slayer was W. A. Stone, 38, assistant mathematics professor, who committed suicide. Stone's wife had been employed by Oakes.

Stone shot Oakes three times, rushed to the home of another faculty member, crushed an explanatory note into his hand, then sped a half mile from the campus and shot himself in the head.

J. W. Branson, head of the mathematics department, to whom Stone took the note, found Oakes' body. Officers refused to disclose the contents of the note.

MOBS RUN WILD IN VENEZUELA; 150 REPORTED SLAIN

Burn and Loot After Dictator Dies.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Dutch West Indies, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Venezuelan refugees, arriving here aboard a Venezuelan warship, reported tonight the death of about 150 persons in Maracaibo and other cities as a result of disorders following upon the death last week of the dictator-president, Juan Vicente Gomez.

They said about ten business houses and saloons were burned or plundered in Maracaibo and that there were similar disorders in Caracas. The government was said, however, to have the situation fairly well in hand.

Dictator's Family Flees.

Among the 97 refugees were the late president's widow, his sons, Juan and Florencio; a brother, Matute; former Gov. Velasco of Caracas, and about fifty small children.

The warship was placed at their disposal by the provisional president, Gen. Eleazar Lopez Contreras, to enable them to leave the country in safety.

A spokesman said the party has no political aspirations and hoped to return to Venezuela when the situation becomes normal. He spoke highly of Lopez Contreras and said he considered him most suited to be president.

Police and Army Clash.

The refugees confirmed the slaying of Gen. Eustoquio Gomez, cousin of the late dictator. They said there was street fighting in Caracas and several buildings were plundered and burned.

Those from Maracaibo said the police chief was in hiding. Friction between the police and the army was reported, the police favoring the old régime and the army the new.

A mob forced the captain of the German vessel Karibia and foreign consuls to hoist their flags at top instead of half mast, the refugees asserted.

The group will be permitted to remain in Curacao for at least fourteen days. They were being given police protection by the insular government.

Caracas Under Martial Law.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Martial law was reported by airplane travelers to be in effect today in Caracas, the capital city of Venezuela, and imminent for the rest of the South American republic as Provisional President Eleazar Lopez Contreras sought to put down widespread rioting.

Street battles involving soldiers, police, and citizens were reported to be raging sporadically in many centers. Enemies of the government were extending their activities from Caracas, the capital, into outlying districts.

Friend of Dictator Ousted.

Their numbers have been augmented by at least 2,000 persons exiled by the Gomez régime, who returned after the dictator's death from Colombia, Curacao, and Trinidad. Hundreds of political prisoners, released by Lopez and his cabinet to appease public opinion against the remnants of the Gomez rule, also joined in the attempts to overthrow the ministry. The freed prisoners, many of them in dungeons for the last 10 or 15 years, were conspicuous in the mobs by their pale faces.

As the disorders continued, the government launched conciliatory efforts. Unpopular Vincente Perez Soto, close friend of the late dictator, was removed as governor of the rich oil state of Zulia and replaced by Gen. Leon Jurada. Pressure of public outcry also caused the risignation of Monogas.

Gen. Cardenas, president of Sucre state, was reported also to have been seized by rebels and clapped in jail. A fourth state head—Gen. Eustoquoi Gomez, cousin of the dictator—was shot Saturday.

The oil field district around Maracaibo was described as one of the hotbeds of ani-government feeling. Several buildings owned by friends of the dead president were set afire by mobs parading through the streets.

Once the Maracaibo police fired on one of the groups. Soldiers sympathetic to the people fired back at the police. Both soldiers and police were later confined to barracks.

BETTER THE JAIL BETTER U. S. PAY, IS NEW POLICY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The federal prison bureau, which has "condemned" 44 per cent of the local lock-ups it investigated, is seeking to promote the better-jail cause by paying for prisoner's keep on a sliding scale.

The better the jail, the better the pay.

The prison bureau pays for the safekeeping of federal prisoners at rates ranging from 50 cents a day to $1.25 a day, depending on how the local jail is rated by prison inspectors.

More than half of the jails inspected—1,772—rated under 50 per cent of requirements.

"We try to pay a rate justified by the service we get," Sanford Bates, prison bureau director, explained.

PECORA UPHOLDS $90,000 AWARD TO EX-SHOW GIRL

New York, Dec. 24.—[Special]—Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora ruled today that Miss Eileen Wenzel, the former show girl, depended upon her beauty for success as a stage favorite and that the $90,000 judgment which a jury awarded her for injuries suffered in an automobile driven by Louis J. Ehret Jr., son of the late brewer, was not excessive.

Mr. Ehret, whose mother, Mrs. Madeleine Ehret, also was a defendant, held that the judgment was excessive.

The basis of the suit was an accident in Central park several years ago when Mr. Ehret drove his car into a tree and caused the actress to suffer numerous lacerations of the face which, she said, impaired her usefulness as a stage attraction.

Justice Pecora said that the evidence clearly showed that prior to the accident Miss Wenzel was possessed of unusual beauty which enabled her to earn from $8,000 to $10,000 a year. The accident, he said, "was convincing that she received injuries that permanently and devastatingly deprived her of that beauty."

The court also held that the marring of her beauty had also considerably lessened her prospects of a favorable marriage.

Robbers Lock Up Owner, Loot Store of Dresses

Two armed men entered the dress shop of Harry Levine at 2638 West Division street last night, and after locking Levine in a washroom looted the cash register and carried out all the dresses that had not been sold in the holiday trade. Levine said that the cash taken amounted to $162 and that the dresses stolen were worth $1,100.

AN Open Letter to all who believe in Santa Claus

It is good to get away now and then from problems, perplexities, things which have to be taken seriously; and to be happy, to be kindly and merry, to rediscover the thrilling pleasure of giving happiness.

That's why the world always needs and welcomes Christmas—the season that brings to life the grand old human decencies which sweeten relationships between people; expressed so heartily in our greetings to each other, in warmer hospitality, in good will not merely spoken but deeply felt.

We in this business have much for which to be thankful. To you who have looked upon us with friendly eyes, as your shopping counsellors and your supply-source, we feel a genuine gratitude. It does us good to express it. We feel that any purchase made in this store is like a contract—valid only as it benefits and satisfies both parties. It does us good to say that, too.

May your Christmas be cheerful, gay, joyous; and bright with promise of better, happier days in the coming New Year.

LIBERTY LEAGUE QUESTIONS EDICT ABOLISHING NRA

Holds Order Fails to Alter Workers' Status.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—With a questioning eye the American Liberty league tonight unwrapped President Roosevelt's Christmas gift to the nation—the abolition of the National Recovery administration effective Jan. 1.

The nonpartisan body pointed out that the order does not change the status of 1,400 or more NRA employés one whit. According to the league, the only effect of the order is to do away with the malodorous NRA title, as the bulk of the unit's payroll continues under the authority of the pruned national industrial recovery act, which is to expire next April 1.

League Calls 5 Questions.

The league called upon taxpayers to ponder five pertinent questions:

"Is the shift of employés of the division of reviews and business coöperation and advisory council to the department of commerce merely a device to facilitate their absorption into its regular budget without attracting public attention?

"Or, if the congress should balk at this addition to the regular pay rolls, will those favored employés be cared for by the authority of the works relief act under which the consumers' division of the NRA, now shifted to the department of labor, is to go forward until July 1, 1937?

Questions Appointive Powers.

"Does the power delegated by the President to the secretaries of commerce and labor 'to appoint, employ, discharge and fix the compensation and define the duties' of an unlimited number of employés mean that the old system of congressional approval is to be broken down?

"Does the clause exempting transferred divisions from civil service point to a greater injection of political considerations into appointments?

"Finally, it is pertinent to inquire whether the technical abolition of the NRA throws any light whatever upon the future intentions of the administration with respect to new legislation for the regimentation of industry?"

N. U. CO-ED ASKS AN INQUIRY INTO FATHER'S DEATH

Miss Dorothy Frances Brothers, 7210 South Shore drive, a junior at Northwestern university, yesterday asked Chief Deputy Coroner Victor L. Schlaeger to make a complete investigation into the death last Thursday of her father, Peter R. Brothers, 71 years old, a retired loop clothier.

Mr. Brothers died suddenly in a corridor of the Tower building, 6 North Michigan avenue. An autopsy performed by Dr. P. L. Peterson, coroner's physician, disclosed that death was caused by chronic heart trouble. Miss Brothers asserted she suspected her father may have met with violence or a shock, such as a robbery, which brought on his death.

Miss Brothers said $26.70 was found in his clothing, but a wallet which he had when he left home that morning was missing. In this purse, declared the daughter, she believes her father was carrying between $2,000 and $5,000. Deputy Schlaeger said he would confer again with Miss Brothers to determine whether or not an inquest should be opened. The body was cremated on Monday.

READERS OF NAZI PAPERS TO GET SPECIAL RECEIPTS

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—The Nazi newspaper Der Angriff told its readers in the Christmas edition today that it will issue "a special receipt book for subscribers for the coming year to enable them to prove by documents that they are readers of Nazi newspapers."

Despite the fact that Der Deutsche, organ of the Labor Front, with a circulation far above 100,000, ceased publication Feb. 1 and readers were advised to subscribe to Der Angriff, this paper has barely succeeded in reaching a circulation of 100,000. A tremedous drive is forecast for the coming months for the "fighting newspaper of the Nazy party."

Newspaper publishers received instructions this week to advise their cooking editors not to print recipes calling for the use of "more butter than is absolutely necessary."

Wife's Diary Tells All; She'll Get a Divorce

The diary which Mrs. Rose Hlavaty, 42 years old, 5158 South Honoré street, has kept since her wedding day 25 years ago came to her aid yesterday in a hearing on her divorce bill against Frank Hlavaty. She testified before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort that her husband kicked her on Christmas day, 1920. "How can you remember a kick that far back?" the judge asked. "It's in my little diary along with a lot of other kicks," Mrs. Hlavaty said and she produced the book. Judge Desort instructed her attorney, Victor Frohlich, to prepare the divorce decree.

FISH SEES BORAH; PLANS PARLEY OF NEW YORK G. O. P.

Pledges Senator His Support in June.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Representative Hamilton Fish [Rep., N. Y.] announced after a meeting with Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] today that he will call a meeting of New York Republicans early next week for the purpose of consolidating and organizing Borah strength in that state.

Pledges His Support.

Representative Fish told the Idaho senator he is solidly behind him as the logical nominee of the Republican party at the Cleveland convention of next June. The conference was sought by the representative to enable him to report on his recent survey of the country.

Fish said he told Borah that he thought the senator would carry Virginia, North Carolina and Florida against President Roosevelt in 1936 if Borah became the Republican candidate. He said there was a large popular following for Borah throughout the south and that Republican leaders feel that Borah would be their strongest candidate.

Tells "Midwest Sentiment."

Fish said he also told Borah there was a tremendous popular support for the senator in sections of the midwest.

The popular sentiment for Borah, which he measured during his recent survey of the country, had influenced his decision to call a meeting of New York Republicans, Fish said.

FLAMING FUEL BARGE PERILS TOWN; 2 MISSING

Paulsboro, N. J., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—An oil barge, loaded with 12,000 barrels of gasoline, set afire by an explosion which is believed to have killed its captain and his brother, drifted periously close to the business section of this town today. Swept along by a flood tide, the blazing barge for hours endangered oil tanks, piers, and chemical plants along the shore of Delaware river and Mantua creek.

The blast which fired the barge shook the countryside for miles around. It blew to bits the cabin believed to have been occupied by Capt. William Leary, 40 years, of Philadelphia, and his brother, Durand Leary, 36 years, of Norfolk, Va. No trace of the two has been found.

TAMMANY GOLF CLUB TO BE SUPPLANTED BY NEW CITY PROJECT

New York, Dec. 24.—[Special.]—The $250,000 Dyker Beach Park Municipal Golf club in Brooklyn, which was started during the Tammany administration of Mayor John P. O'Brien, will be razed to make room for a new building, Park Commissioner Robert Moses announced today. The new clubhouse, he said, would cost about as much as it would cost to keep the "present unsound structure" in repair for eight or ten years.

The commissioner explained that some time ago he submitted to four distinguished engineers the question of what should be done with the Dyker Beach clubhouse. He said the building had been badly designed and structural and foundation defects developed.

There have been repeated reports that the building was sagging, although it is supported by twenty-foot piles. Soon after construction on the structure was started, the West End Chamber of Commerce protested against its being erected on a "sand pile," charging that it was a "profligate waste of city funds."

CITE EVANSTON BUS LINE FOR FARES HEARING

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday cited the Evanston Railway company to show cause why an order should not be entered "fixing just and reasonable rates" to be charged by the concern on its bus lines.

The commission also cited the Evanston Railway company and Niles Center Bus company to show cause why transfers should not be interchanged between the two companies, both of which are owned by the same interests. Hearing on the citation has been set for Jan. 3.

A rehearing on a rate increase order against the railway company by the commission three months ago, has been in progress for several weeks. The rehearing was requested by the city of Evanston when the railway company was allowed to increase its fares following substitution of buses for street cars on its lines.

JUDGE FREES LOOP BEGGARS.

Twenty-eight casuals arrested Monday in the loop for loitering or begging were dismissed yesterday by Judge Eugene Holland in the South State street court and were warned to spend Christmas away from the loop.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

Four young autoists wrecked their machine yesterday near Talma, Ind., and thumbed a ride in the automobile of two state highway patrolmen. The genial group encountered Sherif Boyd Peterson of Fulton county and several deputies who were searching for four men that shot Joseph W. Bidwell, a grocer of Akron, Ind., and robbed him of $75. The sherif's men promptly collared the policemen's guests, hauled them out of the car and fished $139 and three pistols from their pockets. The four held as robbery suspects are Michael Benson, 26 years old, and Lewis Rhinehart, 21, of East Chicago, Ind., and Clarence Lane, 29, and James Roberts, 26, of Peoria.

BRITAIN MAY PAY OFF 300 MILLION AND END TITHE

Revolt Against Church "Tax" Grows.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—(AP)—A proposal to wipe out the centuries-old tithe, or land tax, in one stroke by paying off Queen Anne's bounty—a lump sum equivalent to $300,000,000—may write finis to England's oldest and most bitter feudal controversy.

Farmers, stung to action by the whip-lash of the tithe, in recent months have transformed the peaceful English countryside into a scene of angry strife. Often the tax amounts to $3.20 per $5 on the rent of their land.

Since the seventh century, tillers of the English soil have paid the tithe, originally giving up to the crown the whole "first fruits" and thereafter one-tenth of each year's produce.

Turned Over to Church.

In 1704 Queen Anne converted these crown revenues to the church of England for the benefit of poor curates. Her deed became known as "Queen Anne's bounty." It started off as the modest sum of about $85,000, but today it totals more than $11,000,000 annually. In addition there are the lay, or private, tithe-owners, totaling an additional $5,000,000 from the same source.

As chief tithe-owner, the church has become the main target of the farmers' wrath. Embarrassed country parsons have awakened in the morning to find their front lawns planted with huge billboards bearing such legends as:

"God save us from these raiding priests
Who seize our crops and steal our beasts,
Who pray 'Give Us Our Daily Bread'
And take it from our mouths instead."

At Ashford recently, 200 tithe-payers burned effigies of Queen Anne and the Archbishop of Canterbury, clad in top hat and gaiters, and held a mock inquest over the "bodies."

Branded As "Robbers."

"These people," the verdict declared, "died a just death for robbery with violence to various farms and small holdings in England."

And the tithe-payers cheered and sang.

Auctioneers attempting to sell off goods and chattels seized for nonpayment of the tithe have met with stormy resistance; bidders have been intimidated, cattle stampeded to break up the sales. More than once the auctioneer himself has been made the target of flying mud, stoned, and tossed into the nearest pond. Farmers have formed secret bands and are turning out for miles around to the warning: "The bailiff is coming!"

Until recently parliament has sidestepped the tithe question, because it cuts directly across party lines. But now, with a royal commission report urging drastic revision of the tithe system, it is believed the government will abolish this relic of the feudal days of moated castles and baronial armies.

BOOTLEG TRADE CUT DOWN, SAYS TAX UNIT CHIEF

Reports Legal Liquor Sales Greater.

Vigorous law enforcement has cut bootlegging substantially this year in the revenue district embracing Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, according to a report issued yesterday by E. C. Yellowley, director of the federal alcohol tax unit here.

The report compares liquor data for 1934 and 1935. The figures indicate a steady decrease in the production and sale of illicit alcoholic beverages, accompanied by a corresponding increase in the output and distribution of liquor legally manufactured and handled.

Seize More and Smaller Stills.

In 1934, according to the report, raiders seized 499 illicit stills which had altogether a capacity of 128,520 gallons a day. This year, Mr. Yellowley asserts, 621 stills have been captured, but their total capacity amounted to only 97,958 gallons a day.

The other side of the picture is that in 1934 the distilled spirits [other than alcohol] produced and deposited in warehouses amounted to 42,884,974 gallons. Of this supply, 18,065,701 gallons were withdrawn from storage upon payment of the excise taxes.

Source of Revenue Increases.

During the first ten months of this year 67,536,925 gallons were produced and stored, and 23,506,197 gallons were tax paid and withdrawn from storage.

Last year industrial alcohol produced and stored totaled 10,089,440 proof gallons, on 4,018,681 gallons of which the taxes were paid and the amount withdrawn.

Through Oct. 31 this year the corresponding output has been 18,347,862 gallons. Taxes were paid on 5,074,423 gallons of this and it was taken out of storage.

New York, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler has ordered German Nationals in the United States to sever themselves from the Friends of New Germany, an organization which has been partisan to the chancellor the last three years, the national headquarters of the Friends acknowledged today.

Severance was directed to be complete by Dec. 31, 1935. It was to affect Germans having only first American citizenship papers or none.

NAZIS TO SPEED UP PRODUCTION OF SUBSTITUTES

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—(AP)—An increase in the pace of Germany's production of substitute raw materials was said in a report by the Berlin Chamber of Commerce and Industry, released today, to be the keynote of the nation's economic prospect for 1936.

The report stressed that Germany is still in a period of transition, and that the way out is beset with difficulty. It underscored the call of Hjalmar Schacht, minister of economics, for the development of private initiative in business, but it added that limited state control cannot be dispensed with wholly.

The report said: "Efforts to make Germany independent of foreign raw materials are progressing apace with great promise of success, but admitted that Germany can never be entirely independent of foreign raw materials, adding: "The sooner the powers recognize her need for colonial possession,s the sooner will the pacification of the world be accomplished."

NAB BERLIN RABBI FOR CRITICIZING ANTI-JEWISH LAW

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—Secret political police have arrested Emil Bernhard Cohn, a leading rabbi of Berlin, for criticizing the servant regulations in the Nuremberg racial laws, it was learned today.

Rabbi Cohn, 55 years old, an author and playwright of considerable reputation, was addressing a Jewish audience in Kopenick when a police agent appeared on the platform, disbanded the meeting and arrested him. Another rabbi, Dr. Laybum of Berlin, was also recently arrested for remarks he made to a group of eight Jews, one of whom was evidently an agent of the secret police.

Under additional regulations based upon the Nuremberg laws, Jews are prohibited from acting as jurymen, notaries, and auctioneers, or serving in any position having a direct or indirect relation to the state and the administration of justice.

BY MARY MEADE.

Midst the joyous barrage of holiday greetings, a merry Christmas from your cooking scribe! With it goes this heartfelt wish—joy today and all good things for the new year.

For several years it has been our custom to recite the beloved tales of foreign Christmas customs on this day. In a way, these traditions are those of our own country, fused and interwoven as curiously as are most things American.

Today our tale is one perhaps less frequently retold, but no less affectionately regarded. The first Christmas days in the new world—want to review them with us? We promise not to mention food and cooking too often, knowing that this holiday is a time for joys other than those of the kitchen.

To people who go to a new land to live, people to whom Christmas always has meant a day of happy family traditions, their first Yuletide in a strange country must be strange and lonely.

Such probably was that of Christopher Columbus and his men. Their ship settled on a sandbank off a Haiti harbor just before Christmas day, and their only celebration was a night of strenuous labor, assisted by the natives, in salvaging such parts of the wreckage as could be used. A sorry Christmas dawn, that! But the next day Christopher went to his first public function in the new world as the dinner guest of Chief Guancanagari, ate shrimps and cassavi, and presented his host with a shirt and pair of gloves [which he donned to complement his gold coronet].

The colony which set out for America from Blackwell on the Thames, Dec. 6, 1606, didn't get beyond sight of England for the first six weeks of the voyage, and thus spent the first Christmas aboard ship. Capt. John Smith writes: "It was indeed but a sorry Christmas . . . we made the best cheer we could."

The next year the same Capt. Smith spent his Yuletide as a captive of the Powhatan Indians. However, some years later, the tables were reversed. Since that season of the year usually was given over to raids upon the Indians, Smith's last expedition against them was at Christmas time. He records it thus in his journal: "The extreme winde, rayne, frost, and snow caused us to keep Christmas among the salvages, where we weere never more merry, nor fed on more plenty of good Oysters, Fish, Flesh, Wild Fowl, and good bread, nor never had better fires in England."

In after years prosperity smiled on this land of the Jamestown settlers, and the country became noted for its Christmas hospitality, its great family gatherings, and lavish gayety.

And now for the stern Puritans. Among those who reached these shores in 1620 there were women from Holland with deeply rooted affection for old Christmas traditions. The colony spent that first Christmas day building a community house, and returned to the ship at night to dine plentifully upon salt fish, bacon, Brussels sprouts, gooseberry tarts, and English plum pudding. And the stores of the ship even disclosed a barrel of ivy, holly, and laurel!

It is from the Dutch fathers, however, that most of our American Christmas traditions have been handed down. They named their first church for the beloved St. Nicholas, and made him patron saint of the new city on Manhattan island. The abundant food, cheerful decorations, and general suspension of business in favor of more joyous pastimes all are legacies from these early Dutch.

Christmas Has Surprises That Aren't Gifts

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

If you're new at Christmas with the extremely young ones, you'll probably be surprised at more than the contents of that bulky package in white tissue tied with a big red ribbon, or the small flat one done up in silver paper and a silver cord. It's the children who are apt to hold the surprises, quite unconsciously, of course. For example:

If it's your first baby and his first Christmas—or his first since he's been really aware of what's going on around him—you probably have been looking forward to his delight at his first tree. You'll probably be disappointed, as I was, for the chances are that all he will do will be to stare with his wide, starry eyes. Those expressions of delight—those oh's and ah's—don't come until he's older.

And if you're reading this and haven't a baby, but know that by next Christmas you will have, tuck away the following note for future use: There's nothing lovelier for the baby's first and second tree than an all silver one. A small table tree is best for this, I think. Deck it with silver balls and silver stars and silver bells and silver birds and silver rain. And if it's so small that you can safely stand "fireguard" over it, then you can have that loveliest of all Christmas tree illumination on it—real candles—little white ones.

Another surprise in store for you may be that the children seem to get more kick out of the contents of their stocking than from their bigger presents. This will only happen, of course, if you do more than fill it with fruits and nuts. If it has all sorts of interesting little gadgets in it and perhaps a tiny chamois bag with ten new pennies in it in the toe —the children may seem to gloat over the stocking more than anything. Later their big presents will give them the permanent pleasure that you had hoped for.

Another surprise may be sprung on you by your 4 or 5 year old later in the day, when you may see him—to your utter chagrin and to that of his relatives who have lavished money on him—spend the entire afternoon doing something quite prosaic, like hammering nails in a humble board, while all his elegant presents lie neglected under the tree. Don't feel too flat. He may just be having "gift indigestion."

I cannot close today's article without taking this opportunity to thank all my correspondents who have sent me the kindest, the warmest of Christmas greetings and good wishes. To them and to all who read this column, I wish from the bottom of my heart the happiest possible,

Merry Christmas!

Miss Dangler Bows Today

[TRIBUNE Photo.]
MISS ANTOINETTE DANGLER.

Christmas Day Brings Series of Debut Teas

Miss Antoinette Dangler, who used to live in Lake Forest when she was a little girl, has come back to make her debut here today. She and her mother, Mrs. Charles H. Boissevain of Colorado Springs, and Mrs. Boissevain's sister-in-law, Mrs. Nathan S. Davis III., will receive from 4 to 7 o'clock at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Davis, 1320 Westmoor trail, Winnetka.

Assisting will be two debutante cousins of Miss Dangler, Miss Joan Ryerson and Miss Clarice Hamill, and a sub-deb cousin, Miss Nancy Dangler. Also the Misses Peggy Clow, Nancy Forgan, Joan Smith, Mary Lou Laird, Georgia Pettibone, Mary Wood, Denyse Root, Harriet Welling, and Nancy Ryerson.

Dr. and Mrs. Boissevain and their family are spending the holiday season at the Lake Shore Drive hotel, but early next month they will return to their home in Colorado. Miss Dangler does not have to go back to Bennington college until late February.

There will be three other debut teas this afternoon, one in Winnetka and two in town.

Miss Joan McArthur and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Selim McArthur, of Lake View avenue, will receive in the Fortnightly club from 4 until 7 o'clock. Miss McArthur, who is a freshman at Bennington college, has asked two of her friends who are not "out" yet, Miss Janet Musselman of Winnetka and Miss Barbara Emerson of Highland Park, to assist and also eight sister debs, including the Misses Cornelia Ranney, Nancy Ryerson, Nancy Forgan, Joan Smith, Barbara Morse, Barbara Hutchins, Elsie Earle, and Frances Price.

Miss Marion Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Johnson, will make her debut at a tea at home, 522 Hawthorne place, from 4 to 7 o'clock. Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and their daughter will be her house guest, Miss Ruth Delamater Vezin of Litchfield, Conn., a classmate at Sarah Lawrence of Miss Johnson's.

Assisting will be three cousins of the bud, the Misses Anna Dagny Johnson, Emily Goehst and Margaret Goehst, and the Misses Dorelle Moulton, Patricia Forsyth Kelly, Anne Dinsdale Harding, Ruth Tilden, Shirley Logan, Anne Ward Willetts, Mary Jane Elfborg, Helen Meyercord, Harriet Moore, and Frances Durr.

Miss Evelyn Shuman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Shuman of Winetka, will make her debut this afternoon at a tea dance at the Indian Hill club. The invitation list was not limited to young people, so there is certain to be a huge crowd enjoying the party, which will be from 5 until 8 o'clock. Eighteen young girls whom Miss Shuman has known since she was a wee thing will assist.

Tonight the debutantes and their beaux will dance and have an early morning supper at the Casino as the guests of Mrs. Victor Beaufort, who is entertaining for Miss Caterina Bolongnesi and Miss Madalon Search. Mrs. Beaufort limited her invitation list to young people, friends of the two young ladies for whom the party is being given, and of Alexis Thompson, Mrs. Beaufort's son, who is here from Yale for the holidays.

Miss Bolognesi and Miss Search will dine and dance earlier tonight at a dinner dance Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hermes are giving in the ballroom of the Blackstone to present their daughter, Florence, who is at home from Vassar for the holidays. Only young people have been invited to the dinner, about 300 in all.

Betty Brawley Is Engaged to Leeds Mitchell

Announcement Surprise to Their Friends.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MERRY CHRISTMAS! May the day be so full of joy that some of it will remain to brighten the whole year through. Two young people who always will remember Christmas as a time of especial happiness are Miss Betty Brawley and Leeds Mitchell Jr., for her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Brawley, today are announcing the engagement of their younger daughter, christened Mary Elizabeth, to the son of Leeds Mitchell and Mrs. Day Mitchell of New York.

The engagement was revealed at a family dinner in the Brawleys' apartment at 1448 Lake Shore drive last Friday evening, but the family succeeded in keeping the news a secret until today, so the popular Miss Brawley and young Mr. Mitchell could surprise their friends with the announcement.

The announcement comes as a real surprise, too, for although Mr. Mitchell has been a serious beau of Miss Brawley's ever since early fall, she has had so many young men paying her attention that it was difficult for her friends to decide just what one of them she favored.

Miss Brawley Active in Social Affairs.

Ever since she was presented to society at a tea at home in December, 1932, Miss Brawley has taken an active part in society. She is a member of the board of the Lighthouse Volunteer Aids and was president of that organization last year; and she is a provisional member of the Chicago Junior league. She received her education at the University School for Girls and at Miss Wheeler's school in Providence, R. I.

Mr. Mitchell, who has not spent much time in Chicago until the last year, prepared at Andover for Yale. His younger sister, Margaret, who makes her home in New York with their mother, is here from Dobbs Ferry to spend the Christmas holidays with their father.

The Mitchells and the Brawleys each are having family dinners at home today, but Miss Brawley and her fiancé will receive their friends' good wishes and congratulations when they join the Christmas afternoon activity later today. The wedding will take place next June.

Adele Proxmire Bows at Dance.

The Princeton Triangle club had no performance last night—tonight "What a Relief" is being repeated in Milwaukee—so the 75 young men who came to Chicago with the show stayed over and went to Miss Adele Proxmire's debut dance at the Casino, thereby increasing the guest list to 400. And, incidentally, making the party one of the best of the season, for the addition of 75 stags always "makes" a party, of course.

Miss Proxmire was lovely in billowy white chiffon, made simply with no trimming and with a low V décolletage front and back. She carried a large bouquet of pink camelias. Her mother, Mrs. Theodore S. Proxmire, was stunning in pale gray crêpe embroidered in brilliants. She wore orchids.

Dr. Proxmire and the two sons of the family, Ted, a senior at Yale, and Bill, a sophomore in the same college, performed the duties that fell to the lot of the hosts and saw that the Princetonians met all the girls they had not met the day before at the Kelly tea dance or the Welling-Ryerson ball.

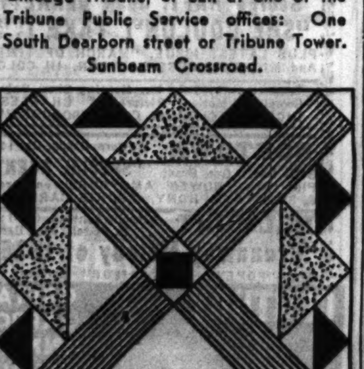
Sunbeam Crossroad.



BY NANCY CABOT.

One of the oldest of the middle western patterns is this delightful little pieced block with such a cheerful name. "Sunbeam Crossroad" first was made in Ohio about 1854. Blue and white formed the predominant note in the original pattern. Blue prints with white figures and vice versa were used for some of the patches, while red, white, and dark blue were the plain materials included in the block. The completed square measures 14 inches, and the entire quilt is composed of these pieced blocks.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower.

Giant's Glen—Shoppers—Merry Christmas.

ONE of the best Christmas stories of 1935 came over the Associated Press wires and concerns Santa Claus' discovery of Giant's Glen, New Brunswick, and 10 year old Laura Neadle. The isolated valley where Laura lives in a roughly built little cabin, with her nine brothers and six sisters, is the legendary home of a giant whose angry roars can be heard through the forest when the wind howls through the weird rock formations. It was little wonder to the children that Santa usually missed the glen, not the most reassuring place to be traveling at midnight, when the wind caused those roars and groans among the rocky cliffs. That probably was the reason, Laura decided, that her father and brothers chopped down Christmas trees and sent them away by train, instead of Santa calling for them personally. Anyway, she hoped the boys and girls who received the trees from her valley would be happy and receive many gifts. She said so on a piece of wrapping paper and tied it to a tree, newly toppled, an auspicious time for making a wish.

Laura's note was found lashed to a tree purchased by a family in Bridgeport, Conn., for their children's Christmas. The tale of the little girl who lived in the glen where the Christmas trees come from reached the newspapers and has been retold halfway across the continent, including the information added by Laura that her home and that of her fifteen brothers and sisters had been devoured by flames which "took everything we own." From dozens of sources—even from far away Florida—came immediate reassurance that this year Santa would get to Giant's Glen with food, and clothes, and money, as well as toys in his pack for the Neadle family.

THERE have been a number of Christmas shopping tales repeated to us this season—about the woman who wanted a Father Goose book to make a set with the Mother Goose book she already had bought her grandchild, and the shopper who inquired where she could find a flat silver table service and was sent to the store tearoom, but the one that pleases us most concerns the little old lady who was weaving her way among the customers in a crowded store early this week. She tried vainly to get in an ascending elevator and when its doors clanged shut without her she turned to the shopper standing nearest her and commented: "Any one 90 years old is a fool to come downtown on a day like this."

* *

A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS to all and especially to postmen with aching arms and backs, and to tired and footsore saleswomen in department stores, even to that holiday "extra" in one of the first floor departments in a loop store who rang up so many "no sales" on the cash register. Investigation finally disclosed that each time she showed goods and the customer did not buy she dutifully marched to the cash register and rang up "no sale."

Stock Offers Fine Program for Holidays

BY EDWARD BARRY.

A brilliant holiday program packed with good tunes was the Chicago Symphony orchestra's Christmas present to the city. The fifth of the Tuesday concerts ran a varied course yesterday afternoon from a Bach "Pastorale" to the tingling "Capriccio Espagnol" of Rimski-Korsakov.

Two concerti grossi found themselves next to each other during the first part. One is the work of an Italian who has been dust two hundred years, the other of a smiling youth who plays flute in the orchestra and who rose at the invitation of his conductor and his colleagues to bow acknowledgments at the conclusion of the piece.

The latter is David Van Vactor. He has written a sturdy, workmanlike fugue for the first movement of his concerto and two less archaic bits for the second and third. The work as a whole is a clever attempt to salvage for modern ears some of the better features of the old time multiple concerto.

Van Vactor uses three flutes and harp as principals; he is not afraid of minor bits of anachronism and brings some very modern learning to bear on the composition's problems.

The concert gave Chicago its chance for the traditional Christmas-time bow in Humperdinck's direction. The war gemütlich melodies of "Hänsel und Gretel" have cheered forty-three Christmases on this plant so far; they show no signs of losing any of their fetching qualities with the passage of time.

Dr. Stock used two rousing excerpts from "Königskinder" to break the spell of the Dream Pantomime and bring his program up to the intermission. The orchestra is in royal form this year.

The second half of the concert opened with the Brahms-Haydn variations, in which Brahms succeeds in almost drowning the old theme after sixty-four bars or so, and erecting castles on the spot out of the richness and variety of his own imagination. The five short movements of Rimski-Korsakov's "Capriccio Espagnol" ended the program with its five vivid demonstrations of the power of the modern orchestra. This versatile midshipman worked on the music nearly fifty years ago, but for some curious reason it does not sound dated at all.

The next Tuesday concert is scheduled for Jan. 14. The soloist will be Mina Hager. The note about her in the program book announces cryptically that she has appeared under Dr. Stock and with the Chicago Symphony orchestra but never in Orchestra hall.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh of Chicago are in Washington for a short visit at the Carlton. They are hunting an apartment and will be here for the rest of the season, after the first of the year.

Merry Christmas!

How about topping off the day with a good show? I know one!

"The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo" is a gay, appealing, and romantic adventure film that ought to bring your shekels tinkling into theater tills.

The light but decidedly entertaining and suspenseful story is presented with taste, speed, and humor, and the cast, headed by the adored Ronald Colman, is the sort that audiences sigh contentedly over.

Who is the man that breaks the bank?

Well, he's a mysterious Monsieur Paul Gallard, who calmly takes his winnings and vanishes—into the heart of a London kitchen. Where he shouts:

"I did it!" And is immediately greeted with resounding cheers and much throwing into the air of varied articles from dishcloths to saucepans by the assembled employés, among whom he distributes his winnings.

You see, they had given him their all to stake, and by pure luck he had W-O-N. . . .

Gallard intends never, never to return to Monte Carlo. But the Casino authorities have other ideas. . . . Naturally they would like to win their money back. . . .

So—they resort to hocus pocus, employing a beautiful blonde as cat's-paw. The blonde is Joan Bennett—and it was not in their cards that the pretty lure should fall for the unsuspecting fish.

But—she does—and, my dears, you should just see what happens!

Is the "man who broke the bank" a servant?

No, alannas, he's a Russian noble who has been reduced to taxi driving by the debacle of things at home. And the hotel help are all members of the former Russian nobility who have landed on their uppers. . . .

The story winds intriguingly to an ending you'll care for. . . .

Mr. Colman is at his suave, agile best. He can handle a light rôle as effectively as he can a heavy one—and don't you love to hear him talk? Joan Bennett makes a fascinating foil. Colin Clive, Montagu Love, and others are all aces.

"The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo" is clean, zestful, laugh provoking. You'll like it. I KNOW you will.

See you tomorrow.

The Briar Pipe

By Stuart Palmer

SYNOPSIS.

Violet Feverel is killed, apparently by having been thrown from her horse Siwash. She was taking an early morning's ride in New York's Central park. Miss Hildegarde Withers, teacher and student of criminology, helps her friend, Inspector Piper, investigate. They suspect murder. Miss Withers finds a briar pipe on the spot where the dead girl had lain. Mrs. Maude Thwaite and her husband, Rufus, are owners of the stable where Siwash is kept, and Latigo Wells, manager. Maude Thwaite desired to own Siwash. At Violet Feverel's apartment Miss Withers and Piper overtake Violet's half-sister, Barbara Foley, about to elope with Eddie Fry, Violet's boy friend and a race track gambler. Violet was divorced from Don Gregg, and had had him put in alimony jail. Thomas, who with his wife, Mattie, are old retainers of Don's father, Pat Gregg, comes in search of Violet. Old Mr. Gregg thinks he is going to die. Thomas hints at foul play. Don Gregg had been released from alimony jail on a fake writ before his wife's death, though he has an alibi and is not held. The autopsy of Dr. Bloom, medical examiner, reveals Violet Feverel was killed by a BB bullet which hit her throat. An expert tells Miss Withers that the "murder" pipe's owner has false teeth. She buys apples with which she hopes to find who among the suspects has false teeth. Piper and Miss Withers call at the Gregg home. Pat Gregg hints there may be a second murder after the big race on Saturday at Beaulah Park. Abe Thomas admits it was he who got Don out of jail. Latigo Wells is fired from Thwaites. The day of the race arrives. Miss Withers and Piper and all the suspects attend. Miss Withers wins on Wallaby, a long shot. She knew he had been Violet Feverel's selection.

INSTALMENT XXXIX.

THE SUSPECT'S REACTIONS.

The inspector digested this. "Say, how did Violet get the tip?"

Miss Withers frowned. "I wish I knew," she said softly. Her elbow jammed into the inspector's ribs, and he stopped short. His companion was pointing just ahead, where young Don Gregg was moodily scattering the fragments of his ticket.

"Bad luck?" Miss Withers called out as they drew closer.

Gregg nodded. "Good news was bad news for me. You know, I counted on that name. I thought it was about time I had some good news." He flipped away the scraps of paper carelessly.

The young man withdrew. "Not a bad loser, at that," Miss Withers gave him credit. "Oscar, did you notice that everybody today seemed to bet on a horse because they liked his name?"

"Sure," said Piper. "Is that why you bet on Wallaby?"

Miss Withers stopped. "Oscar, do you know what a wallaby is?"

"Of course I do," he came back. It's a mythical monster."

Miss Withers shook her head. "A wallaby is a miniature kangaroo, a marsupial of the genus Macropus. Although the wallaby is often no larger than a rabbit, the female carries her young in a pouch as do larger kangaroos."

The inspector hurriedly said that he was sorry he'd asked. The crowd was thinning out a bit now, although two lesser races remained to be run.

Miss Withers saw the Thwaites, calculating over a racing telegraph furiously, as they tried to pick long shots for the final events. "There's a woman who never gives up," Miss Withers observed.

The inspector looked at his companion quizzically. "I'm getting wise to you, Hildegrade," he said. "I know what you're hanging around this place for. Are you trying to solve the Feverel murder by watching how the suspects act, and trying to get a line on their characters?"

"Something like that," Miss Withers admitted.

"It's a good idea, all the same," said the inspector. "Come on—I see that colored boy over there. Let's follow him."

Highpockets was shuffling sadly in the direction of the exit gate, a picture of dejection. Suddenly he caught sight of Latigo Wells and Barbara, who were moving in a parallel direction and who seemed to be in much the same mood. Yet they clung very closely together.

Highpockets rushed upon the couple with shrill cries.

"Listen, Miss Ba'bra—I been mighty unlucky but I know I can hit this next race. I gotta have five—" He looked thoughtful—"Anyway $2."

Latigo shrugged his shoulders. "Miss Foley and I are busted," he said.

"Yeah," Highpockets returned. "But Miss Foley still owns a horse. That Siwash horse, he's a mighty fine animal. And you're going to lose him . . . unless you lend me the loan of $2."

Barbara turned to Miss Withers and the inspector, who were coming closer. "Hello—can you people figure out what he's talking about?"

Highpockets was excited, voluble. "Your sister—she didn't pay the board bill for her horse. Over $200 due already. An' the law says that when an animal's board has run four months the stable can have the sherif come and auction it off for the cost of the board bill! Miss Thwaite's fixing to auction off Siwash to herself on the fifteenth of next month. Of course she's gotta send you a notice in the mail, but leave it to her to send it to the wrong address or something, like she's done befo'."

Miss Withers was indignant. "Oscar, can that be done?"

The inspector nodded, and Latigo interrupted—"It shore can, ma'am. It's part of the old herd laws."

But still Babs Foley was doubtful. "I don't see any chance of paying that $200 board bill. I'm sick of race horses anyway."

"Let Maude Thwaite have the nag if she wants him so bad," Latigo agreed. "Come on, honey, we got to rush to catch that train!"

The man and the girl hurried away, still arm in arm. So it was Miss Withers, after all, who loaned Highpockets his sadly-needed $2.

At the very turnstile of the west gate she and the inspector came upon the drab and gloomy figure of Abe Thomas, in the grip of the loquacious Eddie Fry.

"You're a man who knows horses!" Eddie was saying excitedly. "I tell you it can't lose—I got the tip straight from a jocky's brother-in-law. It's a red-hot three horse parlay at Tia Juana tomorrow—Velociter to Mad Frump to Shining Jewel!"

The young man's spirits were seemingly undampened. He turned his barrage on the newcomers. "I tell you I can make a fortune on a parlay like this," he insisted. "Start, say, with a $10 bet—if the parlay works we'll win thirty on Velociter, bet it on Mad Frump and make two hundred, bet the two hundred on Shining Jewel and we'd have over two thousand when he comes across the line a winner. . . ."

Miss Withers shook her head slowly, and Eddie Fry shrugged his shoulders. "Somebody else stake me!" he said hopefully. "There's that Gregg—he ought to be willing to take a chance. Hey, Gregg!" Eddie rushed toward the exit gate.

"He's already forgotten about today's losses," Miss Withers observed. "There's a young man who couldn't hold a grudge!"

"There's a young man who's a fool for gambling," Abe Thomas put in. The old family retainer seemed a little more drab and dusty, if possible, than usual. It was as if he had been left out in the sun and wind for a long time. His eyes were avid and his expression would have seemed envious to Miss Withers if she had not heard his principles in regard to gambling.

He seemed anxious to talk. "You made a killing today, didn't you?" he accused Miss Withers.

She looked surprised. "I don't remember confiding in you," she said stiffly. "How did you know—"

"Pardon, ma'am," Thomas apologized, "but I couldn't help hearing you. I was standing just behind you at the rail, and I heard you cheering the winner."

"Naturally I was a little excited," Miss Withers snapped back.

Thomas nodded. "It was quite a horse-race, ma'am. When Head Wind left his jocky and threw the race, I knew it was going to be something! And then when Wallaby came through on the rail. . . ."

Suddenly he stopped and drew himself up. "I've got to be getting home—Mr. Gregg may need me," he explained. He moved away.

The inspector had an idea. "What's your hurry, man?" he cried. "We're due at the Gregg place this afternoon, and if you've got the flivver here you can give us a ride. . . ."

But Abe Thomas was moving nimbly through the crowd, out past the exit gate. "A crusty sort of a guy!" the inspector complained. "Now I suppose we'll have to take a taxi."

Dance Floor Is a Prominent Stage to Reveal Loveliness

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

As Mr. Vincent Lopez, well known orchestra leader, says, the dance floor is the nonprofessional woman's stage on which to put forth her best rôle. She has the stage then. She has the lighting. She has an audience, critical or approving as the case may be.

"To have smart women in a supper club room or dance place is more important than a highly paid attraction!" says the well known maestro. "People come to see faces and dresses!"

From his excellent vantage point to observe our sex he garnered such first hand observations as the following:

Hair is the dominant note now in judging a woman's points. Then face, then hands, then figure, then feetfi and ankles. A little argument arose here about whether Mr. Lopez hadn't been "pointing" his list backward. But he stuck to his guns. "Ankles," he argued, "may be judged last, because they're expected to be good. They must be wood; and they usually are good."

One can spot an American woman on any European dance floor, Lopez tells, by her feet and her sparkling, beautiful teeth!"

If a woman hasn't it in herself to develop a clothes and personality sense, Lopez thinks she should have herself studied and advised by some one who can make her more of a personality.

Mr. Lopez has dabbled a great deal in lighting effects. He has developed some lovely color effects. "The lighting of a room," he says, "is vitally important not only to supper club rooms but to private entertainment in homes." Lighting never should come from overhead or face one directly. It always should be on the side. Indirect side lighting. The lighting must be diffused and soft, but not so dim that one can't see who is sitting across the room. A light golden amber, diffused with blue, is flattering to women, as a rule.

For dinner table lighting Mr. Lopez recommends for the smart, brilliant gathering the indirect side lighting, and candlelight for romance.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

Nourishing Cream Softens Skin.

H. L.: After a few applications of nourishing cream your skin will have a softened appearance, not a dried out, weather beaten skin which is so aging. Use this cream every night before you go to bed. In a short time you will notice the improvement. Your skin will have a smooth, velvety quality.

Tonsils May Cause Breath Odor.

S. D. N.: The bad breath odor may be the result of diseased tonsils, a catarrhal condition, or some trouble on the inside of the nose. My suggestion is that you see your doctor and let him determine the cause.

Film Notables Have Birthdays on Christmas

Many Double Celebrations at Hollywood.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—To the rest of the world tomorrow is Christmas but to Dorothy Peterson, Marguerite Churchill, Gladys Swarthout, Ketti Gallian, Helen Twelvetrees, Earle Foxe, Scenarists Sonya Levien and Tom Reed, Director Michael Curtiz, and Producer Joseph M. Schenck it is not only Merry Christmas but happy birthday.

In fact a score of Hollywood notables know the Christmas holiday as a double barreled festival, for in addition to the ten movie personalities named who were all born on Dec. 25 the following merge their natal celebrating with the yule occasion:

Eric Blore, Kane Richmond and Director John Cromwell, born Dec. 23.

Ruth Chatterton, Carl Brisson and Producers Howard Hughes and William Goetz, born Dec. 24.

Marlene Dietrich and Ray Wise [Mala of "Eskimo"], Dec. 27, and Lew Ayres, Dec. 28.

And for the Joe E. Brown family it's a triple holiday, tonight being Mr. and Mrs. Brown's twentieth wedding anniversary and tomorrow being the nineteenth birthday of their son Don. So now you have twenty good reasons why Christmas week is filled with so many parties and parties so doubly gay in Hollywood.

Director Henry King, engaged in screening "The Country Doctor," which is built about the Dionne quintuplets and Dr. Dafoe, discovered that three main personalities connected with the film, Actress Peterson, Scenarist Levien and Producer Schenck, have birthdays happening on Christmas.

Dorothy Peterson, from Zion City, Ill., plays Nurse Johnson in "The Country Doctor." She is making the main event of her Christmas-birthday celebration her long distance telephone call to Dr. Allen Dafoe, the quints' physician, to talk about the five little girls and their celebration.

Miss Peterson, whose red hair, creamy complexion, tendency to freckle and personal streamlines belie the old lady rôles that the movies have been thrusting her into for the last five years, is a young woman of 35 who was born in Hector, Minn., of pioneer Scandinavian stock, and educated in Zion City, where her late father was street commissioner. Her schooldays chum was Ruth Voliva, now Mrs. Roland Bennett.

Miss Peterson's first steps toward stage and movies were taken when she won a public speaking contest in Lake county, Ill., and followed with the state scholastic public speaking medal.

According to CULBERTSON

UNORTHODOX BUT SOUND.

Among the thrills a player can experience at the bridge table, none is greater than finding, after a hand has been played, that he has managed to select, out of a maze of low cards and meager bidding information, the one card that could have defeated an otherwise "cold" contract. And when the selection involves the heresy of leading up to a bid suit, the resultant satisfaction is even greater.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 diam'ds	Pass
2 no tr'p	Pass	3 no tr'p [final bid]

West, on lead, considered the possible advantage of a lead from each suit. His eventual choice was nothing but the result of the well-known [and excellent] elimination process.

Diamonds, he disposed of first: If his partner had stoppers in that suit, well and good, but he would make them without the help of an opening lead. The heart suit received more attention, but was discarded because both North and South had implicitly shown heart strength by prompt agreement on the no trump contract. The club suit received scant attention simply because West felt that whatever club tricks were potentially his would be made later without the necessity of gaining tempo. Nothing was left but a spade lead, and West could find nothing intrinsically wrong with this lead, despite South's opening bid in the suit. He had not rebid, and North had never supported the suit. It was possible that he had a four card broken suit, and that East also held four to the king or queen. In that case, the suit must be attacked at once, before the East-West side suit stoppers were driven out.

So the jack of spades was opened, and the contract, which was a laydown with any other suit opening, was defeated one trick. When East gained the lead with the diamond queen, he continued the spade attack, and when later the diamond king gave him entry, he cashed two spade tricks. The ace of clubs was the defenders' fifth trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: With the following hand, would you open with one diamond? ♠ A J 5 3, ♥ 2, ♦ A 9 7 4, ♣ A K 8 2. If so, and partner responded with one no trump, which suit would you then bid?

Answer: The best opening bid is one diamond, because if partner's response is one heart, one spade can be bid, and if the response is one no trump, two clubs holds the bidding to low levels.

Movie Colony to Celebrate at Race Opening

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Almost everybody big enough to hang up a stocking is a horse racing fan in Hollywood.

This became increasingly apparent tonight as "What are you doing Christmas?" was shouted across studio lots and up and down Hollywood boulevard. The opening of the Santa Anita track tomorrow will attract scores of film celebrities. Later, "open houses" will be the main attraction.

Informal family dinners at noon are planned by many players, including Jean Harlow, Jeanette MacDonald, the Chester Morrises, the Robert Montgomerys, the Al Jolsons and the Bing Crosbys. They'll all attend the races later.

A few who aren't so race minded will spend the holiday on the desert, at the Palm Springs resorts. Jean Muir, Marian Marsh and Jean Arthur and the Leslie Howards are among these.

Dick Powell will entertain at home for his parents and his younger brother. The Warren Williamses are holding open house and will invite their guests to swim—if the water is warm enough.

The Frederic Marches will spend most of the day at home with their two adopted children.

Marguerite Churchill and her husband, George O'Brien, will take 6 month old Orin to the desert for the day. Boris Karloff will entertain friends at dinner. George Brent will go to Lake Arrowhead, in the mountains, where he hopes to find snow. The Harold Lloyds will entertain their children and their children's friends at a huge party.

school crowd, and some of those young men and women who are away at college but who still are too young to be included in the debutante festivities, have a gay evening ahead of them tonight at the Fortnightly club, where the Fortnightly dance committee is giving its annual Christmas party. About 150 or 200 young people are invited to the affair, which always is very gay and quite the most sophisticated of the Fortnightly's winter parties.

Among the dinners being given before the dance is one at which Mrs. Leonard Karcher will be hostess at the "900" for her daughter and son, Barbara and Freer Willson. Miss Barbara is a student at the Girls' Latin school, and young Mr. Willson is a student at the Northwestern Military academy.

Among the committee members who will take turns receiving tonight at the Fortnightly are Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Nelson Thomasson Jr., Mrs. Cyrus G. Hill, Mrs. Aldis J. Browne, Mrs. I. Newton Perry, Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Mrs. John L. Fortune, Mrs. Bryan S. Reid, Mrs. F. Stanley Rickcords, Mrs. Eugene S. Talbot, Mrs. William E. Parsons, Mrs. John Paul Welling, Mrs. John R. Thompson Jr., and Mrs. Walter G. Cummings.

Colony Club to Give Party for Students.

A gay party on the south side tonight is one which is being given for the sons and daughters of members of the Colony club who have returned from college for the Christmas holidays. The party is to be a ball at the Shoreland hotel.

Mrs. Frank Wright, chairman of the party, and several members of the Colony club will be in the receiving line. Henry Slucer is in charge of a group of young men who will act as ushers and make sure that every one is acquainted and that each and every one has a pleasant time.

Mr. and Mrs. John Porter will be at home on their farm near Libertyville this afternoon to dispense Christmas cheer to their friends in the form of eggnog. Every year since they have been married the Porters have had a Christmas eggnog party.

Among others giving eggnog parties today are Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Frey, who will entertain in their residence on State parkway, and the Ayres Boals of Winnetka, who annually are at home to their friends on Christmas afternoon.

Most of the Wrigley clan will be eating Christmas dinner in Lake Geneva where Mrs. William Wrigley has opened her large home for the occasion. Her daughter and son-in-law, the James R. Offields, and their son-in-law and daughter, the junior Denis E. Sullivans, are among thirty or more who are spending a few days with Mrs. Wrigley.

There is plenty of ice and snow, so winter sports will have a prominent place on the anmusement program.

Second Son Born to J. Stewart Harveys.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart Harvey are being congratulated on the birth of their second son Monday evening at the Passavant hospital. No name has been selected yet for the youngster.

The Sargent Colliers [Eleanor McCormick] and the junior H. Warren Bucklers [Patty McCormick] have arrived to spend Christmas with their mother, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick. The Colliers live in Boston and the Bucklers live in Baltimore.

Christmas dinner at the Laurance H. Armours' will be a merry one, for his sister and brother-in-law, the James C. Dunns of Washington, are here for a brief visit. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn's daughter, Miss Marianna Dunn, also is with the Armours. Her engagement to Count Guy de Baillet Latour of Brussels, Belgium, was announced last fall.

Mrs. C. Morse Ely has invited her family and a few close friends to partake of a Christmas dinner this evening in her Astor street apartment.

Mrs. Chauncey Keep to Give Dinner.

Mrs. Chauncey Keep will serve Christmas dinner to her family, including Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins and their children and the Robert A. Gardners and their children.

Arthur A. Burrows is giving a family Christmas dinner in the home of his mother, Mrs. William F. Burrows, in Lake Forest today. His sons, Arthur Jr. and George, and the John C. Pitchers will be among those at the family board.

Welcome guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Belden are his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Roy McWilliams of Bidart, France, who arrived yesterday to have an old-fashioned American Christmas with their relatives. Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams are spending a few weeks in Chicago.

Mrs. Oliver S. Picher of Glencoe has as her holiday guests her grandchildren, Lewis and Sarah Picher, and their parents, Lieut. and Mrs. Oliver Picher. Stanton Picher is at home from Harvard for the holidays and Miss Muriel Picher is at home, but Mrs. Picher Purcell is in Paris.

Edgar J. Uihlein in Baltimore.

Edgar J. Uihlein is spending Christmas with his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Uihlein, in Baltimore.

The Percy B. Eckharts of Kenilworth will have Christmas dinner with his mother, Mrs. Bernard A. Eckhart, in Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Eckhart are sailing on the Reliance for a round the world trip on New Year's day and will not return until May.

Among the Chicagoans who have gone away for Christmas are the Douglas Offutts, who are visiting her mother, Mrs. Albert C. Battelle, at Miami Beach; Dr. and Mrs. Charles Jacobs and their daughter, Miss Amelia Frances, who are on a cruise to the West Indies; and the John Sheppard Stones and their son, Dana, who are visiting the former Lucy Stone and her husband, Eliot Goss, in Waterbury, Conn.

Youth Yerns for Free Life; Seeks Advice

Tells Physiognomist He Has Wanderlust.

BY HUGO WESTERBERG.

RICARDO CORTEZ.

"I have the wanderlust. I have hitch-hiked many places, and when father says no it makes me want to go all the more."

The boy who writes and asks advice about getting on in the world thinks conditions in his home are cramping his style and believes if he were to start in some other place he would have a better chance. The ideal way to live, he says, would be to have a log cabin in the woods far away and to write poems and train wild animals.

It would be for some persons, provided they had enough money to pay expenses until the verses and the animals were sold. I remember a case, or rather two [this is not an unusual situation for boys to find themselves in] where two boys had chosen different methods to reach their desired end: a free and virile outdoor life far from civilization.

They were both members of a surveying party in northwestern Canada. One was assistant to the chief engineer and the other took orders from the ranking master.

The light eyebrows of the engineer indicated a certain timidity which made him want to protect and prepare himself with knowledge before venturing out into the world; at the same time his strong mouth showed a consideration for money making and this had a steadying influence on his spirit. The teamster had well covered fearless eyes [dark eyebrows] and a short upper and lower lip, and there was nothing to hold him back when he felt the urge.

My correspondent is of the second type and it is a question if he can force himself to remain where he is and prepare himself.

Ricardo Cortez is an excellent defense for the taste of hero-worshiping women. His high ridged nose indicates an ambition to rise, pride and self-respect which inspires confidence. His short upper lip denotes sensitiveness to changes in human relationships, with a special interest in its emotional parts, indicated by the fleshiness of the lower part of the nose in front view.

CUBA CHARGES JACOBS RAN OUT TO ESCAPE LOSS

Calling Louis Fight Stirs Havana.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Dec. 24.—After a twelve hour record breaking investigation, army secret service men are officials tonight decided that Mike Jacobs called off the Louis-Gastanaga fight scheduled here for Sunday afternoon because he was convinced it would prove a financial fiasco and not because of political unrest or any direct or indirect threats of kidnaping against him, Joe Louis, or any one else connected with the fight.

Jacobs' story in New York last night, giving reasons why he called off the fight, has been proved false, it was stated.

Ambassador Gets Instructions.

Results of the investigation were cabled tonight to the Cuban ambassador in Washington. He was instructed to deny Jacobs' statements through the American press, and to prove officially to the state department the things which Cuba considers libel.

The investigation disclosed that Louis agreed to fight Isadore Gastanaga without a specific guarantee, receiving only 40 per cent of the net receipts, which Jacobs and his experts estimated at not less than $50,000. The ticket selling started three days before Paulino Uzcudun's defeat by Louis Dec. 13, and on that day totaled $3,000. But from that night up to Jacobs' visit here on Dec. 19 only $324.75 worth of tickets were sold.

With only ten more days ahead, Jacobs realized, Cubans said, that a $50,000 house was impossible since the Cubans completely lost interest in the fight after Louis disposed of Uzcudun with a single blow in the fourth round. He was convinced it was impossible to arouse interest in the fight where the outcome was known beforehand, since Gastanaga, a fifth rater, apparently had not the slightest chance of making good in a mere exhibition, much less a fight, with Louis.

Asks Government to Chip In.

Secretary of State Echarte, who is also chairman of the national boxing commission, said Jacobs offered to hold the fight anyway, provided the government put up the difference between the gate receipts and the $50,000 acceptable minimum.

Jacobs added he must know the reply within two hours, when his plane was scheduled to leave for New York. Echarte said it was impossible to give a reply until a cabinet meeting could be held, since he was not empowered to pledge the government funds alone. Jacobs then agreed to await the government's reply in New York, giving the government two weeks in which to reply and tentatively setting Feb. 2 as the new fight date.

JACOBS STICKS TO GUNS

New York, Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Mike Jacobs, promoter of the Twentieth Century Sporting club, was unconcerned today over reports that the Cuban government, aroused by what they termed his "outrageous declarations" in giving reasons why he had canceled the proposed Joe Louis-Isadore Gastanaga fight in Havana, was considering diplomatic action. Jacobs simply said, "They can't hurt us."

He reiterated previous statements that he had been met at the dock on his arrival in Havana by six machine gunners, who, he said, remained with him until he left.

Tells of Bodyguards.

Jacobs, safe in his offices at last, said, among other things: "We read of trouble in Cuba all the way there, but had no idea how serious it was until we got there. A fellow comes up to me when we arrived and says, 'Here are your bodyguards, Mr. Jacobs.' And there were two guys with guns—guns with wheels—and they marched me to my car.

"When we got to the hotel every one in Cuba, including the secret police and most of the statesmen, seemed there. I started by saying Louis wouldn't be ready to fight in December. I knew right away I'd never bring Joe there with all those machine guns around. I said I'd postpone the fight until March, and they waved angrily. We argued from 11 in the morning until 6 in the evening. Finally I put the fight off until February—I'd have said anything at the time. All I was thinking of was Uncle Mike and whether he'd get out of the place."

GREAT OUTDOORS CONTRIBUTES TO YULE FESTIVITY

Snow, Evergreens, Holly Aid Christmas Spirit.

BY BOB BECKER.

In wishing readers of this department a cheery, merry Christmas and all the good things that go with this day, we are reminded again of the fact that no matter how far you may travel or how remote from cities you may be, you still feel the deep spiritual significance of Christmas. Although here in the middle west we like a white Christmas [and especially a Christmas eve with falling snow], the importance of this day in the lives of Christian people throughout the world is not dependent on climate.

It is our experience that Christmas means more after you have spent the day away from your "homeland." Although those of us who live here in the middle west like a setting of snow on the ground, children using their sleds, and fragrant spruce and balsam trees in our homes, deep appreciation of this atmosphere does not really come to you until you spend a Christmas far from this setting.

It's Christmas in Tropics, Too.

We have awakened on Christmas morning to the music of carols being sung by children in Barbados, where the sun was hot and the Caribbean a vivid green. Palm trees stirring in the wind . . . everybody in white . . . summer heat. . . . It was Christmas day, and one was conscious of the inner thrill that this day brought, but it was not the kind of a day that one from the middle west can easily be accustomed to.

Christmas on a train . . . Christmas in Brazil . . . curious banners, flags, processions, crowded markets, and clanging bells that feature a Christmas celebration in Peru . . . these experiences not only emphasize to a resident of the Great Lakes region that the spirit of Christmas is far-reaching, but also that there is nothing like a white holiday season.

Holly from the South.

It is interesting to all outdoor fans how Christmas draws heavily upon the outdoors for certain features of our holiday observance. Up from the south comes mistletoe and holly—the former a curious, parasitical plant, the use of which apparently goes way back to pre-Christian days.

The yule log and all the evergreens in our homes today are other beautiful contributions from the outdoors to this season.

But even more interesting to us as we think over the significance of this day and the spirit engendered by it are the old myths and customs that are revived at Christmas time.

For example, in some countries the story is that on Christmas bees will sing, and cattle will kneel in honor of the manger, and even deer will kneel in the snow to "look up to the Great Spirit."

Another Yuletide Custom.

But of all the symbols of the spirit that prevails at this season of the year we know of nothing quite as appealing as the practice in some European countries of placing in a row every pair of shoes in each household to typify that during the coming year every member of that home will live in peace and harmony.

Australian Cricket Team Leads South Africans

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Dec. 24.—Australia's touring cricket team today led the South Africa squad in their second match before 8,000. The Australians scored 168 runs for the loss of three wickets while dismissing their opponents for 157 runs. Australia won the first match by nine wickets last week.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TOM CONNOLLY, chief of the American league staf, is the only foreign born umpire ever to work in the major leagues. . . . Connolly was born in Manchester, England, and came to America at the age of 17 as a shoemaker. . . . Southern Methodist university's football team, which plays Stanford in the Rose Bowl New Year's day, never has been behind in a game this year. . . . Ralph Kercheval, whose punting for the Brooklyn Dodgers added many thrills to the professional football season, has withdrawn from the game to become assistant to Maj. Louis Beard, manager of the Whitney turf interests near Lexington, Ky. . . . He was graduated from Kentucky in animal husbandry, majoring in thoroughbred horse breeding. . . . Jay Berwanger, winner of the Big Ten football trophy for being the player of greatest value to his team, says he used to get fan mail from young women until the newspapers began printing his picture. . . . Kansas State's basketball team has a lucky brick which is kept beneath the bench during all games, each player rubbing it before entering a contest. . . .

TOM CONNOLLY.

JOE VOSMIK.

There are more entries in the winter Olympics to be held in Germany's historic Black Forest than competed at Lake Placid four years ago. . . . There were 306 nominations from 17 nations at Placid, but this winter there are 1,000 from 28 countries. . . . Twelve of the 18 members of Northwestern's basketball squad are sophomores. . . . If a horse track speculator had played every possible combination in all daily doubles at the Bowie track in Maryland during the fall meeting he would have wound up $1,953.40 winner. . . . Had he done the same at the Narragansett Park summer meeting his winnings would have totaled $3,200. . . . Ben Franklin, Bears full back, who was injured most of the season, is working at Bond's in the loop. . . . Ike Boone, former White Sox outfielder, will be the only playing manager in the International league next season, handling the Toronto club. . . . A great running catch by Sam West on the last day of the season prevented Joe Vosmik from winning the American league batting championship for 1935. . . . Vosmik came up as a pinch hitter and his line drive, had it gone for a hit, would have enabled the Indian outfielder to beat out Buddy Myer, who made four hits on five times up the same afternoon. . . .

Fifty per cent of Joe Louis' earnings go to his managers. . . . The new contract drawn up after Louis became 21 years old last May shows only Julian Black's name as manager and is good for 10 years. . . . It is presumed that Black turns over part of his share to John Roxborough, who was Louis' first manager. . . . The old contract gave Louis 66⅔ per cent of his purses after expenses had been deducted. . . . Having made a profit on the footsore cattle his old teammate, Link Lyman, sold him, Jim McMillen, the heavyweight wrestler and old Bear linesman, has transformed his Antioch, Ill., ranch into a chicken farm. . . . So far he has collected only two eggs a day, both the size of bon-bons. . . . Jackie Fields, twice holder of the world's welterweight championship, has opened a cocktail lounge in Hollywood. . . . There are 21 football stadia in the United States with more than 50,000 capacity. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Red Grange's touchdown gave the Bears a 7 to 0 victory over the Collegians at Miami, Fla., before a crowd of 8,000. . . . Tommy Loughran beat King Solomon in ten rounds at Philadelphia. . . . Connie Mack predicted that the Athletics would win the pennant in 1926. . . . William Minster of the Opal A. A. won the feature two mile race of the Belmont A. C. ice meet.

Stevenson Is Seven Ahead in Jocky Race

Miami, Fla., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Wayne Wright's hopes of being the first full fledged jocky to win riding honors on the American turf in many years were given another steback today when he was unable to get a winner at Tropical Park while Apprentice Charley Stevenson scored twice at the Fair Grounds in New Orleans.

Stevenson, 19 year old Boise, Idaho, jocky, boosted his total for the year to 194 while his more experienced rival from Rexbury in the same state dropped seven winners behind. Stevenson, who originally had intended to fly to California for the opening of the Santa Anita meeting tomorrow, now plans to remain in New Orleans until the first of the year.

One jocky was injured and another shaken up when two horses fell in the sixth race. Jimmy Stout suffered a badly bruised right thigh, while Eddie Litzenberger escaped injury when the former's mount, Prieta, fell and Silence III., with Litzenberger up, came along and fell over Stout's mount.

Knox, defending champion in the midwest conference, has played one game this season, defeating Lake Forest, 51 to 30.

SANTA ANITA TO OPEN TODAY FOR 58 DAYS' RACING

Top Row Choice in Mile Feature Event.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Arcadia, Cal., Dec. 24.—The gates of the Santa Anita race track on Lucky Baldwin's estate will be thrown open tomorrow for a 58 day meeting which is expected to be the greatest in California's horse racing history. Tonight many of the leading thoroughbreds of the country were in the spacious stalls of the park which was erected last year following legalization of racing on the Pacific coast.

More than 1,000 horses are on the scene of one of the most beautiful winter tracks in the United States. Eighty-two of the thoroughbreds have been nominated for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, the goal of all horse owners, which will be run on Feb. 22. More than 30,000 watched Azucar capture last year's handicap.

Movie Stars Come Out.

Prominent citizens of Los Angeles and Hollywood's movie stars will be among the large crowd expected to attend tomorrow's opening program. Clark Gable, Bing Crosby, who is seeking to establish an extensive stable, and Mae West will lead the Hollywood delegation.

The eyes of owners, trainers, and the plain everyday $2 bettor are trained on one barn at the track. In the stall is Discovery, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's great handicap champion, leading money winner of the 1935 season, which will seek to climax his great career by winning the Santa Anita handicap.

Cavalcade vs. Discovery.

Discovery arrived here yesterday on the Santa Fe Chief. He was immediately taken to the track and assigned to a stable next to Cavalcade, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan's speedy 4 year old, which won the 1934 Kentucky Derby.

Bob Smith, trainer of Cavalcade, expressed confidence that the horse would triumph over Discovery. He declared Cavalcade was in perfect condition and has fully recovered from his injured hoof.

"We don't expect much trouble from Discovery, Smith said. "We beat Discovery seven times in 1934 and the only race Discovery ever won from us was when Cavalcade stumbled at the gate and unseated his rider in the Suburban handicap at Belmont last May."

Top Row Favorite.

The rich handicap, however, will be forgotten tomorrow and the interest will be centered on the Christmas stakes, feature of the day's opening card. Top Row, A. A. Baroni's giant killer, which twice scored surprise victories over Discovery, will go to the post as the favorite in the mile race.

Top Row's rivals include Frank Carreaud's Ajaccio, which will carry 120 pounds, four less than Top Row; Norman Church's Riskulus; Greentree Stable's Soon Over, and H. C. Hatch's Ariel Cross. Riskulus will be coupled in the betting with Church's Toro Nancy, 3 year old filly.

The probable starters in order of post positions:

Horse—Jocky.	Wt.	Prob. odds.
Born Happy, Caperton	98	15-1
*Toro Nancy, No boy	109	5-2
*Riskulus, Balaski	113	5-2
Dark Winter, Kurtsinger	102	10-1

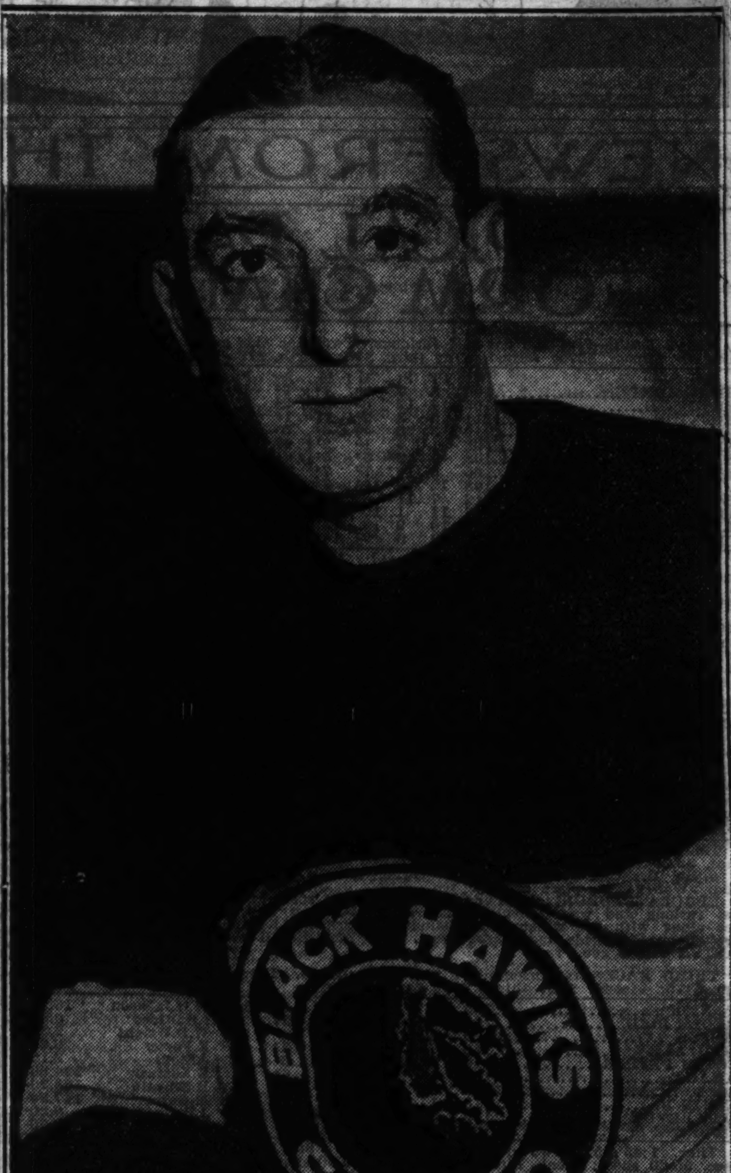
MAYBE HE'LL BRING LUCK



Wildor La Rochelle, right winger obtained from the Canadiens, will will be in the Chicago Blackhawks' lineup tonight as they try again for victory that has eluded them since Dec. 8. The Hawks will face the Red Wings at Detroit, and La Rochelle, veteran of the National Hocky league, may contribute the steadying influence needed to get the Chicago team back in stride once more.

Lonesome at Christmas.

Dear Wake: I'm lonesome at Christmas time. I ask not sympathy, but here's my story. Deprived by death of near relatives at an early age I determined to achieve material success in life because we had been a poor family and I knew poverty's pangs.

I am now just past 40, a bachelor, successful as the world views success, not immensely wealthy but well-to-do, with a good position. To attain this I sacrificed practically everything to hard work. I have friends, but not real friends. I'm invited to Christmas gatherings, but they come, perhaps, from a feeling of duty and are not meant, hence I do not accept.

Charity, you suggest? I've tried that. Yes, I was a Good Fellow to the extent of three baskets. But I sent the money for them. I did not take them in person. I don't know how to be a Good Fellow because I've thought of myself only for so long. I'm lonesome at Christmas time. I know I deserve it, but it irritates me. A. E. T.

Wouldn't it be nice to be
The angel on the Christmas tree,
And look down from that lofty height
On all the fun of Christmas night?
The house with its very festive air
Is full of secrets I could share
If only, only I could be
The angel on the Christmas tree.
I'd see how Santa with all his gifts
Into the small hole in the chimney fits.
Then, too, I'd be the first to find
Whatever things he left behind.
Wouldn't it be nice to be
The angel on the Christmas tree?

New York Rangers at Boston.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago Blackhawks, who led the National Hocky league until their recent slump sank them to third place in their own division, tonight will meet the current leaders of the league, the Chicago owned Detroit Red Wings. The game, played in Detroit, will be the third of the year between the two outfits.

Manager Clem Loughlin of the Hawks has a wholesome respect for the Detroiters for reasons beyond the fact that they held the Hawks to a scoreless tie in the first meeting, then came to Chicago and gave the Hawks their first licking on home ice, 3 to 1. Mr. Loughlin says that "on paper" the Red Wings are the class of the league. He said that before they grabbed the leadership.

Hawks Boss Likes 'Em.

"The Red Wings are a great team," opines the Hawk skipper, "and it is difficult to explain why they have been held to the surprising total of six ties in 16 games. The reason probably is to be found in the fact that the players realize how eager their sponsors are for them to win and have sometimes been a bit timid about taking chances by opening up their offense."

Mr. McLoughlin might have excepted the Red Wings' game in Chicago. They threw caution into the organ loft here and never tightened up at any time as they ran over the Hawks, who had refused to accept defeat in six earlier games at the Stadium.

Norris and Yawkey.

James Norris, Chicagoan who owns the Red Wings, is said to have spent $65,000 for gents of scoring reputation. This expenditure gave the Detroiters Marty Barry, leading scorer in the American division last year; Hec Kilrea, and former scoring leader in the International division, and Syd Howe, who has found the nets many times in his career.

The epidemic of ties made the $65,000 seem like pretty big dough, until the newcomers and such worthy holdovers as Herbie Lewis, Laurie Aurie and Ebbie Goodfellow started to get the range recently. Lewis now has 5 goals and 6 assists and Aurie 4 goals and 6 assists.

Undefeated In Detroit.

Despite the fact they lead the league by a margin of one game over the Toronto Maple Leafs, and have not been defeated on their home ice, the Red Wings have scored only 31 goals in their 16 games.

Their first three games of the season were ties, 1 to 1 with the Rangers, that scoreless tie with the Hawks and another tie with the Rangers, 2 to 2. Then they lost to the Americans and won one from the Leafs, before staging a scoreless tie with the Canadiens. They won two and lost one before getting tangled in their fifth tie, 1 to 1 with the Americans, then won four out of five before finishing in their sixth tie with the Maroons last Sunday night.

The real topoff of the Hawks slump came Sunday night at the Stadium, when, against the Americans, Manager Red Dutton made a miracle shot to tie the score in the last 30 seconds of the third period and Nels Stewart returned the Americans victors when he scored in 7:45 of overtime.

Mike Fights For Job.

Manager McLoughlin does not plan any shakeups in his forward lines for tonight's game. But he is going to have his eye on the defense lads, several of whom have looked pretty sour on recent occasions. Burke will be paired with Levinsky and Weibe will play beside Coulter in the defense shift.

It is said that Goalie Mike Karakas will be playing tonight for his job as regular goal tender. Young Mike has been great on the tough ones, but has put the heat on himself by letting a couple of sleepers wiggle past his upholstery. Lorne Chabot, who won the Vezina cup last year, but who has been benched since recovering from early season injuries, has been ordered to Toronto, where ice is available, presumably to sharpen up for a possible season bow when the Rangers come here next Sunday night. Tonight's lineup:

CHICAGO.		DETROIT.
Karakas	G	Smith
Levinsky	R. D.	Goodfellow
Burke	L. D.	Bowman
Romnes	C.	Barry
Thompson	L. W.	Lewis
McFadyen	R. W.	Aurie

STARS TO MEET IN TABLE TENNIS TEAM MATCHES

Top Ranking Players to Clash at Lake Shore.

Table tennis teams from seven cities from as many states will meet in a 21 match round robin for the national intercity team championship in the ballroom of the Lake Shore Athletic club on Jan. 4 and 5. New York, defending titleholder and three time winner of the event, will be closely pressed by St. Louis, Chicago, and Indianapolis. The other teams, Cincinnati, Detroit, and Omaha, are conceded chances of upsetting the leaders.

The two day tournament will draw every outstanding player in the country because, in addition to settling the team championship, the event will be the deciding factor in picking the team to represent the United States in the world's championship tournament at Prague, Czechoslovakia, in March. Jimmy McClure of Indianapolis and Sol Schiff of New York, who surprised the Europeans last year with the soundness of their games, together with Abe Berenbaum, national champion, and Bud Blattner, present top ranking player of St. Louis, are the present favorites to make the American team.

Play Round Robin.

As the coming tournament is played in the form of a round robin, the top ranking stars meet more often than in the usual elimination tournament, so that spectators will be given a look at the strongest competition of the year.

Foremost among the coming individual battles will be that between McClure and Berenbaum. A year ago the Hoosier youngster defeated Berenbaum in straight games to win a trip to Europe, but at the national tournament in April the result was reversed.

Another match that table tennis fans are looking forward to is the meeting of McClure with the latest St. Louis sensation, Bud Blattner, 16 year old high school student. Blattner gained national prominence last year when he won a game from Sandor Glancz, famous Hungarian star, and later eliminated Sol Schiff, defending champion, from the national tournament. He recently won the St. Louis title from Mark Schlude and Dick Tindall, former top players.

Chicago Has Veteran Team.

Chicago will put a veteran team in the field in spite of the fact that only one player is over 21. Billy Condy, who was the main factor in Chicago's victory two years ago, will be aided by Mort Ladin, Herman Leavitt, and Herbert Aronson of last year's team and a newcomer, Ralph Muchow, Northwestern university sophomore.

Balding May Lose Place on English Team

LONDON, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Although the Hurlingham club, ruling body of British polo, has not yet completed plans for organization of the team that will challenge the United States for the International [Westchester] cup next June, there has been no indication that Gerald Balding, the nine goal Irish star, will be recruited for the matches.

Balding, now residing in America, where he is ranked second only to Thomas Hitchcock Jr., played for England in the last series for the historic polo trophy, in 1930, at the Meadow Brook club, Long Island. He was No. 1 on a team comprised otherwise of Lewis L. Lacey, Capt. C. T. I. [Pat] Roark, and Capt. Humphrey P. Guinness. This combination lost two matches by scores of 10-5 and 14-9 to an American quartet of Eric Pedley, Earle A. S. Hopping, Hitchcock, and Winston Guest.

Pick Team from Six Men.

Present British plans call for selection of the challenging team from a group of six players, only one of whom, Capt. Guinness, is a veteran of cup competition. The others are Capt. M. P. Ansell and Capt. G. E. Prior-Palmer, six goals each; H. Hesketh Hughes, seven goals; E. H. Tyrrell-Martin and Capt. P. G. Sangor, eight goals each. Capt. Guinness is listed at seven goals.

Thus the strongest side the British could muster, on the basis of handicaps, would total 30 goals as compared with the 34 goal American team which will defend the cup under the leadership of Hitchcock.

No Rule Against Pros.

It had been generally expected here that Gerald Balding would be invited to play. Balding is a professional, to the extent that he trains ponies for wealthy patrons and gives instruction, but polo has no barriers or any amateur rule by which competition is restricted.

The American team, picked recently for the trip to England, comprises Hitchcock, Ebby Gerry, Stewart Iglehart, Winston Guest, and Mike Phipps, with Bobby Strawbridge as manager.

NORGE SKI CLUB PICKS JAN. 19 FOR TOURNAMENT

The Norge Ski club of Chicago has selected Jan. 19 as the date of its annual tournament on Norge hill at Fox River Grove. Entries are expected from some of the leading ski jumpers in the world, who have competed in previous Norge meets.

New records are expected this year as a result of alterations on the slide. The record was established by Kaare Walberg of the Norwegian Olympic team in 1932, when he leaped 185 feet at Fox River Grove. The new slide is 120 feet high, 10 feet more than at the time Walberg set his mark, and the takeoff has been moved back ten feet.

300 Skaters Enter C. Y. O. Derby Sunday

More than 300 boys and girls will participate in the first Catholic Youth organization Skating Derby Sunday afternoon at Garfield park.

Nineteen events are listed on the program, which will start at 1:30 o'clock.

The C. Y. O. Skating club, which will have the largest representation in the meet with 50 entrants, expects the Northwest Skating club to have the most formidable lineup of any club in the Chicago area. The Northwest team of 41 will be led by Marvin Thomson, Wallace Fee Jr., and Shirley Jamison. Thomson holds the state juvenile championship.

Strong C. Y. O. contestants include Eleanor Thiel, state woman's champion; Vic Ronchetti, state men's champion; Al Kucera, tri-state senior champion; John Flickinger, Lowell Miller, and Tony Neberz.

The captain of the C. Y. O. team, Leo Freisinger, who will be prevented from taking part in the Derby because of his departure for New York Sunday, where he is to join the rest of the United States Olympic skaters going to Germany, will nevertheless have time to demonstrate his skill and speed in a series of special exhibitions, his coach and trainer, Pete Miller, announced yesterday.

What's This? Dean and Dan Are Strangers!

Chicago wrestling fans, it is rumored, are being offered a belated Christmas gift in the shape of a windup bout between Dan O'Mahoney, heavyweight champion, and Man Mountain Dean at Chicago Stadium Friday. Stadium officials are of the opinion the match is a gift if for no other reason than that it will be the first meeting of this 317 pound bewhiskered journeyman wrestler and O'Mahoney.

The records show this to be unusual, inasmuch as the champion and other members of the troupe have clashed at least once and usually several times. O'Mahoney and Jim Browning, a former champion, are reported to have met sixteen times during the year.

It's a World Series!

According to the record Browning wrestled Dan the first time at Philadelphia July 18, losing the match in 24 minutes and 11 seconds. Their last meeting was at Baltimore, Md., Dec. 5. Other matches between the two include those at Toronto, Ont., Aug. 9; New York, Sept. 24; and Toronto, Oct. 17. The champion won them all.

O'Mahoney made his United States debut by beating Ernie Dusek at Boston Jan. 4. He wrestled Ernie again last month and this time the bout ended in a draw. It is the only match the champion has been unable to win in more than 50 encounters since his arrival from Ireland.

No Strangers Here.

Other opponents O'Mahoney has met more than once include Billy Bartush, Ray Steele, Gino Garibaldi, Chief Little Wolf, Ed Don George, Joe Savoldi, Gus Sonnenberg and Ed [Strangler] Lewis. The number of times he has met these wrestlers, the time of the match, the site and the date follow:

Bartush—Buffalo, July 1, 29:58; Hartford, Aug. 26, won two straight falls.
Steele—St. Louis, July 11, 38:00; Minneapolis, Sept. 17, won decision, one hour time limit.
Garibaldi—Detroit, July 12; Chicago Coliseum.
Wolf—Yankee stadium, July 8, 23:23; Chicago Stadium, Oct. 21, 31:30; Stadium, Nov. 25, 23:37.
George—Boston, July 30; Boston, Sept. 11, won decision, two hours time limit; New York, Oct. 28, 6:00; Madison Square Garden, Dec. 16, 1:23:39.
Savoldi—Washington, D. C., Aug. 7, 25:00; Stadium, Sept. 16; New York, Oct. 6, 26:02.
Sonnenberg—Philadelphia, Sept. 13, 22:08; Providence, R. I., Oct. 16; St. Louis, Nov. 7; Pittsburgh, Nov. 21.
Lewis—Boston, Oct. 12, 1:04; Montreal, Dec. 9.

JACK SALVESON RELEASED; SOX SIGN INFIELDER

The White Sox yesterday announced the signing of a House of David infielder and the release of Pitcher Jack Salveson, who came to the club last year in a deal in which the Pittsburgh Pirates got Outfielder Bud Hafey.

Salveson, who participated in the famed brawl-game between the Pirates and Cubs at Wrigley field on April 29 before coming to the Sox in mid-season, was sent to Dallas in the Texas league.

He was used chiefly as a relief pitcher by Manager Jimmy Dykes, working in 20 games and finishing with a record of one victory, two defeats and an earned run average of 4.84.

The infielder is Charley Uhas, who hit .468 in 190 games for the touring House of David team last year. He is 23 years old, and hits left handed. Uhas worked out with the Sox for a week last year and showed sufficient promise for Dykes to urge his signing.

JOE LOUIS PLANS VACATION AFTER RETZLAFF FIGHT

Detroit Bout Likely to Be Canceled.

Joe Louis is likely to engage in only one fight prior to his bout with Max Schmeling, former heavyweight titleholder, at New York next June. The 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves champion is definitely set to box Charley Retzlaff of Leonard, N. D., at Chicago Stadium Jan. 17, but a proposed appearance at Detroit Olympia Jan. 31 will be canceled, it was said yesterday by Jack Blackburn, Joe's trainer.

Contracts for the Louis-Retzlaff match will be filed with the Illinois boxing commission Monday, it was announced last night by James C. Mullen, Stadium official.

Louis has left for Detroit where he will spend the holidays with his mother. He expects to return the first week in January to open workouts at Trafton's gymnasium. Larry Amadee, assistant trainer of Louis, will celebrate his 37th birthday today.

Frank Androff, the heavyweight who deserted Portland, Ore., to make his home in Minneapolis, Minn., yesterday was signed to oppose George Kutulis in a four round supporting bout to the twelve round headliner between Winfrid Mullins and Everett Rightmire at Marigold Gardens Monday. . . . Nick Peters, Texas junior lightweight, and Sammy Verse will meet at four rounds. . . . Davey Day, west side lightweight contender, started light workouts yesterday for pending matches. . . . Frank Sagilio, Cicero junior welterweight, is working out at Madison Square loop gymnasium for an appearance here next month. . . . Izzy Marks, veteran fight manager, has placed Floyd McNulty, 177 pounds, under his management. . . . Hayden Stuhley, Kewanee, Ill., middleweight, will establish training quarters at Round Lake tomorrow in anticipation of boxing Jock McAvoy within three weeks.

The next boxing show at the Stadium will be presented Jan. 3, featuring the second round of a heavyweight elimination tournament. . . . Hank Bath, Frank Androff, Johnny Erjavec, Harry Thomas, Billy Treest, and Art Sykes are likely to appear on the card. . . . Al Williams, Fox Lake light heavyweight wrestler, is due back today from a three months' tour of Texas, Mexico, California, and Oregon to prepare for a windup match with Charles Grubmyer, Topeka, Kas., at White City Monday. . . . Williams engaged in approximately 30 bouts, losing none. . . . A suspension handed to Grubmyer a month ago for unnecessary roughness in a match at the 124th Field Artillery armory will expire today. . . .

Joe De Pasquale, Madison Square gymnasium featherweight, and Phil Saeli were matched to meet in a five round amateur encounter at the Madison Athletic club Friday. Other boys who will appear include Elzie Green, Pat Henaghan, Johnny Noto, James O'Brien, Clifton Foy, and Lou Espositi.

BIG TEN TEAMS GET A VACATION, BUT IT'S SHORT

Purdue Quintet to Meet California Tomorrow.

Western conference basketball players, with a record of 35 victories and 12 defeats in early season battles with teams outside the league, called time out yesterday, went home and hung up their stockings with the hope that Santa Claus would leave a Big Ten championship in them.

Play will be resumed Thursday when the touring California Bears visit Purdue. Other quintets will be inactive until Saturday, when four games are scheduled, or later. Saturday's contests will bring together California and Northwestern at Evanston; Purdue will be playing New York university at New York, Minnesota will take on Marquette at Wisconsin Rapids, and Illinois will meet Knox at Galesburg. The Illini have a game with California at Champaign next Monday.

Four Teams Unbeaten.

Four of the conference squads have a special reason for enjoying the holiday layoff. Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio State are unbeaten. The Wolverines and Hoosiers have won five straight, the Illini four and Ohio State three.

The two teams that shared the Big Ten title with Illinois last season, Purdue and Wisconsin, have lost one game each. Purdue was upset [or was it an upset?] by Butler, 41-39, while Wisconsin lost to De Paul at the Chicago Stadium Monday night, 27-22. The Badgers have won five, and Purdue four.

De Paul thus wound up with one victory and two defeats in its games with the co-champions at the Stadium. The Demons lost to Purdue, 28 to 24, and finished two points behind Illinois, 26-24.

Purdue Has Speed.

Purdue's squad, called by Coach Ward Lambert the fastest outfit he ever coached, is expected to dazzle California Thursday. Three sophomores, Pat Malaska, John Sines and Jewell Young, were turned loose in the Boilermakers' 54-40 victory over Notre Dame Monday night, and combined with such veterans as Kessler, Seward and Elliott showed more than enough to warant a prediction that they will be at or near the top of the Big Ten standing when the season closes.

After California meets Purdue it must take on Northwestern's fast improving team which has defeated Carleton, Pittsburgh and Michigan State and lost only to Notre Dame.

Purdue's game with New York U., one of the greatest teams in the country for the last few seasons, should be the best on Saturday's schedule. However, the good citizens of Wisconsin Rapids are expecting a high time for themselves when they pack the school gymnasium for the game between two imported teams, Minnesota and Marquette.

Badgers Strong On Defense.

Wisconsin, where Coach Bud Foster is teaching the same tight defense employed by his predecessor, Dr. Meanwell, has the best defensive record of the conference teams. The Badgers have held opponents to 127 points in six games, an average of 21.1. Right behind them are the Illini, with 87 points against them in four games, an average of 21.7.

Drivers of Midget Autos Enter Indianapolis Race

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Among the early entries listed for the 500 mile automobile race to be held here Memorial day are those of Jimmy Snyder of Chicago, Ronney Householder of Los Angeles, Harry McQuinn of Indianapolis and Tony Willman of Milwaukee, stars of the miniature car racing circuit. The four drivers are now competing in the weekly meets sponsored by the Chicago Auto Racing corporation at the 124th Field Artillery armory in Chicago.

PREP BASKET TOURNAMENT TO OPEN TOMORROW

Sixteen prep basketball teams, the top half of the bracket in the University of Chicago's sixth annual Christmas week tourney, will start play tomorrow on a six day championship scramble. Austin vs. Amundsen at 1 p. m. at the university fieldhouse is the opening game.

This year's tourney is an all-Chicago affair. Previous meets have included half a dozen or more suburban quintets in the 32 team bracket, but the quality of the meet should not suffer, for the four ranking teams of last year's meet were, in order, Lane, Hyde Park, Hirsch, and Roosevelt, all of them from the city league.

Six teams will be competing in the meet for the first time—Old Phillips, New Phillips, Foreman, Wells, Manley, and Steinmetz.

Selecting favorites in advance is almost an impossibility, for in the Midway meet coaches are permitted to draw on their lightweight personnel, and many of them do. Lane, winner of the last two meets, is a favorite again, especially if some of the Lane lightweights are used.

Eight games a day, every hour on the hour, starting at 1 p. m., with the exception of an interlude for dinner at 6 p. m., is the schedule for the first three days—Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Quarter-finals will be played Monday, semi-finals Tuesday, and finals Wednesday. First round schedule:

THURSDAY.

1 p. m.—Amundsen vs. Austin.
2 p. m.—Old Phillips vs. Englewood.
3 p. m.—Parker vs. Farragut.
4 p. m.—Sullivan vs. Marshall.
5 p. m.—Lake View vs. Kelvyn Park.
7 p. m.—Hirsch vs. New Phillips.
8 p. m.—Senn vs. Foreman.
9 p. m.—Fenger vs. Lindblom.

FRIDAY.

1 p. m.—Waller vs. Crane.
2 p. m.—Calumet vs. Kelly.
3 p. m.—Von Steuben vs. Tilden.
4 p. m.—Hyde Park vs. McKinley.
5 p. m.—Lane vs. Wells.
7 p. m.—Morgan Park vs. Tuley.
8 p. m.—Roosevelt vs. Manley.
9 p. m.—Bowen vs. Steinmetz.

PREPS TO CHANGE RULES

New rules, designed for the most part to minimize the physical hazards of prep football, will be considered at the annual meeting of the rules committee of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations in Chicago, Jan. 10 and 11.

Walter Okeson, chairman of the national collegiate committee, has promised to attend the meetings and assist in the discussion.

Maj. John L. Griffith, president of the National Collegiate Athletic association, in discussing the methods of reducing fatalities in the college game, said:

"Colleges and universities have reduced the number of fatalities by requiring medical examinations for athletes, insisting on several weeks' practice and training before the season opens, and with competent trainers, excellent equipment and fine ground conditions. They have found that most injuries are not caused by different rules, but by gross ignorance and neglect."

Wilcy Moore Leads Hurlers in Association

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Wilcy Moore, 38 year old castoff of the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox, was the pitching champion of the American association on the basis of winning percentage in 1935.

Behind excellent control and backed by years of experience, Wilcy, pitching for the third place Kansas City Blues, won 15 games and lost five for an average of .750, the same percentage that won a year ago for Walter Tauscher of Minneapolis. Moore also tied Bob Klinger in activity, appearing in 49 games, or almost one out of every three played by Kansas City.

Braxton Most Effective.

Edward Garland Braxton, another former major leaguer, led the league in earned run averages with a low mark of 3.22. Braxton won 17 and lost 10 for Milwaukee's sixth place team. Copeland of Columbus, and Hatter of Milwaukee, were ahead of him with low earned run marks of 2.77 and 2.88, respectively, but appeared in only 14 games each as compared with 33 for Braxton.

Mike Ryba, all-around handy man for Columbus, ranked next to Braxton with an earned run average of 3.29 and won 20 games while losing eight for a winning percentage of .714. Ryan of Minneapolis was second in winning percentage with 11 victories and four defeats for a .733 mark, but his earned run average was 4.88.

Tising Hardest Worker.

Although Moore and Klinger worked in the most games, 49 each, Jack Tising of Louisville was the hardest worker in the circuit, pitching to 1,039 batters in 269 innings. Jim Peterson of Louisville also pitched to 1,039 batsmen, but through 247 innings. Tising also led the league in bases on balls, allowing 142, but he issued the walks while winning the strikeout title with 230 victims. Smith of Kansas City was the most dangerous pitcher, hitting 10 batsmen. Sewell of Louisville was the most losing hurler, winning six and losing 20.

Americo [Crip] Polli, veteran Milwaukee hurler, pitched the only no hit no run game against St. Paul on Sept. 7.

Not a single one hit game was hurled during the 1935 season. Three two hit games were turned in by Galehouse, Minneapolis; Marrow of Minneapolis and Louisville, and Copeland of Columbus.

Klinger started in 34 games, but was taken out of 24 of them. Chambers of Toledo was the most active finisher, completing 21 games and starting but 10.

Kansas City won the league team fielding championship with .969, a point lower than Indianapolis' runner-up mark. Columbus led in double plays with 176.

HARRISON MAY RETURN TO 122D ARTILLERY TEAM

A possible shift in lineup that would bring Lieut. Cliff Harrison into action on the 122d Field Artillery polo team when it clashes with the Black Horse Troop Saturday evening at the Chicago Riding club, 333 East Erie street, was indicated yesterday.

Lieut. Harrison, the artillerymen's number one player, was forced to withdraw from competition as the result of an accident and a subsequent operation. With the exception of a few mild practice skirmishes, he has been out of the game since the inauguration of the present indoor season. Pending Lieut. Harrison's recovery, Lieuts. Arnold Pio and Bob Tepple have alternated in playing the number one position.

In the curtain-raiser, the Riding Club Bees will take on the Centaurs. Bill Carney Jr., 16 year old poloist, will head the home club team.

Where the Heart Is.

The Christmas spirit laid her hand
Upon my heart tonight,
While, far away, the fields of home
Lie 'neath their robes of white.
'Tis there my heart, from worldly strife,
Would seek a brief reprieve;
For home is where the heart returns
In memory, Christmas eve.

STANFORD ENDS DRILL AT HOME FOR BOWL GAME

Moscrip Practices Kicks with Injured Knee.

Palo Alto, Cal., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Stanford's football players wound up practice on their home field today for the Rose Bowl game with Southern Methodist New Year's day.

Head Coach C. E. [Tiny] Thornhill sent his squad through intensive work on defense and offense. Part of the program was devoted to running through Southern Methodist plays.

Thornhill jokingly announced the "Rose Bowl game is officially on." He received his ticket allotment from Graduate Manager Alfred R. Masters. Earlier in the week Masters had notified the coach there were no tickets for him—that he had been overlooked in the rush. Thornhill replied, "No tickets, no game."

Improvement was shown by James [Monk] Moscrip, star end, whose injured knee has been the subject of concern. Moscrip confined his activities to kicks from placement, with which he won three games during the regular season.

The complete squad will practice again in Pasadena Friday.

The list of players being taken to Pasadena, 39 in all, including Frank Alustiza, injured back who will make the trip although unable to play:

Ends—Moscrip, Topping, Schott, Trompas, Stone, Munger, Olcott, Dakan.
Tackles—Reynolds, Beedle, Larsen, Carlson, Grant, Mangan.
Guards—Matthews, Rouble, Adams, Black, Qualls, Callaghan, Cuneo.
Centers—Juller, Bardin, Tsoutsouvas.
Quarter Backs—Paulman, Campbell, Luckett, Hoos.
Half Backs—R. Hamilton, Coffis, vigna, Reisner, Collins, Madlem, G. Hamilton.
Full Backs—Grayson, Todd, Williams.

MUSTANGS LEAVE TOMORROW.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Southern Methodist drilled today on kickoff and punt formations in preparation for its football game New Year's day with Stanford in the Rose Bowl.

By noon most of the players, who live in or near Dallas, had departed for their homes to spend Christmas. All were ordered to be back at the stadium at 4 p. m. tomorrow for their last workout. The squad will leave at noon Thursday for Tucson, Ariz., on its way to California.

The team will stop four hours in Tucson, working out there Friday afternoon at the University of Arizona stadium. They will arrive in Los Angeles Saturday morning, and go direct to Pasadena. They will take light drills in the Rose Bowl Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday.

New York, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Prices were firm in all divisions of the bond market today, but trading was quiet.

Notwithstanding the press of other matter incident to the approaching holiday, traders and investors found time to bid up a number of favorites 1 or 2 or more points and even larger gains were scored by several issues involved in reorganization proceedings concerning which there were specific news developments.

Federal List Strong.

United States governments had only a small turnover, but prices were uniformly higher. Several treasury issues gained 5-32ds point and the 3⅛s of 1944 got up 8-32ds. Guaranteed obligations followed a similar pattern.

News of General American Transportation company's bid for Pressed Steel car sent the latter's 5 per cent bonds to 87, up 9⅝ points, after which they settled back to close at 83⅛ for a net gain of 6⅝ points. Walworth 6½s, with warants, bounded up to 98 for a net gain of 8 points, and the 6 per cent receipts for deposited bonds gained 6¾ points net at 105.

Other Strong Spots.

Other strong spots included New England Telephone 5s, up 1⅛ at 123⅛; Utilities Power and Light 5s, up 1½ at 60; Republic Steel 4½s, up 1⅛ at 111½; Allis Chalmers 4s, up 1⅝ at 115⅝ and American Rolling Mill 4¼s, up 2 at 122½.

Rail bonds were inclined to rest after strenuous workouts in recent days. Baltimore and Ohio 4½s and Nickel Plate 4½s were a shade lower, while higher prices were paid for Delaware and Hudson 4s and Northern Pacific 6s.

Transfers of $11,263,000, par value, compared with $13,343,000 the day before.

United Wall Paper Factories, Inc.

Investors' Guide: Please give me your opinion of United Wallpaper.—W. L. K.

Answer: United Wall Paper Factories, Inc., was established in 1927. It took over the wall paper machinery formerly belonging to Sears, Roebuck & Co. in exchange for $715,000 and 50,000 common shares of its own stock. It has a contract with Sears, expiring in 1939, to supply its demands at cost plus 7½%, not to exceed the Sears' 1928 cost. It also has a contract, expiring in 1940, to supply Montgomery Ward & Co. with a substantial portion of its requirements.

Funded debt, due 1947, totals $1,639,500. Stock capitalization now consists of 7,000 shares of 6 per cent cumulative $100 par preferred and 1,138,090 shares of $2 par common. The second preferred was eliminated under the plan of June 24, 1935, through exchange for new common.

Net sales in the year ended April 30, 1935, totaled $4,100,000, against sales of $3,871,000 and $2,721,000 for the two preceding years. In the year ended April 30, 1935, net income was $61,000, or 51 cents per share of second preferred, against $248,000 for the preceding year. Losses of $235,000 and $610,000 were sustained in the two years before that.

On April 30, 1935, current assets were $2,776,000 and current liabilities were $246,000. Payments of $19.50 per preferred share have cut down arrearages on the preferred to $6 a share. Nothing has ever been paid on the common.

The preferred is speculative and the common highly speculative.

Northwestern Public Service.

Investors' Guide: Kindly give me your opinion of Northwestern Public Service first mortgage 5s, due 1957. A stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed for your reply.—S. H. E.

Answer: Northwestern Public Service company first 5s, due 1957, are a business man's risk. The company is an indirect subsidiary of Middle West corporation. It is an operating company, furnishing utility service, principally electricity, to a population of more than 100,000 in the agricultural region of South Dakota and Nebraska.

In the first nine months of 1935 the company covered its fixed charges 1.59 times, against 1.31 times in the corresponding 1934 period. In 1934 fixed charges were earned 1.37 times, against 1.56 times in 1933, 1.73 times in 1932 and 2.31 times in 1931.

Current position on Dec. 31, 1934, was satisfactory.

GEN. HOUSEHOLD SUBMITS PLAN OF REORGANIZATION

RFC Will Supply Funds for New Company.

The General Household Utilities corporation, headed by William C. Grunow, yesterday submitted a plan for reorganization, under section 77B of the bankruptcy act, to Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Under terms of the plan, a new company will be organized with funds supplied by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Contingent on approval of the court, the government agency has agreed to advance $600,000 to the new company. As security for the loan the company will turn over $600,000 of first mortgage notes to the RFC.

RFC to Furnish Working Capital.

The government agency has further agreed, the plan set forth, to provide a revolving fund of $400,000 for working capital. The plan also provides that the RFC will name the executive vice president of the new company.

The present company obtained a substantial advance from the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago under the congressional authority for "direct loans to industry."

William C. Grunow will be retained as president of the company, according to present plans.

Hearing Set for Jan. 3.

Unsecured creditors of the company would receive, under the plan, $2,000,000 par value of 5 per cent preference stock. Stockholders would receive 500,000 shares of new no par common stock.

The plan was filed by James G. Condon, attorney for the company. Judge Sullivan referred the plan to Special Master in Chancery Charles A. McDonald. A hearing on confirmation of the plan was set for Jan. 3.

BORG-WARNER'S 5⅛ RISE FEATURES CHICAGO STOCKS

Forsaking the traditional "do nothing" attitude of pre-holiday trade, Chicago stocks staged a rally yesterday that was spirited, if selective. Turnover was rather light, however, at 58,000 shares, as 42 issues advanced, 30 declined, and 28 were unchanged.

Only three or four losses of as much as a point were recorded, while gains ran up to the 5⅛ peak accomplished by Borg-Warner, which led an otherwise quiet but steady motor group. Borg struck a new high for the year of 68¼ in a 4,500 share turnover, the day's largest.

Seven other new tops were made, McWilliams Dredging jumping 4 points and Chicago Yellow Cab 3, the latter in a sudden splurge of activity. Metropolitan Industries advanced 1. Fractional gains moved Berghoff, Adams Royalty, Horder's, and Peabody Coal B into new high ground, though the Berghoff and Peabody rises were sharp in proportion to the price of the stocks.

STOCKS ENTER YULE SPIRIT, RALLY SMARTLY

Several Groups Join Rise Near Close.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 24. — Yuletide brought a nice little rise in the stock market today. There was enough buying to keep the sunny side of the market up early in the day, and a handful of motors, steels, tobaccos, and specialties put on a bullish holiday performance toward the close, aiding the market to gains of fractions to 3 or more points.

Chrysler and Douglas aircraft were leaders, each rising to five year highs. The former closed up ¾ point and the latter had a gain of 3⅜. General motors gained a point and Bethlehem Steel finished 1⅞ points higher.

Observers credited a late hoist in the tobacco issues to holiday enthusiasm on turnover of cigarets and tobacco products. Liggett & Myers B was up 3 points, American Tobacco B 1⅛, and U. S. Tobacco had a gain of 2¼.

Chrysler Splitup Rumored.

Just to put a little Christmas spirit into the depleted boardrooms, the rumor went around that Chrysler directors were preparing to split the stock as a holiday greeting and the effect was the late flurry in the motor issues.

Some shifting occurred in individual stocks, but with the exception of the liquors and one or two other minor groups there was nothing to suggest organized movement. In the case of the alcohols there was enough selling to raise the question of a price policy for the near future. National Distillers gave up a fraction, while Schenley and Distillers-Seagrams lost a point or so each. Meanwhile Crown Cork advanced 2 points and Owens Illinois Glass jumped 4 points, but later surrendered about half its newly won ground.

All this suggested to tape watchers and other interested observers a possible cut in price and a consequent increase in consumption.

Food Shares Move Higher.

Food shares, for a change, were active and higher. Oils kept their favored position and several extended their gains. Metals had an indifferent time. Howe Sound lost more than 2 points. U. S. Smelting sank a point. Anaconda came up a little.

The mail order issues looked a little better. The carriers held up well but no serious attempt was made to push them along, although Northern Pacific rose more than a point.

Overnight news appeared to have little effect on the list, which gave evidence of an improved technical position. It was apparent that the short interest in numerous issues, notably Chrysler, American Can, and General Motors, was showing uneasiness. In fact, a substantial part of the demand represented covering for professional bear account.

Stocks Bought for Gifts.

Brokers guessed that more stocks were bought in the last week to be used as Christmas gifts than were sold to provide funds for the necessities of life. Sales to establish tax losses also seem to have been considerably exceeded by long range investment buying. Those who might ordinarily have shortened stock market sail until a better view could be obtained of next year's business seldom have been more reluctant to do so, it was said.

The chief reason was the heavy tax burden, and although taxes against 1936 profits may be larger, the common belief is that the next congress will be slow to increase tax rates. After that many hope the affair will be out of the hands of the present ruling party.

Dealings today fell considerably short of yesterday's total, running to only about 1,700,000 shares.

La Salle Street Drops Care on Christmas Eve

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Christmas eve in the financial and business districts of Chicago was the merriest and most carefree in many years.

Parties were general in the offices of the big buildings which line La Salle street. Messengers scurried about delivering boxes of cigars and merchandise made legal by the repeal of prohibition, reviving a custom of exchanging gifts that had languished during the depression days. Even the staid banks decorated their quarters with holiday wreaths and Christmas trees.

To top it all in the financial district, the stock market unexpectedly burst into activity just before the close of trading, which sent volume of transactions and prices of securities sharply upward.

Stocks Rise; That's Perfect.

"The way the market acted when we didn't expect it made Christmas perfect for us," one broker remarked. Jess Halsted, secretary of the Chicago Stock exchange, said that brokers danced in glee over the turn of business as they left the trading floor.

If there was any trend noticeable in an economic way in the financial district it was that "of going home early." The busiest persons, aside from those who had to perform duties that wouldn't hold over, were the switchboard operators in the offices as greetings were passed back and forth.

"Just try to get anything done," remarked Robert Work, head of the Chicago office of a large investment house. "Pick up a telephone on any of the circuits connecting six or seven investment houses and all anyone will say to you is 'Merry Christmas.'"

New Yorkers Delay Parties.

In the office of another firm which has its headquarters in New York there were some sighs over the fact that the "boys" in the east had a start in the matter of celebrating and consequently were slow in putting their inter-office reports on the wire. "We wish they'd hurry was the complaint, "we want to put on a party of our own."

The Board of Trade was the scene of some Christmas spirit when a great heap of order blanks was piled up at one end of the trading floor and brokers and clerks were carried across the room and dropped in the pile. The victims were showered with the paper to signify the hope of their friends that they will be "buried in orders" next year.

No Strangers; All Friends.

In the elevators, strangers wished each other Merry Christmas. A white whiskered broker turned to his fellow passengers and remarked: "This is a great Christmas and I hope I am here for the next. Next week I'll have been running around this Board of Trade for 64 years. And if I could have one wish I'd wish I could be forty years old again."

It was difficult to find people in the banks. Officials were walking around wishing each other and their customers good luck. At one bank customers had unexpected windfalls when notices were sent out explaining that service charges were being made on some accounts. Following receipts of the letters, a considerable number of persons came into the bank to claim accounts they had forgotten.

POWER CONCERNS PROMISE FIGHT ON "LITTLE TVA"

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 24.—(AP)—A court fight by power companies against the $37,500,000 Santee-Cooper power and navigation project was presaged today at a public hearing on the purchase of the site by the South Carolina state authority from private interests.

Roach Stewart, counsel for the Duke Power company of Charlotte, N. C., served notice of intended litigation at the hearing less than 24 hours after the Carolina Power and Light company of Raleigh, N. C., began injunction proceedings in Federal District court.

Stewart presented the advisory board of the authority with formal notice that the Duke company would seek an injunction, if necessary, on grounds that the project, "particularly its construction with federal funds, is unauthorized and illegal."

Federal Judge J. Lyles Glenn ordered the authority last night to show cause before him Jan. 6 why it should not be enjoined from building the "little TVA" project as the Raleigh company asked.

Price Falls Cent in New York, London.

The price of bar silver fell below the level of 50 cents an ounce in New York yesterday for the first time in 15 months. Handy and Harmon, bullion brokers, posted a price of 49¾ cents for the metal, or 1 cent below the preceding day's price.

In London the price also fell a cent an ounce. A price of 20⅛ pence, equivalent to 46.82 cents, was fixed for bar silver, the lowest since October, 1934. Brokers fixed no price for silver for forward delivery in London. Such operations have been suspended indefinitely because of the uncertainty over the purchasing policy of the United States treasury.

Further Loss to Treasury.

Each decline of a cent an ounce in silver means a shrinkage of $7,610,000 in the market value of the metal which the treasury has acquired under its purchase program in the last two years.

The cessation of dealings in silver for future delivery in London is proving somewhat embarrassing to bankers and other financial institutions, dispatches indicated. It was suggested that a banking pool may soon be formed to carry forward contracts. Such a step would prove an accommodation for far eastern banks which sold metal for forward delivery pending shipment to London.

The market crisis brought about by the withdrawal of buying support by the American government is regarded in some quarters as a potential source of acute difficulty.

Montreal Silver Market Quiet.

Trading in the Montreal futures market yesterday was quiet. Prices closed 75-100 of a cent higher in a light turnover. The January future closed at 46.20 cents an ounce, or below the level of current prices in New York and London.

The real cause of the slump of nearly 30 per cent in silver in the last two weeks is the disgorging by far eastern holders of their big hoards of the metal. The price which the American treasury was willing to pay until recently brought this metal out of hiding and flooded the market at a time when treasury officials decided to reduce their purchases.

How large these far eastern hoards are is a matter of conjecture but estimates range as high as eight billion ounces. In comparison the 761,000,000 ounces which the treasury has acquired over the last two years is dwarfed.

Treasury's Plans Upset.

When the treasury began its purchases the sponsors of the program believed there would be little difficulty in pegging the price at any level desired. Annual world silver production is only 200,000,000 ounces and the floating market supply at the time the program was begun was only about 100,000,000 ounces.

Unforeseen, however, was the desertion of the silver standard by China and the release of the big far eastern supply into the world market.

CONTINENTAL BANK SHARES JUMP 9 POINTS

Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company stock spurted another $9 a share yesterday on reports that earnings for 1935 will show a gain from last year. It was quoted at 125½ bid and 127½ asked. Other loop bank stocks were steady. First National closed at 217 bid, 222 asked. Among smaller banks, Mercantile Trust shot forward to 120 bid, 130 asked, from 105 bid, 120 asked. Merchandise Bank and Trust company shares were bid up 7 points to 155 bid, 165 asked.

Gen. American Seeks Control of Steel Car Co.

The General American Transportation company has submitted a bid for control of Pressed Steel Car company through the advance of $1,500,000 to effect a reorganization of the latter, it became known yesterday. A group of common and preferred stock holders immediately entered opposition to the proposal in the Pittsburgh Federal District, where the Pressed Steel reorganization is pending.

Under the plan, General American Transportation would receive 300,000 shares of new $5 par 5 per cent prior preferred cumulative stock, convertible share for share into common stock. In addition, it would receive 30,000 new common shares for its investment.

Each Share to Have One Vote.

Each common or preferred share would be entitled to one vote, thus giving General American a majority of strength, with 330,000 votes to 320,426 for all others.

In addition to the prior preferred, there would be 81,610 second preferred and 238,816 common shares.

Kuhn Loeb & Co. would act as reorganization managers under the plan as now written.

Present preferred holders would receive one share of new common and 6-10 of a share of new $50 par 5 per cent second preferred. This second preferred would be convertible at the rate of one share for each three shares of new common, but could cast only one vote for the unit during the first three years.

Present common stockholders would receive ¼ of a new share for each present share.

Expense Accounts Attacked.

The stockholders objected to allowance of expense accounts as well as to the proposed plan of reorganization. The expense accounts submitted by Attorneys George D. Wick and Frank M. Hoffstat, receivers, were assailed because Wick approved vouchers for candy, flowers, and valet service after they were submitted by Walter Bonitz of New York. Wick and Bonitz are acting as trustees of the company, pending reorganization.

In defending the expense accounts, Wick said that the company's losses have been cut from $100,000 to $25,000 a month under the receivership period.

Lanum Named to Direct Trade Census in Chicago

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The commerce department today announced the appointment of Harold B. Lanum as a district supervisor in the fourth district, Chicago, for the manufacturers and business censuses. Charles D. Johnson was named a supervisor for the Peoria district.

Park District's 111 Million Bond Plan Comes Up Monday

The 111 million dollar funding and refunding bond plan of the Chicago Park district will be presented at a meeting of commissioners on Monday, Robert J. Dunham, president, announced yesterday. At the same meeting the board will consider the 1936 appropriations bill.

Dunham said that the appropriations bill must be passed before the end of the year, and computation of bond service requirements is dependent on passage of a definite refunding plan. The plan will provide for consolidation of the bonded debts of the 22 superseded park districts and elimination of defaults on principal and interest.

Will Retire Past Due Claims.

The refunding plan contemplates the exchange of unmatured bonds of approximately 91 million dollars and the retirement of claims on 8 million dollars past due principal and interest. In addition the district expects to raise 6 million dollars through the sale of new bonds to replace money borrowed from special funds of the superseded districts and to fund floating debt. Another issue of 6 million dollars would be sold to the public works administration to provide funds to meet expenses of works progress administration projects, Dunham said.

The complete financing program will bring the total bonded debt of the district to within 2 million dollars of the 113 million limit set by the state legislature.

Dunham indicated that while final plans for the new bond program are not complete, it is planned to offer new twenty year callable bonds in exchange for the present unmatured obligations on a par for par and rate for rate basis. The 8 million dollar issue to retire defaulted obligations will be either sold for cash or exchanged for past due claims, depending on which will be most advantageous for the district, he added.

All Bonds In Default.

"When the refunding operation is complete," he said, "the park district will be on its feet again financially. At present there is not a single bond of the superseded park districts which is not in default as to interest."

The 6 million dollar issue which would be sold to the PWA ultimately would be resold by that agency to the RFC, which will have the authority to dispose of them to the public at a premium of one-half of 1 per cent. The agreement with the RFC includes a provision for repurchase of the bonds by the park district, Dunham said, but as the district is not empowered to buy its own bonds on the market, the option will be reassigned by the district. Bids will be taken on the reassignment when the other new bonds are offered for sale, he said.

POWER OUTPUT RISES TO 2 BILLION KILOWATT HOURS FOR FIRST TIME

A national power output of 2,002,005,000 kilowatt hours was recorded last week, the first time in history that the nation's total rose to the 2 billion mark, the Edison Electric Institute announced yesterday.

This was the eighth time in the last nine weeks that a new all time record was established, the Thanksgiving week being the exception.

Last week's total represented a seasonal increase of 0.9 per cent over the 1,983,431,000 kilowatt hours of the preceding week and 12 per cent over the corresponding week of last year, when the total was 1,787,936,000 kilowatt hours. In the preceding week there was a gain of 12.2 per cent over 1934.

All major geographical sections of the country joined in setting the new record. Gains over last year compared with increases in the preceding week over 1934 were: Rocky mountain, 17.5 per cent, against 16.2 per cent; central industrial, 14.2 per cent, against 14.8 per cent; Pacific coast, 14.1 per cent, against 12.1 per cent; southern states, 11.3 per cent, against 14.2 per cent; west central, 9.4 per cent, against 10.5 per cent; New England, 9.3 per cent, against 10.0 per cent, and the middle Atlantic states, 8.8 per cent, against 7.9 per cent.

ESTIMATE TAXES TAKE FIFTH OF NATION'S INCOME

Taxes collected in the United States now represent about 20 per cent of the national income, compared with 10 to 12 per cent in the years before the depression, according to an estimate made yesterday by the National Industrial Conference board.

In the last few years the rates for many old taxes were increased and other taxes—state sales taxes, processing taxes, excess profits taxes, a capital stock tax and other federal miscellaneous internal revenue taxes—were adopted or revived. The ultimate effect of these new taxes must be to impose additional burdens on business and individual incomes, the board said.

The added burdens were imposed at a time when business and individual incomes were at a subnormal level. Consequently, the board said, the drop in tax collections from $10,300,000,000 in 1930 to $9,500,000,000 in 1934 does not reflect a reduction in the tax burden. The burden has become greater, whether measured in terms of national income or any other standard, the board declared.

SEC WILL URGE LIMITING DEALS OF STOCK BROKER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—(AP)—A program designed eventually to limit the trading functions of stock exchange members was being worked out by the Securities and Exchange commission today for submission to congress on Jan. 3, 1936. The commission thus far has taken no definite action and officials said it would have to resolve the conflicting views of its experts as to how and when the action might be taken.

Specifically the plan would involve the problem of segregation of broker-dealer functions. This means, in a general way, the limiting of the extent to which the same person may act both as a broker in buying and selling securities for the public and as a dealer in trading for his private profit.

Officials said there appeared little likelihood the commission would make drastic suggestions to separate these functions at once, but rather would seek a scheme to be worked out slowly.

Big Amoskeag Company Files to Reorganize

Boston, Mass., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The giant Amoskeag Manufacturing company, whose thousands of cotton spindles at Manchester, N. H., have spun more than $50,000,000 in profits in nearly thirty years, declared itself insolvent today and sought permission to reorganize.

The mill, one of the largest in the world, ascribed its condition to a burdensome capital structure, the debt service of which has so impaired its credit that operations no longer can be carried on profitably.

The alternative to reorganization under section 77B of the federal bankruptcy act, said the company, is default on its bonds and forced liquidation.

Mile-Long Mill Front Closed.

The mile-long string of brick mill buildings fronting the Merrimack river in Manchester were shut down June 30 last after the management had reported its operations for the past five and a half years, with the exception of 1933, ended in a deficit.

Since then, Manchester, where Amoskeag is the largest industry, and the state of New Hampshire, also interested in the relief and employment aspects of the mill closing, have been busy diagnosing the company's ills and prescribing treatment.

Today's step was foreshadowed six weeks ago by a special committee appointed to investigate the situation by Gov. H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, into whose hands Frederic C. Dumaine, operating head and principal owner, personally placed the problem.

$800,000 Interest Annually.

The committee reported that the annual 6 per cent service of approximately $800,000 on $11,379,000 in bonds was too high and recommended some sacrifice by the bondholders in order that the plant might reopen.

Since then the city of Manchester, which, over the mill's protest, collected $416,000 in taxes last year from the company, said it would reduce future taxes an unspecified amount if the mills were open when assessment was levied.

Today, however, simultaneously with its petition for permission to reorganize, Amoskeag sought by court action in Manchester to compel the city to reduce a valuation assessment of $13,000,000 to $8,000,000, and the $416,000 tax bill to $256,000.

BEGIN FIVE DAY CHICAGO-COAST TRUCK SERVICE

Five tractor and trailer combinations of the Keeshin Transcontinental Freight Line, Inc., arrived in Chicago last night with 80,000 pounds of merchandise out 113 hours from Los Angeles. The fleet departed for New York after a short stop. It is due to arrive there in less than seven days from the California city.

"It is an experimental run to demonstrate that the flexibility of truck transportation can be extended to coast-to-coast shipping," said John L. Keeshin, president of the company. "The experiment, as far as the Los Angeles-Chicago run is concerned, has been a success. The fleet obeyed all traffic and truck regulations in all of the states along the route. All taxes were paid.

The drivers worked in six hour shifts. Relief men slept in a truck with berths that accompanied the freighters.

Traux-Traer Fights Guffey Coal Law Tax

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday set Jan. 3 for a hearing on the motion of the Truax-Traer company for an injunction restraining federal officials from enforcing provisions of the Guffey coal act. The company, which operates coal mines in Fulton and Jackson counties, alleged in its petition that if compelled to comply with the act, it would be forced into bankruptcy.

The action brought in federal court here is similar to suits pending in other districts. Last week a group of Illinois companies obtained a federal court injunction in Springfield, Ill., restraining collection of the 15 per cent levy on gross sales provided in the act.

Seeks Permanent Relief.

The immediate objective of the Truax-Traer company's suit is to restrain Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, from collecting $7,402 which the company would be obligated to pay early next month.

The company also invokes the court's jurisdiction to determine constitutionality of the act, and seeks a permanent restraining order against its enforcement. A case attacking validity of the act is now pending before the United States Supreme court.

The Truax-Traer company asserted in its petition that the "confiscatory provisions" of the law block the possibility of putting the company on a profitable basis. Since its organization in 1928, the company has incurred a net loss of $844,976 on gross sales of $5,576,000, the bill sets forth. If the company had been required to pay the 15 per cent levy provided under the Guffey act, this loss would have amounted to $1,681,000.

Future Linked to Tax.

The company has a fair prospect of future profits if the tax is removed, its petition recites. If not repealed, the company faces bankruptcy, it was said.

Attorney Ralph M. Shaw, who filed the petition, characterized the law as "regulation by coercion." The 15 per cent levy, he said, is a penalty and not a tax within the powers of congress to impose.

The Guffey act was passed by the last congress after President Roosevelt recommended that congressmen disregard any doubts as to the bill's constitutionality "however reasonable." It sets up a little NRA in the bituminous coal industry, permitting operators to coöperate in fixing wages and prices.

COURT IS ASKED TO BAR EXCESS COMPANY TAX

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Injunction proceedings were brought in the District court today against the Minnesota tax commission and Hennepin county officials by the Northern States Power company, the Cream of Wheat corporation and the W. H. Barber company to bar collection of corporate excess taxes totaling $5,842,000 for 1933 and 1934.

Members of the tax commission were summoned to show cause in the Hennepin county District court on Dec. 28 why the temporary restraining order should not be made permanent in an injunction issued. The petitions of the corporations assert valuations fixed by the tax commission are grossly excessive and that the law under which the county auditor was ordered to make collection is invalid.

The corporate excess tax is levied on "intangibles," such as franchises supposedly not taxed otherwise. The companies seeking the injunction, however, contend the tax, one of the oldest in the state code and never enforced, was repealed by subsequent legislation.

GULF OIL PLANS TO CONSOLIDATE SEVERAL UNITS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The Sun Telegraph says the Gulf Oil corporation plans to consolidate several of its subsidiaries under a reorganization plan. The reorganization is described as entirely internal and without effect on any securities in the hands of the public.

The newspaper says that in order to carry out the plan a certificate of increase in capital stock was filed today with the Delaware corporation department by the Gulf Refining company, a subsidiary. The capitalization of the subsidiary is to be increased from $1,000,000 to $50,000,000.

FLEMING URGES MORATORIUM ON BANKING LAWS

Explains Step to Aid Private Lending.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—(AP)—A moratorium in banking legislation was proposed today by Robert V. Fleming, president of the American Bankers' association, as he explained his campaign to transfer government lending to private agencies.

"We have a pretty good law now," Fleming said in an interview, "and common sense seems to dictate that it be let alone, except possibly for such minor revisions as might become necessary."

Administration sources have indicated that if any banking legislation is introduced in the coming session of congress, it will be of a minor nature.

Drive to Reach Every Town.

Fleming said that the A. B. A. drive to have private banks reassume lending functions taken over by the government as emergency measures will be extended into counties and towns after four regional conferences of banking leaders.

Eventually, he added, the program contemplates conferences among bankers of a single city, with emphasis placed upon better ways of serving the public and educating it to banking problems.

Of particular importance, he said, would be an effort to encourage the bankers themselves to examine every phase of a would-be borrower's proposition, to see if those originally unsatisfactory may not be so altered as to meet the restrictions of good banking.

Wants Stand Explained.

"The banking business is the most highly regulated in the country," Fleming asserted, referring to the accumulation of state and federal laws, "and sometimes it is pretty hard for a customer to understand why the bank must refuse his application for a loan.

"There should be an effort to make such changes in a customer's proposals as would fit them into the policy of the bank, and that failing there should be an attempt to explain clearly why that is the case."

Referring again to his campaign to "have the banks step in now where the government had to step in a few years ago," Fleming was anxious to make it clear that there were certain fields of government lending from which commercial banks are barred.

The railroad loans of the RFC he thought a case in point. Such loans consist in actuality of a purchase of bonds or of stock. Since 1933, Fleming said, the commercial banks have been prohibited by law from engaging in such transactions.

GOLD CURRENCY RATES IMPROVE AGAINST DOLLAR

New York, Dec. 24.—[Special.]—Gold currencies improved their position slightly against the dollar yesterday in quiet pre-holiday trading. Other foreign moneys were steady to moderately higher.

French francs gained ¼ point to close at 6.59 cents but still were at a level at which it is profitable to ship gold from France but only tentative arrangements to ship the metal were made in view of the shortage of ships sailing this week. The rise in the franc caused a reduction in dollar values to $1.0066 from $1.0070 yesterday.

Guilders rose 2 points to 67.78 cents and Swiss francs advanced 1 point to 32.46 cents. The pound sterling improved ¼ cent to $4.93 and German marks were 1 point higher at 40.20 cents. Hongkong dollars, which yesterday dropped to a new low for the year, improved 10 points to 32.10 cents.

Engagements of $3,280,000 in gold abroad for shipment here were reported at the New York Federal Reserve bank. Of this amount $2,500,000 was taken in England and $780,000 in India. These engagements brought the total of gold taken abroad for shipment here since Sept. 9 to $831,000,000, of which $21,600,000 has been received to date.

Isn't the wealth you have acquired entitled to as competent and continuous management as the business that produced it? Doesn't it deserve more than spasmodic attention, more than casual scraps of time?

Then why not let us make an efficient, scientific, full-time job of it — give it the benefit of independent, thorough research, the continuous attention of specialists, the unbiased judgment of experienced counsellors?

Sharing the expense with a large group of other substantial investors makes the cost to any one account quite nominal in comparison with results. Inquiries invited from those with funds of $100,000 or more.

DIVIDEND FLOW INCREASES AS HOLIDAY NEARS

Many Companies Declare Back Payments.

An increased number of companies entered the favorable dividend list yesterday, doing their part toward a happy Christmas for their stockholders. Many payments on arrearages were voted during the day, but initial declarations, extras, increases and stock dividends were also represented.

Among the payments on accumulations was that of $1 a share on the preferred stock of the Crane company, which is cumulative at the rate of $7 a year. After payment on Jan. 25 of yesterday's declaration arrears will amount to $22.25 a share. A dividend of $1 was also made on Oct. 25.

Evanston Bank Begins Dividends.

Another action of particular local interest was taken by the First National Bank of Evanston, which declared an initial dividend of $3 per common share. The bank was organized on June 21, 1933.

Accumulation disbursements included $6.25 a share on the $6.50 preferred stock of the Hat Corporation of America, which will reduce arrears on the stock to $6 a share. The company reported the best profit for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, since 1928. Net income amounted to $779,290 after depreciation and taxes, compared with $618,051 in the preceding fiscal year.

New York, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The United States Steel corporation announced today that H. L. Austin, who for several years has been controler, will become an assistant to Edward R. Stettinius when he becomes chairman of the finance committee on Jan. 1.

Stettinius, whose elevation to chairman of the finance committee of the 2 billion dollar corporation at the age of 35 was announced recently, will have in Austin as an assistant a man who has served United States Steel or its subsidiary companies for the last thirty-eight years.

Austin has been controler since 1931 and was for some years previously assistant controler. He will be succeeded as controler by A. W. Vogt, who is now senior assistant controler.

INTEREST IN COTTON LAGS; PRICES UNEVEN AT CLOSE

Little interest was taken in cotton markets yesterday with prices somewhat easier early in sympathy with lower cables from Liverpool. Trading in the December delivery ceased at noon here without developments, although the current delivery at New York dropped 50 cents per bale on scattered liquidation.

Closing prices on the active deliveries in Chicago were 3 points lower to 3 points higher and other markets were 3 points lower to 4 points higher. Tomorrow will be first notice day of tenders on January contracts. Owing to the high basis for spot cotton as compared with futures, there has been some buying of nearby futures against sales of the July and October to change over hedges.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 5 points lower with New Orleans and Houston at 11.75 cents, Galveston 11.70 cents, and New York at 12 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound:

EGGS ARE FIRM TO LOWER; BUTTER FUTURES UNSTEADY

Egg futures showed moderate strength in early trading yesterday, but selling increased later and the close on the Chicago Mercantile exchange found prices unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. December, at 17⅞ cents per dozen, was equal to the lowest level of the year.

Interest in butter was light with final trades ¼ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher. December closed at 32½ cents per pound or within ⅛ cent of the highest level of the season. Sales of butter were 48 cars and eggs 132 cars. Deliveries on December contracts were 2 cars of eggs and 12 cars of butter. Prices:

U. S. CHALLENGES UTILITIES' RIGHT TO ATTACK LAW

Says Unregistered Firms Have No Court Standing.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The legal right of public utilities which declined to register under the holding company act, to attack other phases of the legislation, was challenged today by the government.

In a brief filed in the District of Columbia Supreme court the justice department contended that unregistered companies have no standing in court to question the validity of provisions providing for dissolution of unnecessary holding companies.

The government asked the court to withhold action on requests of seven companies for injunctions restraining enforcement of the act until its constitutionality is determined by the United States Supreme court in a case brought by the Securities and Exchange commission against the Electric Bond and Share company.

Big Concerns Won't Register.

As the first step toward administration of the act, utility holding companies were required to register with the SEC by Dec. 1. Most of the major concerns declined to do so on the ground that this might jeopardize their legal status in attacking the controverted law.

Today's brief maintained that the provision for registration is "separable" from the remainder of the act—that is, it could be found invalid without invalidating the entire law. The government argued that the act "is a code of laws, each of which may stand or fall alone irrespective of the validity or invalidity of others." It further contended that until the seven companies are registered, they have no legal right to claim imminence of damage under other provisions.

Asserts One Case Is Decisive.

The brief explained that in the Electric Bond and Share case, that company, if the court permits, may attempt to argue that registration is inseparable from the remainder of the act and thus bring before the court other provisions.

"The case will raise and settle all the fundamental questions which can be raised and settled in the suits now before this court," the brief added, contending that each of five major Electric Bond and Share subsidiaries "is comparable in size to the largest of the systems of the plaintifs in cases before this court."

The seven companies are North American company, American Water Works and Electric company, United Light and Power company, United Light and Railway company, Continental Gas and Electric corporation, American Light and Traction company, and Tennessee Electric Power company.

2 CLOSED BANKS MAKE REFUNDS TO DEPOSITORS

More Companies to Pay Employe Bonuses.

Christmas payments to depositors of two more closed Cook county banks were announced yesterday by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett as corporations continued to make holiday profit sharing distributions among employés.

The Park Ridge State bank mailed checks for $77,500, or 15 per cent, for the fifth return since closing, making a total repayment of 45 per cent. In addition, $187,185 in preferred claims and $117,465 in old bills have been paid.

The Pinkert State bank of Melrose Park sent out checks for $15,479, the first 5 per cent return since the bank closed. It also has paid $13,327 preferred claims and $94,317 on old bills. With these payments, returns this week to depositors of closed state banks amount to $2,240,000.

Waived Deposits Released.

Barrett also announced release of $37,463 in funds of depositors who waived part of their claims to enable banks to reopen after the 1933 moratorium. These are: State Bank of Annawan, 10 per cent, $5,661; First State Bank of Beardstown, 5 per cent, $22,276; Truitt-Matthews Banking company of Chillicothe, 10 per cent, $7,418; First and Traders State bank of Malden, 10 per cent, $2,108.

The International Business Machines corporation announced additional compensation for all employés on an hourly wage basis in its plants at Endicott and Rochester, N. Y., Washington, D. C., and Toronto. Those with service of a year or more will receive one week's extra pay, while a half week's pay will go to those with 6 months to a year's service.

Bank Gives Salary Bonuses.

Banco di Napoli, 906 South Halsted street, yesterday announced distribution of a bonus of one month's salary to all employés, including officers.

The 115 former employés of the East St. Louis Street Railway company, who were unable to get jobs after their concern went out of business a month ago, received announcement that they will be paid $65,000 in monthly instalments. The other 186 employés have found jobs.

SO. PACIFIC ROAD TERMED HELPFUL TO 'COTTON BELT'

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 24.—(AP)—F. W. Green, a vice president of the St. Louis Southwestern [Cotton Belt] railroad, testified before United States District Judge C. B. Davis today that control of the railroad by the Southern Pacific had been "beneficial" and had increased its volume of trafic.

His testimony was in contradiction of the contention of counsel for three bondholders that the Southern Pacific, owners of 87 per cent of the Cotton Belt stock, "had deliberately failed to influence trafic to the Cotton Belt."

The bondholders, headed by Walter E. Meyer of New York, a former Cotton Belt director, were resisting the railroad's petition for reorganization under the amended bankruptcy law on the ground that the Southern Pacific could remove the necessity for it.

The railroads counsel objected constantly to the inquiry regarding trafic volume and in most cases were sustained by Judge Davis. At one point during the questioning, A. H. Kiskaddon, chief Cotton Belt counsel, said, "The only issue here is whether the road is broke or not. How it may have become broke has nothing to do with it."

Canada Newsprint Firms Seek Lower Power Rates

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Que., Dec. 24.—Newsprint companies are endeavoring to obtain lower power rates so that they may produce newsprint at slightly lower prices and thus offset Finnish and Danish competition in the South American markets. At present Canada sells only 60,000 tons of newsprint to South America each year, owing to the fact that price levels there are the lowest in the world.

Chicago Board of Trade Dues Unchanged at $250

Myers, vice president and general manager of the Rodney Milling company, Kansas City, Mo., and Robert Forster Meffert, New York City, an employé of Thomson & McKinnon, were elected to membership.

15 Rail Incomes Jump 65%; Union Pacific's Gain is 125%

Several railroads yesterday reported sharply rising earnings during November and continued heavy trafic.

The first fifteen railroads to report net operating income for November show a combined figure of $17,265,739, compared with $10,455,077 in the corresponding month of 1934, a 65 per cent increase.

Outstanding among the day's earnings reports were the 125 per cent increase in net operating income of the Union Pacific, a six year high in the Norfolk & Western's net income after charges for that month, the best showing by the St. Louis Southwestern [Cotton Belt] during November since 1928 and the highest November net operating income in three years for the Missouri Pacific.

The Union Pacific's net operating income at $2,539,467 compared with only $1,128,101 in the 1934 month. A net income of $3,004,809 for the Norfolk & Western, against $2,035,681 a year ago, brought earnings for the first eleven months to $15.61 a common share, against $12.52 in the 1934 period.

The Cotton Belt had a net income of $338 in November, against a net loss of $116,833 a year ago, and the Missouri-Kansas-Texas lines showed a net profit of $151,816 for the month, compared with a deficit of $324,550 in November, 1934. Missouri Pacific net operating income of $608,982 compared with $163,116 a year ago.

Freight trafic reports for last week show a seasonal decline from the preceding week, but an increased margin over 1934. Carloading reports issued yesterday were:

HOGS AND FRESH PORK ADVANCE IN LIVELY TRADE

Hogs and fresh pork yesterday advanced sharply in one of the liveliest pre-holiday markets in recent years. Top 160 pound light hogs soared to $12.40, processing tax included, the highest sale since Oct. 23 and a new December peak for the last 16 years. Only three years on record have had higher December hog prices.

Yesterday's top showed a rise of 30 cents for the day and was 60 cents above the close of last week. Stock under 250 pounds rose 25 to 50 cents, with the most action and the sharpest advances in the light new crop hogs below 200 pounds.

Heavier hogs advanced 10 to 25 cents, with the least upturn in the big "lard hogs" and sows weighing more than 350 pounds. Eastern demand for new crop hogs was the broadest of the season.

Lambs yesterday retained the sharp advances scored on Monday, numerous consignments of both native and fed western stock bringing the $11.90 top, with most of the good fat stock at $11.50 to $11.90. These prices equaled the highest marks since June, 1930, and were 75 cents to $1 above early last week.

The pre-holiday trade for cattle was slightly erratic, some kinds selling weak to 25 cents lower while stronger prices were paid for others.

INLAND CLOSES 9 FURNACES TO MAKE REPAIRS

After repeated delays resulting from the press of business the Inland Steel company last night took off nine open harth furnaces to allow for repairs and readjustment of operations in its finishing department, officials of the company announced yesterday. The company had planned the repairs for considerable time, but business has been so heavy the furnaces could not be spared. It will take about three weeks to complete the work.

The company will have 14 of its 27 open harth furnaces active as compared with 23 at the beginning of this week. Its ingot production rate will drop accordingly to between 50 and 60 per cent from its present rate of approximately 85 per cent.

The company's finishing rate will not drop off quite so sharply, as it had built up moderate stocks of semi-finished steel.

PREDICTS BANKS WILL PASS ALONG COSTS OF FDIC

J. M. Nichols, president of the First National bank of Englewood, predicted yesterday that all banks will pass on the cost of federal deposit insurance to their customers, either in additional service charges or by a special deduction as at his bank.

Following his return Monday from a vacation in Florida, the Englewood anti-New Deal banker said he has received almost no comment, much less complaint, over his charging deposit insurance against each account on Dec. 15. He said the loss of three accounts might be attributable to the policy.

Nichols said he has received numerous inquiries as to the method used by the First National of Englewood in computing the charges. Many of the inquiries have been from distant points in the country.

SURVEY PINS BUILDING BOOM PROSPECTS TO DELAYED WEDDINGS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—(AP)—A home loan bank board study said today that "delayed" weddings of couples whose marriages were blocked by the depression will be a major factor in any building boom.

The study, prepared for publication in the board's official magazine, said the marriage rate "is acutely sensitive to the ups and downs of general business activity."

Citing a sharp drop in marriages from 1929 to 1932, it added this "was undoubtedly a major influence in reducing the demand for homes during that period.

"But the depression only postpones marriages; it does not permanently eliminate them. For the most part the couples who were forced to forego marriage in bad years will get married in succeeding good years.

"When these delayed marriages take place they will greatly increase the demand for new homes."

In a broad discussion of 1936 building prospects the study reported that if the 1935 percentage of gain is realized next year more than 200,000 homes will be built.

11 FIRMS NAMED AS RESTRICTING COPPER TRADE

Washington, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Eleven zinc and copper plate manufacturers were charged by the federal trade commission today with conspiracy to restrict competition in their sales to newspapers and photo engravers.

The commission, alleging that the practices "tend" to "enhance the prices of such materials" and "create a monopoly," named these companies in the complaint:

Edes Manufacturing company, Plymouth, Mass.; American Steel and Copper plate company, Jersey City, N. J.; New York Steel and Copper Plate company, Brooklyn; Rolled Plate Metal company, Brooklyn; National Steel and Copper Plate company, Chicago; Harold M. Pitman company, Cicero, Ill.; Pacific Steel and Copper Plate company, San Francisco; American Zinc Products company, Greencastle, Ind.; American Nickeloid company, Peru, Ill.; C. G. Hussey & Co., Pittsburgh, and Bridgeport Engravers Supply company, Bridgeport, Conn.

Their trade association, the Photo Engravers Copper and Zinc Grinders' association, also was named in the complaint.

They were given until Jan. 24 to show cause why the commission should not issue a cease and desist order against them.

SHARP ADVANCE IN HOGS BOOSTS PRICES OF LARD

A sharp advance in hog prices brought in commission house short covering in lard yesterday, causing an early advance, but the upturn resulted in hedging sales attributed to packers, bringing about a recession from the best figures. Closing trades were 7½ to 10 cents higher. No improvement was indicated in the demand for the cured product, although fresh pork was reported as moving more freely.

Cash lard closed at $12.00, loose $11.37, leaf $11.50, and clear bellies [salt pork] at $18 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

THIRTEEN STORY AUSTIN BUILDING TO BE REVAMPED

University Drops Plan for Loop Skyscraper.

BY AL CHASE.

Plans for Chicago's only proposed 1935 loop skyscraper—a 21 story structure announced last May for erection at the southwest corner of Clark and Jackson by Northwestern university—were abandoned yesterday. Harry L. Wells, business manager for the university, said last night that instead of going ahead with the project the 51 year old Austin building, which now occupies the site of the proposed new structure, will be modernized.

Carroll H. Sudler of Sudler & Co., who have been appointed managing and renting agents of the property, said that a survey of the thirteen story Austin building will be made at once to determine the scope of the proposed modernization program. New store fronts and a new lobby are among the remodeling possibilities. Leases are to be made with both store and office tenants for long terms.

Firms Renew Leases.

It is understood that the Continental Casualty company and the Continental Assurance company of Chicago, with whom Northwestern university was negotiating for use of ten entire floors in the contemplated new buildings, have renewed leases in the Standard Oil company building, 910 South Michigan avenue.

The proposed office building was to have extended from Clark to La Salle, on the south side of Jackson, and was to have cost $1,500,000. Plans were drawn by Holabird & Root.

Building Erected in 1884.

Designed by the late D. H. Burnham, the Austin building was erected in 1884. For nearly three decades the Western Union Telegraph company occupied several floors, and the building was named for it. A few years ago F. C. Austin purchased it and rechristened it the Austin building. When he died, three or four years ago, he bequeathed the property to Northwestern university.

It is one of Chicago's pioneer tall buildings, although originally it was only nine stories high. Later four more floors were added, the five foot thick walls being capable of carrying the additional stories.

USERS OF SILVER CUT PURCHASES AS PRICES FALL

Buy Only for Actual Needs Awaiting Stability.

Purchasers of silver for use in the arts and in industry are buying on a day to day basis as a result of the collapse in commercial prices for the white metal, Marc S. Goldsmith, vice president of the Goldsmith Brothers Smelting and Refining company, said yesterday. The Goldsmith concern is one of the leading companies in the country engaged in the purchasing and resmelting of secondary gold and silver.

"Users of silver are only buying what they require to fill their immediate needs," Goldsmith explained. "Such users are following this policy in the expectation that silver prices may go lower. The London market for silver continues to run sharply under the New York prices, and consequently we may expect lower prices here."

Treasury Causes Collapse.

Prices of silver in the world market collapsed early in December when the treasury stopped its wholesale purchases abroad. The action of China in going off the silver standard and adopting a paper currency released huge supplies of the white metal. India is known to be in possession of billions of ounces of hoarded silver.

Vast stores of silver have appeared in the world markets as a result of the buying policy of the United States. With these big hoards beginning to come out, it was said the price was bound to decline as the futility of the treasury policy of trying to advance prices by purchases became fully recognized.

Among large users of silver are the film industry, manufacturers of silverware, hardware, the electrical industry, the chemical industry, etc.

Stability Is Awaited.

It was pointed out that such users of silver naturally do not want to build up large inventories of the white metal in the face of a declining market, and consequently they will continue to hestitate to buy until some stability is reached. Silver prices started to decline about Dec. 9, and in this period have fallen about 30 per cent.

Goldsmith said that old gold which poured into the market following revaluation of the metal by the Roosevelt administration is now coming out in normal amounts. Most of those having old gold which they wished to sell at the high prices resulting from revaluation have about liquidated their holdings and only small amounts of the precious metal are being received.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKETS PAUSE FOR CHRISTMAS

December Wheat Higher on Short Covering.

Trade in grain futures in the world's markets was extremely slow yesterday on the eve of the Christmas holiday. The bulk of the business on the Chicago Board of Trade was in the way of spreading between the various deliveries.

Reports of a settlement of the controversy regarding the quality of the soft red winter wheat delivered on December contracts failed to have any effect on the market. The current delivery developed increased congestion as the result of belated short covering and buying of December wheat against sales of May wheat. The December delivery went to 6 cents premium compared with the May option, the widest difference of the season and comparing with 4¾ cents Monday. At the top December wheat touched $1.05½, the highest level since Oct. 11, and came within 4 cents of the highest figure on the crop.

Wheat Prices Variable.

Final trades showed a gain of 1 cent on December wheat, while May wheat was ¼ cent lower and July ⅝ cent lower. There was further buying of May wheat against sales of the July option by spreaders, who feared an even more severe shortage of cash wheat might develop later in the season. The July delivery is a new crop month and sales can be satisfied by delivery of grain that will be harvested next summer.

No export sales of Canadian cash wheat were reported and the trade looks for a limited business until after the turn of the year. Both the Winnipeg and Liverpool markets will be closed Thursday. Closing trades abroad and at Winnipeg were slightly lower than on Monday.

Decree on AAA Awaited.

The shadow of the coming Supreme court decision as to the constitutionality of the AAA processing tax has blighted the demand for cash wheat and flour. Comparatively little business has been reported in leading milling centers during the last week and no improvement is anticipated until after the decision is out of the way.

Closing prices yesterday in principal May futures here, with comparisons, follow:

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$ .99¼	$ .99½	$ .98
Corn	.59⅜	.59⅝	.59¼
Oats	.28	.28	.27¼
Rye	.52½	.52½	.51⅝

Interest in corn and other grains was limited with the close fractionally lower. The basis on cash corn declined ½ to 1 cent per bushel relative to the December delivery, due more to lack of demand on account of the Christmas holiday than to any pressure of offerings. No purchases were reported to have been made to arrive.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Demand for fresh eggs was only fair yesterday with current receipts off ¾@1¾c and checks 1c per doz. Receipts were 5,059 cases. Butter was unchanged to ¼c per lb lower. Receipts were 7,993 tubs. Live hens were unchanged to ½c higher, ducks and geese unchanged to 1c higher, and spring chickens 1c per lb higher. Receipts were 19 trucks. Demand for potatoes was relatively slow with little change in prices.
